QUICKLY

The Colorado Buffaloes open their 125th season of intercollegiate football on Friday, August 29, as the Buffs will square off against in-state rival Colorado State at Sports Authority Field at Mile High in Denver in the annual Rocky Mountain Showdown presented by Prestige Audi; kickoff is set for shortly after 7 p.m. and the game will be televised nationally on Fox Sports 1 ... It will be the 30th time over the last 31 seasons that a CU season opener will be on some kind of local, regional or national television (the lone exception came in 2006 against Montana State, though that game was webcast) ...

The Buffaloes and Rams will be playing for the 86th time (CU owns a healthy 62-21-2 edge), with this game marking the fifth of 10 straight to be played in Denver; all but two are season openers for both schools; in 2011 and 2015, the Buffs opened/open at Hawai'i ... This will be the 14th meeting between the two at Mile High, the other 13 coming from 1998-2000 (played at the old Mile High Stadium), with the 2001-2003 and 2006-2008 games at Invesco Field and 2010-13 at renamed Sports Authority ... CU leads the series in Denver by an 8-5 count and by a 19-7 margin since the rivalry resumed in 1983 following a 25-year dormancy ... FS-1 has changed up the announcing team for the game; it will now be Craig Bolerjack on play-by-play and Ryan Nece handling the color commentary ... Colorado enters 2014 with a 679-471-36 all-time record (a .588 winning percentage), as the Buffaloes rank 23rd all-time in the NCAA in wins and 31st in winning percentage.

MEDIA GUIDE We no longer print a media guide en masse, due to NCAA restrictions on sending or giving to recruits and a 208-page limitation. However, we have again produced a minimal number of copies of the "information guide and record book" (512 pages) that we have available; these, however, cannot be bound per NCAA rules (you can take to a place like Fed Ex Office and have it wire bound). It is online at CUBuffs.com (you can download from our media center).

SUMMER NEWS

ALL RECRUITS PRESENT AND ACCOUNTED FOR ... With the exception of two players who are grayshirting because of injuries and will enroll in January (OL Isaiah Miller, LB Grant Watanabe), all high school recruits met all academic requirements and have been on campus since June 23. That includes OL Isaiah Holland, who was the last recruit who entered into the fold, signing a financial aid agreement on May 24.

OTHER ADDITIONS ... There are also a few recruited walk-ons on the roster who have joined the August '105' (the maximum number of players schools can have participate in preseason drills until after the first game); four joined the recruits for CU's Summer Bridge program and reported June 23: OLB Lance Cottrell, Plano, Texas); TB Kyle Evans (San Jose, Calif.); QB Will Fischer-Colbrie (Los Altos, Calif.) and QB Ty Gangi (Glendale, Ariz.). WR Dylan Spradling (Elizabeth, Colo.; Ponderosa) reported at the end of July. And finally, DB Travis Talianko, a transfer from San Jose State via College of the Canyons, has also enrolled at CU and is eligible this fall.

PERSONNEL UPDATES ... There was some expected attrition: TB Donta Abbron has transferred to a junior college closer to home. Several players from 2013 opted to graduate in May (or will next month) and end their college careers; all would have been fifth-year seniors this fall: WR Keenan Canty, PK Justin Castor, CB Harrison Hunter, DB Josh Moten, DE Andre Nichols, DE Kirk Poston, ILB Lowell Williams and QB Connor Wood.

ANNIVERSARY-MANIA IN 2014 ... This season signifies the anniversaries of some great – and not so great – milestones in CU history. It's the 125th football season, but the 125th anniversary of CU athletics (there was a lone varsity baseball game in April 1890); the homecoming game against UCLA on Oct. 25 will be the 100th in school history; it's the 90th anniversary of Folsom Field (opened as Colorado Stadium on Oct. 11, 1924); it's the 80th anniversary of CU adopting the nickname "Buffaloes" (in November 1934); it's the 75th anniversary of CU's first Mountain States Conference title in 1939 (after an 0-3 start); it's the 45th anniversary of CU's 1969 Liberty Bowl champion team that thumped Alabama; the 35th anniversary of the Sept. 8, 1979 game against Oregon—the first college game televised on a fledgling network known as ESPN; the 30th anniversary of Ed Reinhardt's tragic injury at Oregon (Sept. 15, 1984); the 25th anniversary of CU's first 11-0 regular season and first-ever No. 1 ranking, but also of the death of Sal Aunese (Sept. 23, 1989); and the 20th anniversary of "The Catch" (or Miracle in Michigan, Sept. 24, 1994), Rashaan Salaam winning the first Heisman Trophy by a CU player, and coach Bill McCartney's surprise retirement.

PAC-12 NETWORK FOOTBALL TRAINING CAMP

The Pac-12 Network's Football Training Camp in 2014 has been expanded to an hour-long program; studio host Mike Yam and analyst (and former CU head coach) Rick Neuheisel will visit Boulder the morning of August 14, with the first show to air that evening at 10 p.m. MDT on all seven Pac-12 networks. This year's series of 12 shows kickoffs on August 5 at Arizona State and runs through August 23 with the final show featuring Cal.

THIS-N-THAT

Colorado will play Massachusetts at Foxboro (Gillette Stadium) on Sept. 6; it will be CU's first trip to the northeast in nearly 37 years, last visiting the vicinity on Oct. 1, 1977 when it defeated Army at West Point, 31-0 ... CU and Hawai'i begin the second phase a four-game home-and-home; the Warriors visit Boulder on Sept. 20, and CU will open the 2015 season in Honolulu ... As you obviously noted, CU has begun construction on the first of three phases of a $156 million Athletic Complex Expansion; the northeast seating areas of the stadium have been demolished, as have the old bleachers in the north end zone; new and improved seating will be completed by CU's home opener against Arizona State on Sept. 13.

PAC-12 NETWORK'S VARSITY DAYS: '69 LIBERTY BOWL TO BE FEATURED

The Pac-12 Network is debuting a series called "Varsity Days," where it has dug up old bowl games of all 12 member schools is a special classic showcase. Colorado's 1969 Liberty Bowl win over Alabama was selected, and the hour-long recap will air for the first time this Sunday, Aug. 10, at 10 p.m. MDT. Colorado rolled the Tide that day, 47-33; the following year, USC beat the Tide, 42-21, in Birmingham, with tailback Sam Cunningham running wild in the win. That instance is credited with Alabama legendary coach Bear Bryant and much of the SEC following suit in the recruitment of African-American players. But some say Bryant might have taken notice nine months earlier in Memphis when CU, with several blacks, beat up the Tide while dealing with a lot of racism in the process. It started with insults from Alabama fans during pregame and the Tide tried some intimidation at the coin toss. CU All-American TB Bobby Anderson and LB Phil Irwin shared some thoughts:

Bobby Anderson: "Here's the deal on the coin toss. First of all, Alabama only had white players. It would still be a year or two before Bear Bryant recruited black players. Mike Pruett, Bill Collins and I talked about how we wanted to handle the coin toss before walking out to midfield. We wanted to make a statement and have Bill represent us as captains and our team in general. Mike and I walked out, but stopped 5 yards short of going to the center of the field, because we wanted to show Alabama that Bill was our leader. We hung back so Bill would have all the attention on him and that is the way we wanted it."

"The other story was what happened at halftime. When we went into the tunnel going to our locker room under the end zone stands, we were surrounded by 'Bama fans and our players were hit with a barrage of racial slurs. Some of the guys said things were being thrown at us along with all the nasty comments. I had not been aware of it all until Bill Brundige and Herb Orvis went crazy, screaming in our locker room as to how our teammates, our Brothers, were being treated. Bill Brundige was normally a fairly passive guy (later to be named to the Washington Redskins All-Century team). I had never seen him that emotional. Later, I asked Bill Collins, Eric Harris, and Derek Faison about the 'Bama fans. They said it was pretty bad. But, it served to light a fire under the defensive guys and Orvis, Collins, Brundige, Irwin and the defensive guys really took over the game in the second half."

Phil Irwin: "A little hard to remember that far back but I do know we were ready to play. Alabama was a power and they treated us all like second rate citizens. Bear (Bryant) was their God and we were lowly Colorado."

2014 RULE CHANGES

A list of key tweaks by the NCAA rules committee for the upcoming season:

1. Targeting Fouls: Instant Replay Can Remove the 15-Yard Penalty.

Part of the penalty for targeting fouls is that the player is ejected from the game. In games where instant replay is used, the player is returned to the game if the video review shows conclusively that there was no forcible contact to the head and neck area or with the crown of the helmet. If this happens in 2014, and there is not another personal foul in combination with the targeting foul, then the 15-yard penalty is also erased. Examples of combination personal fouls include roughing the passer and kick or catch interference. In cases where such fouls are accompanied by a targeting call, the 15-yard penalty will still be enforced, even if the player's ejection is overturned.

2. Targeting Fouls in Games Without Instant Replay: Halftime Review.

In games where instant replay is not used, there is no opportunity for an immediate video review. A 2014 rule change now allows the referee to review a first-half foul at halftime when video is available at the game site. If this halftime review convinces the referee that the player should not have been ejected, he may return to the game for the second half. Such a review is optional. There must be a conference policy in place, or pregame agreement between the teams in inter-conference games, which specifies where the review will occur and what kind of video will be used. The decision of the referee is final and may not be appealed. Second-half targeting fouls may still be reviewed by appeal to the national coordinator of officials to determine whether the player is required to sit out the first half of his team's next game. This rule is unchanged from 2013.

3. Low Hits on the Passer. An extension of the rule for roughing the passer, a new rule in 2014 prohibits the defense from making forcible contact at the knee or below to an opponent who is in a passing posture. It is designed to eliminate knee injuries on plays where the defensive player forcibly drives a shoulder, helmet or forearm into the lower leg of the passer. This rule is not intended to prevent the defense from making a legitimate wrap-up tackle in which the contact is at or below the knee.

4. Player Numerals Must Contrast With the Jersey. Last year the rules committee clarified the rule requiring that the player's uniform number must clearly contrast with the jersey itself. During the 2013 season there was an interpretation that introduced a penalty for a team wearing a jersey that does not comply. This interpretation has now been codified as a rule.

Illegal Jerseys: The referee will ask teams to change into legal jerseys before the game begins. If the team does not change, it will be charged with a timeout. The same opportunity will be offered during the time between the first and second quarters, at halftime and at the beginning of the fourth quarter, and again a timeout will be charged each time the team does not comply. This means that a team could potentially burn four of its allotted six timeouts for the game because of the illegal jerseys.

2014 Officiating Points of Emphasis

This year college football officials are being asked to pay special attention to two areas of the game that are of concern to the rules committee and to other stakeholders: management of team personnel on the sidelines and the sportsmanlike behavior of players.

Management of the sidelines has emerged as a concern in the past few years, especially with the increase of no-huddle offenses. This style of play means that coaches are much more likely to be on the field right before the snap and then again too quickly after a play is over. Many coaches and players are still unaware of the fact that the six-foot white border around the sideline is no-man's land. This restricted area must be clear while the ball is alive as well as during the period after the play is over until the action has ceased. Officials will work with teams to keep this area clear but closer attention will be given to enforcing the sideline rules, which will include imposing appropriate penalties when necessary.

Player behavior is also becoming an issue as unsportsmanlike conduct is starting to drift back into the game. Good sportsmanship and respect for the opponent are firmly entrenched characteristics of college football that must be maintained. Spontaneous enthusiasm and positive celebration are encouraged, but when players extend this into self-promotion and taunting of the opponent, officials will be firm about calling unsportsmanlike conduct fouls. Some of these acts, such as the "throat slash" or vulgar behavior, are automatic fouls. Actions of this ilk have no place in our game, and officials are instructed to throw the flag when these occur. The game and its image are advanced and strengthened when everyone involved conducts themselves in a manner that embraces good sportsmanship.

HEAD COACH MIKE MacINTYRE

Mike MacIntyre is entering in his second season at the University of Colorado. He was named the 25th head football coach in Colorado history on December 10, 2012.

MacIntyre, 49, who spent much of his career as an assistant coaching on the defensive side of the ball, also started tutoring the cornerbacks in the spring of 2014. It's not that uncommon; the last time a CU head coach also coached a position was in 2009 (the receivers by Dan Hawkins).

In 2013, his first season in Boulder, he coached the Buffaloes to a 4-8 record, equaling the school's number of wins in the previous two seasons. With a 41-27 win over Colorado State in the season opener, he became just the second head coach since 1932 at Colorado to win his first game, joining Rick Neuheisel in 1995 as the only pair to do so among the 15 different men to lead the program in that time frame.

He also had to face the daunting task of rallying his team after a devastating flood hit Boulder, forcing the cancellation of a game, which led to two consecutive bye weeks after the Buffs started out 2-0.

The team improved in 29 major statistical categories, in most cases rather dramatically, and set a record for the fewest fumbles in a season with just 14 while reducing penalties dramatically (ending the season with just 10 over the final four games, a 50-year program low).

He led San Jose State to a 10-2 record in 2012, with a final regular season ranking of No. 24 in the Associated Press and USA Today/ESPN Coaches polls as well as in the final BCS Standings. It was San Jose State's first 10-win season in 25 years, and the Spartans earned a berth in the Military Bowl where it defeated Bowling Green, 29-20, and finished No. 21 in the national polls (the win, per NCAA policy, is not credited to him since he did not coach SJSU in the bowl).

For his accomplishments, he was the recipient of the 2012 Fellowship of Christian Athletes National Coach of the Year. The award is presented to a coach who exemplifies Christian principles and who is involved in the FCA, in addition to success and performance of that coach's team.

He assumed the SJSU position in December 2009, compiling a 16-21 record with the Spartans; he took over a team that had gone 2-10 in 2009, but began instilling a different culture despite a 1-12 record his first season in San Jose. His second Spartan team went 5-7, but closed the year with thrilling wins over Navy and Fresno State. His SJSU teams thus won 12 of his last 14 games there.

San Jose State's most impressive wins in his final year there came over San Diego State, Navy, BYU and Louisiana Tech, teams that otherwise combined to go 30-12 in 2012. Tech in particular was an offensive powerhouse (led the nation in scoring, second in total offense and fourth in passing), but their coaches felt MacIntyre and his staff put together the best plan to disrupt its high-octane offense of any of its opponents, including Texas A&M. The only losses were to Stanford (20-17 in the season opener, as the Cardinal won on a fourth quarter field goal) and to Utah State.

The 2012 season under MacIntyre is one of the best in San Jose State's nearly 120-year football history. In recording their first 10-win season since 1987, the Spartans did it with a highly-productive offense that scored 423 points, a defense that ranked among the national leaders in many statistical categories and reliable special teams.

His third Spartan team saw a school-record 16 SJSU players earn All-Western Athletic Conference honors, which came in a year that 36 school and conference records either were tied or broken.

MacIntyre's San Jose State teams performed in the classroom as well. In 2011, the school had a record number of Academic All-WAC team members – 13 – while defensive end Travis Johnson became the Spartans' first player in 30 years to get Academic All-America recognition. In addition, San Jose State's Academic Progress Rate (APR) score was 981, second best in the WAC.

Before his 2010 head coaching debut, MacIntyre instituted a comprehensive recruiting plan and initiated a "Summer Bridge" program for his first recruiting class to provide his newcomers a smooth transition into life as a college football player (he has since installed the same program at Colorado). Facing five nationally-ranked teams early in the season, the Spartans rebuilt themselves repeatedly, and were positioned late for victory in four of their final five games before finishing with a 1-12 record.

Under MacIntyre, the 2011 Spartans produced the fourth-best turnaround in their football history with a 4½-game improvement, exhibiting resiliency and resourcefulness to find a winning way: four of the team's five wins came in the game's final minute. The opportunistic Spartans were the co-national leaders with 20 fumble recoveries, tied for fourth in turnovers gained (33), were disciplined as the second least penalized team in the Football Bowl Subdivision and ranked in the top 25 in passing offense (23rd) for the first time in eight years.

After the season, San Jose State was so pleased with the direction of the program that they extended his contract through 2017.

A veteran coach of 22 seasons, MacIntyre arrived at San Jose State after two years as the defensive coordinator at Duke University, where he was reunited with head coach David Cutcliffe from earlier in his coaching days. Those Blue Devil defenses were among Duke's best statistically over a 20-year span, and in 2009, Duke's five wins were the most in a season by the Blue Devils since 1994. The American Football Coaches Association (AFCA) named him its 2009 FBS Assistant Coach of the Year.

Prior to returning to college ball, MacIntyre spent five seasons in the National Football League with the New York Jets (2007) and Dallas Cowboys (2003-06) coaching defensive backs. Working for legendary coach Bill Parcells, the Cowboys returned to the NFL playoffs in 2003 and again in 2006 after missing out on postseason competition during the 2000 through 2002 seasons.

MacIntyre has coached on both sides of the ball, spending four years at Ole Miss (1999-2002) where he started as the wide receivers coach for two seasons and the defensive secondary coach in his final two years. The Rebels posted a 29-19 record in that time with bowl appearances in the 1999 and 2002 Independence Bowls and the 2000 Music City Bowl. The 2001 Rebels ranked fifth nationally in pass defense, allowing just 161.3 yards per game.

At Mississippi, among his recruits were two high profile student-athletes that one could sign to letters-of-intent, quarterback Eli Manning and linebacker Patrick Willis. And along his coaching trail, he has mentored many current and former NFL players including recently retired former Dallas and Cincinnati safety Roy Williams, a five-time Pro Bowl player. At Dallas, he also tutored Terrence Newman, the former Kansas State cornerback who longtime CU fans certainly remember.

He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at the University of Georgia, working two years (1990-91) in that capacity. He then coached one year as the defensive coordinator at Davidson (1992), four years at Tennessee Martin (1993-96) and two seasons at Temple (1997-98) before he joined Cutcliffe's staff at Ole Miss.

A 1989 graduate of Georgia Tech, he lettered twice (1987-88) at free safety and punt returner for legendary head coach Bobby Ross. Prior to becoming a Yellow Jacket, MacIntyre played two seasons (1984-85) at Vanderbilt for his father, George, the head coach of the Commodores from 1979-85. The elder MacIntyre was the national coach of the year in 1982 when Vandy beat Alabama on its way to an 8-4 record.

MacIntyre earned a bachelor's degree in Business Management from Georgia Tech and his master's in Education with an emphasis on Sports Management from Georgia in 1991.

He originally agreed to a five-year deal with an annual salary of $2 million plus incentives (January 1, 2013 through December 31, 2017); in February 2014, CU's Board of Regents approved a one-year extension through the end of 2018.

He was born George Michael MacIntyre on March 14, 1965, in Miami, Fla., and is married to the former Trisha Rowan; the couple has three children, Jennifer, Jay and Jonston; Jay will be a freshman on the CU football team this fall. As previously stated, he is very active with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes as well as being an AFCA/Jason Foundation Ambassador, assisting the organization in spreading awareness of the problem of youth suicide.

2014 COLORADO FOOTBALL LETTERMEN PICTURE

Colorado has 50 lettermen returning for 2014 (47 from the 2013 team, with an additional three from the 2012 season); they break down into 22 on offense, 26 on defense and two specialists; the Buffs lose 23 lettermen off the 2013 squad (9 offense/12 defense/2 specialists). CU returns 15 starters from last season (7 offense/8 defense), losing 7 (4 offense/3 defense); several positions had multiple personnel shuttle in and out, so there are several other players back with starting experience. The 2013 starters are listed in bold (six or more starts, thus occasionally two players listed at same position if they shared time due to injury or rotated), and (*) denotes letters earned primarily on special teams. 2014 COLORADO FOOTBALL OUTLOOK

July 18, 2014

The second season of a head coach's tenure at his new school is often the most challenging. The roster is usually half the players that the previous staff recruited, with the other half those that he brought in.

And in the University of Colorado's case, there are six players, all seniors, still on the roster that were signed by the coaching staff two head coaches ago.

But there is little cause for concern in this regard for second-year CU head coach Mike MacIntyre. Almost the entire team bought into all the changes that come with the changeover in staffs, the end result producing a 4-8 record in 2013, a three-win improvement from the year before.

"Our significant progress really can be attributed to three different areas, first and foremost was that the players bought into what we were doing," MacIntyre said. "After that, the way we practiced with repetition and the way the coaches prepared them for games."

In addition to the improved digit in the win column, the Buffaloes improved in 29 major statistical categories (and in a few minor ones), in most cases rather dramatically. Emphasizing taking care of the football and minimizing mistakes, especially unforced ones, also were evident. Colorado set a record for the fewest fumbles in a season with just 14 while reducing penalties dramatically, committing just 52, the fewest since 1985 and ending the season with just 10 over the final four games, a 50-year program low for that long of a span.

Confidence was attained right from the start with a 41-27 win over Colorado State in the season opener, as MacIntyre became just the second head coach among the last 15 dating back to 1932 to win his first game at the reins of the CU program (joining Rick Neuheisel, who won his inaugural in 1995 at Wisconsin). Sure the team still endured some lopsided losses, but for the most part, the Buffs were much more competitive against those teams that had bested them the previous year, along with avenging a 2012 loss to CSU.

"Attitude and confidence in what you are doing is everything," MacIntyre said. "The culture had to change to where when our guys stepped on the field that they had to believe that they could beat anybody. By the end of the last season, that change took place."

Can the Buffaloes keep improving in 2014? One reality is that CU did defeat two FCS teams in his first season, and none are on this year's schedule. Colorado could very well match its record from a year ago, yet own two more wins against similar competition. MacIntyre isn't making any predictions for a win count, something smart coaches seldom if ever do.

"The goal is simple, and that's to just walk out there every time believing you can win," he said. "When you do that, the wins will come, but I'd never state any kind of number as a goal. Obviously we'd like to get the program back to the point where, at the very minimum, we are playing in a bowl game every season."

A bowl invitation requires six wins. Can Colorado reach that number this season? While that obviously remains to be seen, longtime observers feel MacIntyre has the program headed in the right direction. There are 50 lettermen and 15 starters returning from his first Buffalo team, and a need-based recruiting class is expected to fill in many holes on the depth chart. And often the forgotten ones – the redshirt freshmen – play a larger role than anyone thinks; 12 out of 21 true freshmen were redshirted in 2013, and 10 of those players were in the two-deep at the end of spring practice.

But it has not been a total youth movement by any means; nine seniors ended the spring atop the depth chart at their respective positions, including both kicking specialists, as did eight juniors. It might just be the perfect blend for the program to move forward, and more evidence might be in the selection of this year's captains, which took place at the end of the April drills.

Six players were voted as captains by their teammates: three seniors, guard Daniel Munyer, defensive tackle Juda Parker and safety Terrel Smith; junior receiver Nelson Spruce, and for the first time in school history, a sophomore was elected captain, and two at that, linebacker Addison Gillam and quarterback Sefo Liufau.

Competition will continue into August drills at most positions, as very few are likely locked up.

Most of the captains are probably secure at their spots, with the exception of Smith, who is returning from shoulder surgery and a redshirt year and has yet to practice at full-speed. And Liufau was being challenged by fellow sophomore Jordan Gehrke, the end result being that the Buffs appear to have at least two quality signal callers under center.

Offensively, the Buffs started all five linemen the entire season for the first time in over a decade, and three of those players return: Munyer, senior guard Kaiwi Crabb and junior tackle Stephane Nembot. That trio won't likely be unseated, thus the battle for the center and one tackle spot to determine this year's men in the trenches. Junior Christian Powell ended the spring number one at tailback, and essentially also at fullback, but there's a hoard of talent behind him. Tight end and the other two receiver positions will shake out in camp.

On defense, senior cornerback Greg Henderson is coming off a breakout season (four interceptions), and junior tackle Josh Tupou is primed for one, especially if one values the opinion of CU's seniors: he was the first player chosen in the player draft for the spring game. There's more youth on the defensive side of the ball, but veterans Jered Bell (senior safety), Ken Crawley (junior cornerback) and Woodson Greer (senior outside linebacker) should all figure prominently into things come the season opener.

The kicking specialists are more than likely set. Seniors Darragh O'Neill (punter) and Will Oliver (placekicker) are back, both in position to be four-year regulars, a rarity at any school. Both have enjoyed three solid seasons, and should compete for their respective national awards at their positions (Ray Guy and Lou Groza). O'Neill, an inside-the-20 specialist (if not closer to the goal) and Oliver, who made a combined 47-of-54 kicks a year ago (including all 30 PATs to extend his streak to 60) are two of the best in the country.

One season often isn't long enough for a team to establish an identity, and that's no difference in CU's case. But MacIntyre likes what he saw and intends to build on it.

"We haven't completely established an identity yet, but we are well on our way," he said. "We cut down dramatically in turnovers and penalties, two things you almost always control, last year, and recorded some all-time lows; we had the fewest fumbles in school history for example. But we need to play with better effort and more consistency and become a team that limits its mistakes – one that people refer to as, 'they won't beat themselves.'"

"We talk about the process of continually building in every area – small increases in everything we do and developing in every phase – strength and conditioning, academics, culture, practice habits, studying film, etc. – positive and consistent increases a little bit each day."

What should also help is the fact that the staff returns essentially intact. All nine full-time assistants are back for year two, as are most of the support positions, sans two of the four graduate assistants moving on.

The schedule appears to be a little tougher than in 2013; the Buffaloes do play the same nine Pac-12 opponents with the sites reversed and again have CSU in Denver. Hawai'i will visit Boulder, replacing Central Arkansas, and CU will travel to the northeast for the first time since 1977, playing in Foxboro against UMass; that technically subs in for Fresno State, via Charleston Southern, who CU scheduled after the Fresno game was cancelled due to the Boulder floods. CU opened 2-0 last year, but with the cancellation of the Fresno game, the Buffs had two consecutive bye weeks and lost the momentum they gained to open the season, especially combined with the gamut of emotions the team experienced by witnessing the devastation suffered by many from the record rainfall.

The 2014 season also marks the 20th anniversary of a very special season in CU annals – 1994 – the Buffaloes were 11-1 that year and finished as the No. 3 team in the nation. Much of this will be celebrated this fall:

Colorado saw its first player, not only at CU but in the state, claim a Heisman Trophy when Rashaan Salaam was rewarded for his 2,055-yard season. Chris Hudson won the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back, while Ted Johnson finished as the runner-up for the Dick Butkus Award for the best linebacker. Kordell Stewart finished as the Big 8 Conference's all-time total offense leader, and on his way to that mark, threw what has become a well-known pass that covered 64 yards as time expired at the "Big House" in Michigan, caught by Michael Westbrook via a Blake Anderson tip, rallying CU to a 27-26 win in what is both known as "The Catch" and the "Miracle in Michigan." And to cap it all, Bill McCartney shocked the football world by announcing his retirement from coaching after 13 years in Boulder, exiting as the school's all-time winningest coach.
