GAME-OF-THE-WEEK: OREGON at ARIZONA

The winner of this Oregon-Arizona game has a chance to play Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

For Oregon it would be their first Rose Bowl since the 1994 season and for Arizona it would be their first ever trip to play in the prestigious Rose Bowl.

Which Oregon team are we going to see? If the Oregon team that dominated USC on Halloween night shows up it will almost impossible for the Wildcats to come away with a win but if the Oregon team that lost to Stanford comes to play then it will be one of those typical Pac-10 shoot-outs.

The Ducks are led by QB Jeremiah Masoli. His consistent solid play during the second half of this season has been the difference for Oregon's success. He has the ability to make plays work when the opposing defense has stopped the initial call with his scrambling and ability to buy more time for his receivers to get open.

Oregon RB LaMichael James is having an all-Pac-10 year as well by leading the conference in rushing since taking over for LeGarrette Blount.

Offensively, Arizona is number one in the Pac-10 in 2009 and they also has a QB who has put the team on his back this season. Nick Foles has elevated this team with his superb play.

Another element of Arizona's rise has been the improvement of the Wildcat defense during the season. Arizona had given up a total of 133 points (33 per game) in 4 consecutive games from mid-September thru mid-October but since the UCLA game the defense has improved immensely and has given up an average of only 15 points per game.

Oregon leads the all-time series 20-14 and has won 12 of the last 15 games since 1994, however two of those three Arizona wins have come since 2006.
