One of the most talented players in Colorado basketball history, Chauncey Billups helped transform the Buffaloes into an NCAA tournament contender in the two years he played in Boulder. His hard work, dedication and exceptional basketball skills not only drew the attention of college basketball aficionados, but of professional teams as well. Billups was the No. 3 overall selection of the first round of the NBA Draft in 1997 by the Boston Celtics. As a captain of the Detroit Pistons, he led the team to the NBA championship in 2004 earning the NBA Finals Most Valuable Player award honors by averaging 21 points and 5.2 assists in the five games.

- set a then-CU freshman record (465 points) and currently holds freshman record with 143 assists.

Chauncey Billups became CU's first-ever lottery pick in the 1997 NBA Draft.

Donnie Boyce finished his four-year career as CU's all-time leading scorer, however his promising NBA career was cut short by a broken leg.

Donnie Boyce

Atlanta Hawks, 1995 • San Antonio Spurs, 1996-97

Ranking third all-time on Colorado's all-time leading scorer, Donnie Boyce completed his collegiate career in 1994-95 with 1,995 career points. However, Boyce's career ended prematurely when he broke his leg during the first half of CU's 1995 Big Eight Tournament game against Oklahoma. During his career in Boulder, Boyce was named All-Conference three times, twice on the league's first team. Boyce also held school records for games started (107), field goals attempted (1,648), free throws made (480) and free throws attempted (721). In four consecutive seasons (1991-95), Boyce led the Buffaloes in scoring, and led the Big Eight in scoring (league games only) as a junior (26.8 ppg). A gifted player on all levels, Boyce will be remembered as one of the greatest players in CU and Big Eight history.

Chris Copeland

New York Knicks, 2012-13

Chris Copeland had an interesting path in order to fulfill his dream of playing in the NBA after graduating from CU in 2006. Copeland originally signed with the NBA D-League's Fort Worth Flyers for the 2007 season. He then moved on to play overseas for teams in Spain, the Netherlands, Germany, and Belgium. Finally, though, Copeland got his shot with an NBA team in 2012 when he signed with his hometown New York Knick, where he averaged 8.7 points on 47.9% shooting (including an impressive 42.1% from three-point range) and 2.1 rebounds per game. At CU, Copeland was a four-year letter, winner helping the Buffs to a pair of NIT Tournaments (2004, 2005) as well as an NCAA Tournament appearance (2003). During his junior and senior seasons he was second on the team in scoring, trailing only Richard Roby. In his senior season he led the team in blocked shots with 32 on the season.

Jim Creighton

Atlanta Hawks, 1975-76

After playing in the shadows of Cliff Meely for two years, Jim Creighton came into his own during his junior and senior seasons. He quickly became a stalwart performer for the Buffs. Not big for a center (6-7, 190), Creighton played much bigger with his great jumping ability. Following an excellent senior season, he was named to the NCAA's District V All-Star squad. Creighton enjoyed a one-year stint with the Atlanta Hawks. Used primarily for his defensive ability, he played in 32 games, averaging one point and 1.4 boards per game.

During that time, Davis emerged as one of the school's all-time top rebounders (863 boards) and scorers (1,110 points). In addition to being a fine rebounder and scorer, Davis was also known for his defensive skills. As a professional ball player, Davis played for three different clubs, St. Louis/Atlanta, Houston and Detroit. His most successful seasons were spent with St. Louis/Atlanta as he averaged 7.9 points per game and totaled 1,484 career boards.

One of the key players for Coach Forrest "Frosty" Cox's 1941-42 Big Seven championship squad, Robert "Ichabod" Doll was known for his aggressive defense as he was named a unanimous first-team All-Conference player following his senior season. That same year, he also garnered All-America honors in Look, Pic and Time magazines. In 1940, Doll led the Buffaloes to bids in both the NCAA Tournament and NIT. He was named the NIT Most Valuable Player after averaging 15.5 points per game. Two years later, Doll was named a consensus second team All-American and led Colorado to its first Final Four. Doll played professionally for two years with the St. Louis Bombers 1946, then joined the Boston Celtics as a free agent. During his two-year stint with the Celtics, Doll averaged 8.4 points and 1.4 assists per game during his pro career.

Known as an excellent shooter, Pat Frink finished his career at Colorado as the second leading scorer in Buff basketball history at that time (1,288 points). He accomplished that feat even though he missed the 1966 season due to a knee injury. Frink was also chosen as a member of the second-team academic All-America squad in 1968. After graduation, Frink went on to play professionally with the Cincinnati Royals for one season. While a member of the ABA team, he played in 48 games and averaged 2.6 points per game.

A two-time All-Big Eight selection, Gardner was also chosen as a scholastic All-American his senior season. His excellent touch around the basket and dangerous hook shot enabled him to be an outstanding inside scorer. Although he only played one year professionally, he did record some notable marks with the ABA's Denver Rockets. In 42 games, he averaged 4.7 points and 3.2 boards per game.

David Harrison

Indiana Pacers, 2004-08

David Harrison had his best season with the Buffs during his junior year leading the Buffaloes in scoring (17.1 ppq.) and shooting an impressive 63.1 percentage from the field. The seven-foot, 250-pound presence led the Big 12 Conference in field goal percentage and more impressively was third nationally. What turned out to be his third and final season in Boulder (opted for the NBA draft), Harrison was drafted No. 29 of the first round by Indiana. In four seasons with the Pacers he averaged 5.0 points, 2.9 rebound a game, and shooting 53 percent from the field. Although his NBA career would not produce the numbers he performed in college, Harrison is currently the CU blocked shot record holder (225) and eclipsed the 1,000-point barrier (1,317 pts.). Harrison holds or shares every blocked shot record in school history and helped the Buffs to the 2002-03 NCAA Tournament and a 2003-04 NIT appearance.

Cory Higgins

Cory Higgins

Charlotte Bobcats, 2011-12

A solid four-year letterwinner who played a then-school record 132 games, Higgins is the only player in CU history with at least 2,000 points (2,001); 500 rebounds (547); 300 assists (320); and 150 steals (192) during his career. He shares the all-time scoring record with 2,001 points and at the time of his graduation was the holder of 17 school records. He's also the CU and Big 12 record holder with 45 consecutive free throws made (Dec. 10, 2008-Jan. 14, 2009) covering eight games as a sophomore. Higgins was a three-time All-Big 12 third team selection and a Wooden Award Preseason Top 50 Watch List nominee entering his senior year. His 2,001 career points ranked sixth all-time among Big 12 Conference scorers (in all games played) and during his junior and sophomore seasons, led the Big 12 (conference games-only) in steals with a 2.1 steals per game average.

Jay Humphries

Phoenix Suns, 1984-88 • Milwaukee Bucks, 1988-92 • Utah Jazz, 1992-1995

Jay Humphries had an outstanding career at CU, as he was elected twice for both All-America and All-Conference honors. Humphries is the current all-time leader in both steals (309) and assists (586), evidence of both his great quickness and ball handling abilities. Humphries finished his career with the Utah Jazz, after spending four seasons with Phoenix and four with Milwaukee. He reached two milestones in 1992-93, tallying his 4,000th assist and 8,000th point. He averaged a career-high 15.3 points per game in 1989-90, and never averaged under 7.5 points per game. Humphries joined the Jazz on draft day '92, when he was traded from Milwaukee to Utah.

Cliff Meely

Houston Rockets, 1971-76 • Los Angeles Lakers, 1976

One of two players in Colorado basketball history to have his jersey number retired (20), Cliff Meely was named an All-American following the 1970-71 season. Meely was truly a graceful performer who could shoot from anywhere on the court. He finished his career at CU possessing eight Big Eight Conference marks and 16 school records, including at the time CU's all-time scoring record (1,940 points). He still owns the school mark averaging 24.3 points per game. Meely transferred to CU as a junior college All-American from Northeastern JC. While there, he scored 40 or more points on five separate occasions. Meely played in more than 300 professional games over six seasons with the NBA's Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers. André Roberson

No. 26 Overall (1st Round) Minnesota Timberwolves, 2013
(traded to Oklahoma City 2013-present)

After three record-breaking seasons at CU, Roberson chose to forego his senior year and enter the 2013 NBA Draft. The decision proved to be a wise one as the 6-7 power forward was selected with the 26th overall pick in the draft. Roberson left Boulder as the only CU men's basketball player with 1,000 points (1,012), 1,000 rebounds (1,045), 150 blocks (150), 150 steals (164), and 100 assists (119). He was also the first CU player to lead the team three straight years in rebounding, steals, and blocked shots. His 1,045 rebounds were only 10 boards short of the school record set by Stephane Pelle; however Pelle did so over the course of four seasons (1999-2003), while Roberson only played three seasons. Roberson's 150 blocks ranks as No. 3 all-time at CU. In 105 career games, he tallied double-digit rebounds in 59 games, and scored in double-figures 52 times. Roberson also holds the freshman (297), sophomore (401), and junior (347) season rebounding records. Roberson joins Alec Burks as the second player in the last three years to be selected in the first round of the NBA Draft.

Following that he played in both the CBA and the Italian League before returning to the NBA ranks in 1992-93. That season, he had stints with four different teams.

With his great touch, he was smooth as silk with the ball, and was also a big factor on the boards. Wedman's outstanding play earned him All-Big Eight honors in both his junior and senior seasons. Wedman began his professional career with the NBA's Kansas City franchise, where he played for six seasons. While there, he averaged 17.4 points per game and 6.0 rebounds in 466 games.
