PRESIDENT BRUCE BENSON

Bruce D. Benson was named the 22nd president of the University of Colorado in March 2008, after already making his mark in business, politics, philanthropy, education and civic endeavors. In his seventh year heading the entire CU system, he is now the longest-serving CU president in more than half a century.

Since taking the helm of his alma mater, Benson has enhanced CU's standing as one of the nation's leading public universities, advancing the economy, health and culture of Colorado and beyond.

During Benson's tenure, CU's research funding has reached record levels (including the most recent, $774 million in 2012-13), supporting the university's research strengths in biotechnology, health care, energy, and aerospace engineering, among others. He has led efforts to promote cross-campus collaboration that have resulted in cooperative academic programs and research initiatives, most notably CU's Biofrontiers Institute, led by Nobel laureate Tom Cech.

CU has seen its five best fundraising years (including a record $258.8 million in 2012-13) under his leadership. Benson and his wife, Marcy, chaired CU's $1.5 billion Creating Futures fundraising campaign, which exceeded its goal in November 2013. The campaign, the largest in university history, supported scholarships, academic enhancements (endowed faculty positions, programs), research projects and capital improvements across CU's campuses.

Benson has guided efforts to successfully institute operational efficiencies, cut bureaucracy and improve business practices at the university. CU has secured legislation in the Colorado General Assembly that has allowed it to save millions annually in areas such as procurement, insurance and construction. He has also established a number of public-private partnerships to make the university more entrepreneurial and meet the needs of businesses in Colorado and across the country.

He oversees a system with four campuses (Boulder, Colorado Springs, Denver, Anschutz Medical Campus in Aurora) with some 58,000 students (a total of 66,000 students pursue courses for credit). CU has some 27,000 employees. The university's annual budget is $3.1 billion.

Before becoming CU's president, Benson had already made his mark in business, politics, philanthropy, education and civic endeavors. He founded Benson Mineral Group in 1965, a year after earning his bachelor's degree in Geology from CU. Throughout his business career, he has also been involved in banking, real estate, cable television and restaurants.

He has consistently been active in a variety of educational, civic and political endeavors. He was the Republican nominee for Colorado governor in 1994. Benson has received many honors recognizing his leadership in a variety of endeavors, but two are particularly notable: CU in 2004 granted him an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters, and in February 2009 he was named to the Colorado Business Hall of Fame.

He was born July 4, 1938, in Chicago, and Benson has three children and 10 grandchildren. His wife, the former Marcy Head, has also dedicated herself to public life, from serving presidents of the United States to volunteering at leadership levels in health care, education, the arts and civic activities. She worked in a variety of capacities for presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush and is an active community leader among her many lifetime accomplishments.

CHANCELLOR PHIL DISTEFANO

Dr. Philip P. DiStefano is in his sixth year as the Chancellor at the University of Colorado Boulder.

Prior to his appointment on May 5, 2009, Dr. DiStefano was the top academic officer at CU-Boulder for eight years as the Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. He served as interim chancellor twice during pivotal times in the university's history.

Dr. DiStefano co-chaired the steering committee for CU-Boulder's visionary strategic plan, Flagship 2030, conceived with campus, community and statewide input, to guide the university for decades to come. Today, Dr. DiStefano is shepherding its implementation as Flagship 2030 has moved from vision to reality.

Dr. DiStefano has served CU-Boulder for 39 years. He joined the University of Colorado in 1974 as an Assistant Professor of Curriculum and Instruction at the School of Education. His academic career flourished as he assumed a series of academic and administrative positions, including Professor, Associate Dean, Dean and Vice Chancellor. He was appointed Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs in 2001.

As Chancellor he works closely with students, faculty, staff, alumni, donors, governing officials, and business and community leaders in extending CU's legacy as a preeminent national comprehensive research university.

A first-generation college graduate, Dr. DiStefano earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Ohio State University and a Master of Arts degree in English Education from West Virginia University. He holds a Doctorate in Humanities Education from Ohio State University, where he served as a teaching and research associate.

He began his educational career as a high school English teacher in Ohio. He has authored and co-authored numerous books and articles on literacy education.

Dr. DiStefano and his wife, Yvonne, have been married for 45 years and are the parents of three grown daughters and two granddaughters.

PROVOST RUSSELL MOORE

Dr. Russell L. Moore has had a long and distinguished career at the University of Colorado Boulder, now serving in the capacity of Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, having assumed the position July 1, 2010.

Dr. Moore also previously served as interim vice chancellor for research from May 2009 to July 2010, and prior to that appointment, he was the associate vice chancellor for research since 2006.Dr. Moore served as chair of kinesiology and applied physiology (now integrative physiology) from 1994 to 2001, and was assistant professor (1984-86), associate professor (1993-96) and full professor (1996-present) in that department.

He holds an adjunct professorship in medicine (cardiology) at the University of Colorado's Anschutz Medical Campus at the University of Colorado Denver.

He was an assistant and associate professor (1986-91) in the departments of medicine, cellular and molecular physiology at the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine in Hershey, Pa. He did postdoctoral work at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas (1981-84).

Dr. Moore earned a Bachelor of Science degree in biochemistry from the University of California at Davis in 1976, and a master's degree (1978) and doctorate (1982) in physiology from Washington State University in Pullman, Wash.

FACULTY REP DAVID CLOUGH

Faculty Athletics Representative Dr. David Clough is a national leader in college athletic reforms and represents CU to the Pac-12 Conference and the NCAA. A professor of chemical and biological engineering, Dr. Clough enters his 10th year as the University of Colorado Boulder's Faculty Athletics Representative (FAR), as he assumed the role in March 2005.

Professor Clough reports to Chancellor DiStefano and works closely with the Director of Athletics, Rick George, and the coaches and staff of Athletics to support student-athletes, especially in their academic pursuits. The FAR's duties include oversight of the eligibility certification and compliance functions on the Boulder Campus. He strives to be well known to CU's student-athletes, and he and his wife Sydney are present at many home competitions of CU's sports teams. He also travels with many CU teams to away competitions.

Dr. Clough replaced Chancellor Phil DiStefano, who served as FAR from June 1, 2000 until just shortly after his appointment as interim chancellor for the Boulder campus in 2005. Clough is only the sixth FAR in CU history, joining a prestigious list: Walter Franklin (1947-1948), Warren Thompson (1949-1966), William Baughn (1967-1989), James Corbridge (1989-2000) and DiStefano (2000-2005).

Dr. Clough has had a significant impact on engineering education at CU-Boulder and beyond through career-long efforts to enhance the learning of engineering students. He has pioneered active- and cooperative-learning techniques in the College of Engineering and Applied Science, and in 1989 he originated the concept of the Integrated Teaching and Learning Laboratory. Clough's research has focused on the automated control of chemical and related processes.

He has been involved with student-athlete success for more than 30 years as his relationship with the CU athletic department dates to more than three decades. Throughout his career, Dr. Clough has taken a special interest in engineering student-athletes, long appreciating the combined academic and athletic challenges they face. He played an integral role in the Rhodes Scholarship candidacy of Buff football star Jim Hansen, an Academic All-American who was awarded the Rhodes in 1993.

Dr. Clough received his bachelor's degree from the Case Institute of Technology (now Case Western Reserve University) in 1968 and his master's from CU-Boulder in 1969, both in chemical engineering. He worked as an engineer for E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., from 1969 to 1972 before returning to CU-Boulder to earn his doctorate in 1975. He joined the faculty of the Department of Chemical Engineering at that time.

He served as the college's associate dean for academic affairs from 1986 to 1992, playing a role in a number of important initiatives, including the Gemmill Engineering Library, the Herbst Humanities Program, and the Integrated Teaching and Learning Laboratory. From 1993 through 1999, he was associate chair of the Department of Chemical Engineering and was responsible for significant improvements to the department's undergraduate advising program.

Known for his willingness to experiment with new educational concepts and technology, Dr. Clough has worked to reform traditional lecture classes into an interactive workshop format that greatly enhances the learning of students. Through these efforts, he has helped to reshape the way engineering is taught. The student-run Engineering Excellence Fund chose Dr. Clough as the first recipient of the Sullivan-Carlson Inspiration in Teaching Award in 1998. He has received numerous teaching and advising awards from nominations by his students over the years. He also has been given the college's Hutchinson Teaching Award and Peters Service Award. He received the first Boulder Faculty Assembly Teaching Award in 1980 and the Boulder Campus Outstanding Advisor Award in 1996. His merit as an educator also has been recognized outside CU. In 1995 the American Society for Engineering Education (Rocky Mountain Section) presented him with its first Outstanding Educator Award.

In April 2000, he received the college's Distinguished Engineering Alumnus Award in the Education category. It recognized his significant impact on engineering education through pioneering the active learning concept for the Integrated Teaching and Learning Laboratory, and in leading the college in changing traditional lecture courses to an active learning format.

In his role as Faculty Athletics Representative, Clough represents CU to the Pac-12 Conference and the NCAA. He provides a liaison between Athletics and the faculty and works to enhance the educational experience of 350 student-athletes. Clough has been active in the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association (FARA) and will become President of FARA in November. In his time as FAR, Dr. Clough has established a reputation for his expertise in the NCAA's Academic Performance Program and the program's statistics tracking the academic progress of student-athletes, the Academic Progress Rate (APR) and the Graduation Success Rate (GSR). He has developed tracking and predictive tools that have been shared with over 100 NCAA Division I institutions.

He and his wife, Sydney, have four grown children, Astrid, William, Rodney and Damon, and four grandchildren. Dr. Clough's father, John W. Clough, was a chemical engineer, and his two brothers are retired engineers. The Clough family established a scholarship endowment in engineering at CU in honor of John Clough, who died in 1994. The family holds a strong belief in giving back to the educational institutions that have benefited its members.—

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR RICK GEORGE

Rick George was introduced as just the sixth full-time athletic director in University of Colorado history on July 17, 2013, returning to Boulder where he helped play a role in the school's first and only national championship in football some 23 years earlier.

George, 54, came to Colorado from the Texas Rangers baseball club of the American League, where he was named chief operating officer on October 5, 2010 with a promotion to president of business operations this past February. He agreed to a 5-year contract at CU, and he officially started on the job on August 12, 2013.

His list of first-year achievements were many, but none more significant than shepherding through a $143 Athletic Complex Expansion from creation through fruition, gaining approval from the Board of Regents and then raising over one-third of the estimated cost to initiate construction, which began May 12, 2014. The project is the core of the Sustainable Excellence Initiative (SEI), the jewel of which will be a long-awaited indoor practice facility.

George implemented the department's first-ever comprehensive strategic plan, which will map CU's immediate and long range purpose and goals. He also redesigned the management teams (without coming in and eliminating or forcing out longtime staff just for the sake of it like others have done), made tough budget decisions that reduced deficits he inherited, and canvassed the state, region and nation in both friend- and fundraising.

Near the end of his first year, he was recognized by CU's Student-Athlete Advisory Committee as its choice for Staff Member of the Year; no token award, the group acknowledged his attendance at most home athletic events, regular meetings with team captains of all programs to interact with them and receive their feedback, and willingness to meet with any student-athlete and that his door is always open to them.

George brings the most diverse background to the position than any before him at Colorado: all five others had extensive and primarily exclusive college athletic histories, the only exceptions being when Marolt left CU after 10 years as ski coach to lead the U.S. Olympic ski team before returning, and Tharp, who was a university attorney with strong CU-Boulder campus ties. While George began and worked in the college athletic world for the first half of his professional career, he stepped outside that box for the second half.

George is just the sixth full-time athletic director in Colorado history, following in the footsteps of Harry Carlson (1927-65), Eddie Crowder (1965-84), Bill Marolt (1984-96), Dick Tharp (1996-2004) and Mike Bohn (2005-13). Two others have bridged directors in interim capacities, Jack Lengyel (six months between Tharp and Bohn) and Ceal Barry (two months between Bohn and George).

George was with the Rangers for less than three years, but saw the team win two American League championships and compile a 243-176 record (.580 winning percentage) during his time there, second-best in the major leagues during that time frame. As the COO, he worked closely with team president and CEO, baseball Hall-of-Famer Nolan Ryan, and was responsible for all facets of the Rangers' business operations, including oversight of all sales and marketing efforts, broadcast and communications, ticket and suite sales, naming rights, etc., in addition to overseeing the finance, human resource and operations departments.

Among his many accomplishments with the Rangers was a comprehensive branding study that successfully rebranded the ball club, and an implementation of a new ticketing strategy that over the course of three seasons increased ticket revenues by over $30 million. The club's attendance saw an increase of 40 percent from the 2010 season to nearly 3.5 million in 2012, second in the American League (behind the New York Yankees) and third in the majors. The 2013 numbers were on pace to exceed the 3 million mark again when he left the franchise for CU.

Prior to joining the Rangers, George served as executive vice president and chief of operations for the PGA TOUR for two-and-a-half years (beginning in June 2008). While with the TOUR, he worked with the corporate marketing department in renewing sponsorships and creating new events. He also oversaw the Tournament Business Affairs division that worked with Tournaments to increase tournament revenue.

He also worked for the PGA TOUR as president of the Champions Tour from 2003-08, and as the executive vice president for championship management his last three years there. His major accomplishments included increasing revenues and sponsorships and the development of strategic plans, the latter including a vision and mission statement as well as core values. The Champions Tour had grown to a minimum 29 events with over $55 million in prize money when he left for the PGA TOUR.

From 1998-2003, George served as President and CEO of the Fore!Kids Foundation, a 501c3 organization that raised money for children's charities via golf-related events, where he led rebranding and organizational efforts that resulted in increases in charitable giving to the Foundation.

At the collegiate level, George worked in three major conferences (Big Ten, Big 8, Southeastern) in football operations, beginning with his alma mater, the University of Illinois, as football recruiting coordinator (1983-87).

He graduated from Illinois in 1982 with a Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Arts & Sciences Individual Study that had an emphasis on Sports Communication and Journalism. He was a four-year letterman at cornerback for the Illini, playing in 44 straight games and starting in 27 games in all, as he played two years each under coaches Gary Moeller and Mike White. He was a two-time recipient of the school's Bruce Capel Award, given for dedication and courage to honor Capel who lost his life serving his country in Vietnam; George received the honor for his junior and senior seasons.

Upon his graduation, White named him the assistant director for player personnel for the Illini, and a year later (1983), he assumed the all sports recruiting coordinator. In March 1984, George took over the recruiting chores solely for football, with his first class ranked No. 1 in the nation by the recruiting services with all in the top 20; he coordinated five classes in all at Illinois when the call came to take him out west to Colorado.

On March 2, 1987, Bill McCartney hired him as Colorado's football recruiting coordinator. Two-and-a-half years later (Dec. 21, 1989), George was promoted to assistant athletic director for football operations, not coincidentally after the Buffaloes finished the regular season with an 11-0 record and the school's first-ever No. 1 national ranking in the polls. CU lost to Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl and would finish No. 4, but came back to go 11-1-1 in 1990, this time defeating the Irish in the Orange Bowl to earn consensus national champion honors.

Shortly thereafter, he left the Buffaloes for Vanderbilt University, where he was reunited with former CU offensive coordinator Gerry DiNardo, who was named the Commodores' head coach a year earlier. In eight years at Vanderbilt (1991-98), he also served as associate athletic director for external operations in conjunction with overseeing the football program. This was where George first expanded his professional role outside of solely football, as he had oversight over all external departments, particularly in the area of managing budgets and developing marketing and promotional strategies for all sports.

George was born April 3, 1960 in Woodstock, Ill., and graduated from Collinsville (Ill.) High School, where he lettered in football, basketball and baseball. He is married to the former Nancy Green, and the couple has two grown daughters, Jenni Reed (husband Tom) and Christi, and one granddaughter (Harper).

George's first week on the job ... in 1987.

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO

Founded in 1876 at the foot of the Flatirons, 138 years has transformed the University of Colorado from a lone building on a bleak, windswept hill to one of the nation's leading public research institutions. Established in 1861, the University was formally founded in 1876, the year Colorado became a state.

The Boulder campus encompasses almost 800 acres on the main campus, east campus (which includes a research park), Williams Village and the Mountain Research Station north of nearby Nederland (which supports ecology, chemistry and geology). In 1996 the Board of Regents purchased 308 acres of land in unincorporated Boulder County, now informally known as the south campus, in an effort to insure the growth of the University well into the 21st century.

While almost 30,000 students are educated on the main campus, another 13,000 study at the University of Colorado at Denver, the University of Colorado Anschutz Campus (Aurora) and the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs. Nine elected Regents and President Bruce Benson lead the four-campus system, while each campus has a Chancellor who serves as the chief academic and administrative officer. Dr. Phil DiStefano is in his sixth year as the chancellor of the Boulder campus.

Students can enter any of 10 schools and colleges offering more than 2,500 courses in 150 fields, representing a full range of disciplines in the humanities, social sciences, physical and biological sciences, the fine and performing arts, and the professions. CU-Boulder is regularly ranked among the best of the United States' public universities by the Fiske Guide to Colleges, and a 2010 USA Today/Princeton Review survey rated the University of Colorado as the fifth-best value among American public colleges. CU was recently ranked as the No. 33 university in the world by the Times Higher Education.

CU-Boulder has played a major role in NASA space programs, designing and building many scientific instruments flown in outer space, and graduated 18 men and women who became astronauts, including the late Jack Swigert, one of the three astronauts in the crippled Apollo 13 mission who made it dock to Earth safely from the moon. When the Hubble Space Telescope was launched in 1990, it was carrying seven major instruments, including a high-resolution spectrograph to study the evolution of stars and designed and built by an international science team led by astronomer Jack Brandt of CU-Boulder. Since Hubble has been up, CU-Boulder faculty and students have been among the top users of Hubble of any institution in the world. CU- Boulder is the only university in the country where undergraduate students have operated a NASA satellite.

The University has produced 19 Rhodes Scholars, five of which were former football student-athletes at CU, with Jim Hansen the most recent recipient in 1992. Faculty member Thomas Cech, a distinguished professor of chemistry and biochemistry, won the 1989 Nobel Prize in chemistry. Other notable alumni include former United States Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White, former big band leader Glenn Miller and actors Robert Redford and Chris Meloni, the latter starring for years on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, and the creators of South Park, Trey Parker and Matt Stone.

If the aphorism, "Somewhere between the Rockies and reality," seems too good to believe, then come for a visit. Start with a walk on the historic Pearl Street Mall, a downtown pedestrian mall that is the ceremonial heart of the city actually that works despite the efforts of its street theatre.

Visitors may be so taken in by the scenery, the mall, Tudors and Victorians they may forget the University that put it all together. From Pearl, Broadway leads directly onto campus where the University of Colorado Museum and the CU Heritage Center, in the original Old Main building, which introduces the University's past and present. The recently completed ATLAS building is one of the most state-of-the-art structures on any college campus.

Take in the fresh mountain air on any part of 100 miles of trails and 30,000 acres of open space. Climb the Flatirons or in Eldorado Canyon State Park. Swim or board sail at the Boulder Reservoir while elite runners sprint around it. Take in a pro sporting event down the road in Denver, just one of 13 cities with teams in all four pro leagues.

Rest assured, like the prophesy of an Arapaho Indian Chief, "If you leave Boulder, you will return."

PAC-12 CONFERENCE

PAC-12 CONFERENCE, THE CONFERENCE OF CHAMPIONS

Built on a firm foundation of academic excellence and superior athletic performance, the Conference ushered in a new era on July 1, 2011, officially becoming the Pac-12 Conference with the additions of the University of Colorado and University of Utah.

Just 27 days after the Conference officially changed its name, Commissioner Larry Scott announced the creation of the Pac-12 Networks on July 27, 2011, solidifying a landmark television deal and putting the Conference on the forefront of collegiate athletics. The Networks, including one national network, six regional networks, and a robust digital network marked the first-ever integrated media company owned by a college conference. In addition, the "TV Everywhere" rights allow fans to access Pac-12 Networks outside the home on any digital device, including smartphones and tablet computers.

In 2011, the Pac-12 also launched its Globalization Initiative to proactively promote the Conference and member institutions through student-athlete exchanges and sport. In its first three years, Pac-12 student-athletes have enjoyed unique cultural and athletic experiences in China, fielding full university and Pac-12 all-star teams in women's volleyball and men's basketball, with plans to play the first-ever men's basketball regular season game in China in November 2015, and the Conference and its member schools have gained significant brand exposure for the future and set a foundation for growth.

On the field, the Pac-12 rises above the rest, upholding its tradition as the "Conference of Champions ®," claiming an incredible 131 NCAA team titles since 1999-2000, including 10 in 2013-14. That is an average of nearly nine championships per academic year. Even more impressive has been the breadth of the Pac-12's success, with championships coming in 28 different men's and women's sports. The Pac-12 has led or tied the nation in NCAA Championships in 48 of the last 54 years, the only exceptions being in 1980-81, 1988-89, 1990-91 and 1995-96 when the Conference finished second, and only twice finished third in 1998-99 and 2004-05.

For the ninth-consecutive year, the Pac-12 had the most NCAA titles or tied for the most of any conference in the country, winning at least six every year since 2000-01. No other conference has won double-digit NCAA crowns in a single year, the Pac-12 doing so seven times, including a record 14 in 1996-97.

Spanning nearly a century of outstanding athletics achievements, the Pac-12 was the first conference to reach 400 championships in 2010-11. With the inclusion of Colorado and Utah, the Conference surpassed another major milestone, with league teams capturing 450 titles, outdistancing the next conference by nearly 200. In all, Conference teams have won 469 NCAA Championships (287 men's, 154 women's, 28 combined).

Pac-12 members have won 287 NCAA team championships on the men's side, 83 more than the next closest conference. Men's NCAA crowns have come at a phenomenal rate for the Pac-12 - 16 basketball titles by six schools (more than any other conference), 54 tennis titles, 46 outdoor track & field crowns, and 28 baseball titles. Pac-12 members have won 25 of 45 NCAA titles in volleyball, 40 of 45 in water polo, 28 in skiing, and 24 in swimming & diving national championships.

Individually, the Conference has produced an impressive number of NCAA individual champions. Over 2,000 (2,167) individual crowns have been won by Pac-12 student-athletes over the years with 1,485 by male student-athletes.

On the women's side, the story is much the same. Since the NCAA began conducting women's championships 33 years ago, Pac-12 members have claimed at least four national titles in a single season on 24 occasions, including 14-consecutive years from 2000-2014. Overall, the Pac-12 has captured 154 NCAA women's titles, easily outdistancing the SEC, which is second with 93. Pac-12 members have dominated a number of sports, winning 23 softball titles, 21 tennis crowns, 14 volleyball titles, 15 of the last 25 trophies in golf, and 13 in swimming & diving.

Pac-12 women student-athletes shine nationally on an individual basis, as well, having captured an unmatched 682 NCAA individual crowns, an average of nearly 21 championships per season.

The Pac-12's excellence is further proven in the annual Learfield Sports Directors' Cup competition, the prestigious award that honors the best overall collegiate athletics programs in the country. STANFORD continued its remarkable run and won its unprecedented 20th-consecutive Directors' Cup in 2013-14. Seven Pac-12 member institutions ranked among the top-27 Division I programs, the most of any conference and five were in the top 20: No. 1 STANFORD, No. 7 UCLA, No. 8 USC, No. 15 OREGON, No. 20 CALIFORNIA, No. 26 ARIZONA and No. 27 ARIZONA STATE. At least five member institutions have been ranked in the top 20 in all but one year of the Director's Cup program, with seven appearing in the top 20 on five different occasions (1998, 2001, 2003, 2005 and 2006).

2013-14 REVIEW

The Conference's 10 national titles came in the form of six men's and four women's crowns. Six different league schools claimed NCAA titles and, of the seven NCAA institutions to have won multiples titles, three were from the Pac-12. No other conference in the country had more than one team win multiple NCAA titles.

It was also a record-breaking season for Pac-12 men's basketball with a league-record eight teams posting 20 wins during the 2013-14 campaign. ARIZONA captured its 13th regular-season crown, while UCLA won its fourth Pac-12 Tournament title at the MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas, its first since 2008. The highly-competitive Pac-12 season was rewarded with a record-tying six teams (Arizona, ARIZONA STATE, COLORADO, OREGON, STANFORD, UCLA) earning NCAA Tournament bids. The Wildcats obtained one of the four No. 1 seeds in the postseason tournament, the Conference's first since 2008. Pac-12 teams went 8-6 in tournament play, with UA, Stanford and UCLA reaching the Sweet Sixteen, while the Wildcats were just one point short of the NCAA Final Four, advancing to the Elite Eight. The eight NCAA Tournament wins were the most by the league since it posted an identical 8-6 mark in 2008. An additional three teams participated in postseason action with CALIFORNIA and UTAH receiving NIT bids and OREGON STATE playing in the CBI.

Pac-12 women's basketball also saw tremendous success with five teams earning NCAA Tournament bids, the most since 2006. USC captured its first-ever Pac-12 Tournament title, securing its first NCAA Tournament bid since 2006. STANFORD claimed its 14th-consecutive regular-season crown, then advanced to the NCAA Final Four for the sixth time in seven years. Its trip to the national semifinals was also the seventh-straight year a Pac-12 team has advanced that far. OREGON STATE also ended a long NCAA Tournament drought, earning its first invitation to the Big Dance since 1996; CALIFORNIA made a third-straight trip to the NCAA Tournament; and ARIZONA STATE returned to the postseason event after a two-year absence. COLORADO, OREGON, WASHINGTON and WASHINGTON STATE also all participated in the WNIT, making it the most-ever teams to participate in the postseason in the history of the league. Three teams ended the season ranked in the final Associated Press poll: Stanford was No. 6, Cal was No. 24 and USC was No. 25, its first appearance in the final poll in 20 years.

RALPHIE V

The University of Colorado has one of the more unique mascots in all of inter¬collegiate athletics, a real buffalo named Ralphie.

The live buffalo mascot leads the football team out on the field both at the start of the game and second half. It is truly one of the special sights that exist anywhere in college or professional sports, especially for opposing teams, who often stop in their tracks watching the massive buffalo round the end zone and head directly at their sideline.

The buffalo first appeared in 1934, three weeks after a contest to select an official school nickname by the Silver & Gold newspaper had come to an end and "Buffaloes" was the winning entry. For the final game of the '34 season, a group of students paid $25 to rent a buffalo calf along with a real cowboy as his keeper. The calf was the son of Killer, a famed bison at Trails End Ranch in Fort Collins. It took the cowboy and four students to keep the calf under control on the sidelines, a 7-0 win at the University of Denver on Thanksgiving Day.

Prior to 1934, CU athletic teams usually were referred to as the "Silver and Gold," but other nicknames teams were sometimes called included Silver Helmets, Yellow Jackets, Hornets, Arapahoes, Big Horns, Grizzlies and Frontiersmen. The student newspaper decided to sponsor a national contest in the summer of 1934, with a $5 prize to go to the author of the winning selection. Entries, over 1,000 in all, arrived from almost every state in the union. Athletic Director Harry Carlson, graduate manager Walter Franklin and Kenneth Bundy of the Silver and Gold were the judges.

Local articles first reported that Claude Bates of New Madrid, Mo., and James Proffitt of Cincinnati, Ohio, were co-winners for the prize as both submitted "Buffa¬loes" as their entry. But 10 days later, the newspaper declared Boulder resident An¬drew Dickson the winner, after a follow-up revealed his submission of "Buffaloes" had actually arrived several days before those of the original winners. Through the years, synonyms which quickly came into use included "Bisons," "Buffs," "Thun¬dering Herd," "Stampeding Herd," "Golden Avalanche," and "Golden Buffaloes."

Live buffaloes made appearances at CU games on and off through the years, usually in a pen on the field or sometimes driven around in a cage; in the 1940s, the school kept a baby buffalo in a special pen at the University Riding Academy. The first named buffalo was "Mr. Chips," who appeared for the first time at the 1957 CU Days kickoff rally, as supporter Mahlon White donated him to the school, and it was cared for by a men's honorary.

A few years passed between a live mascot on the sideline and the tradition Colorado fans have come to know so well. In 1966, John Lowery, the father of a CU freshman from Lubbock, Texas, donated to the school a six-month old buffalo calf from Sedgewick, Colo.

For a while, she was billed as "Rraalph," but the origin of the name is in some doubt. Some say it was given by the student body after sounds she allegedly made while running and snorting; others say it was named for Ralph Jay Wallace, the junior class president at the time; and the original handlers will tell a third version.

Regardless, an astute fan soon discovered that the buffalo was in fact a female, thus the name alteration to Ralphie. The initial tradition was for CU's five sophomore class officers to run the buffalo around the stadium in a full loop. They would pick her up from caretaker William "Bud" Hays at the Green Mountain Rid-ing Stables, and would run her for two hours in the morning to tire her a bit to keep her under control by the time the game started. At the conclusion of the run, the fans would break into the "Buffalo Stomp," which would literally shake the stadium in deafening fashion as the team took the field. But CU officials soon had the tradi¬tion stopped because of the actual physical damage it was causing.

Around that same time, head coach Eddie Crowder was approached with the idea the charging buffalo running out on the field before the game with the team behind right her. Crowder thought it was a great idea, and the debut of this great tradition took place on Oct. 28, 1967, CU's homecoming game against Oklahoma State. Though OSU won the game, 10-7, the tradition was here to stay, though those who had some training in such an endeavor as working with a wild animal eventually replaced the sophomores. The five sophomores appointed themselves as the board of directors of a fundraising effort to bring Ralphie to the '67 Bluebon¬net Bowl in Houston, raising the necessary money through selling stock.

Ralphie attended every CU home football game for 13 years (including all bowls), and retired at the end of the 1978 season. CU's first Ralphie achieved nationally celebrity status, and was even kidnapped in 1970 by some Air Force Academy students as well as being named the school's 1971 Homecoming Queen at the height of the anti-establishment era.

Ralphie's replacement on the sidelines was Ralphie II, making her first-ever appearance at CU's final home game of the 1978 season. The buffalo's original name was Moon, short for Moonshine, but the name Ralphie had become so popu¬lar and traditional that it was restored. The Bank of Boulder, a significant contribu¬tor through the years to the Ralphie program, purchased and donated Ralphie II to CU. At the age of 12, and after serving the Buffs for 10 years, Ralphie II passed away on Sept. 19, 1987, following a 31-17 CU win over Stanford. Ralphie III was pressed into action earlier than anticipated, as she had been in training for the 1988 season. Originally named "Tequila," she made her debut on Nov. 7, 1987, when the Buffs beat Missouri, 27-10. After over 10 years of service, she passed away in January 1998, at the age of 13. Ralphie IV was donated to the university by media and sports entrepreneur Ted Turner in 1998. Born in April 1997 on the Fly¬ing D Ranch in Gallatin Gateway, Montana, which is a part of Turner Ranches, she was named "Rowdy" by ranch hands. She was separated from her mother when she was about a month old and was literally found in the jaws of a coyote with bite marks around her neck. She survived the attack and was bottle-fed by the hands for four months. She was released back to the herd but wouldn't bond with them, so the ranch hands took her back in and fed her grasses and grain. It was then that she was donated to CU as a yearling early in the spring of 1998.

John Parker, who trained and housed both Ralphie II and III and supervised the early training of Ralphie IV, retired after 12 years of service as caretaker in May 2000. His assistant, Ted Davis, assumed the program duties for the next year, while long-time CU supporters Dale and Lynn Johnson housed Ralphie for the following season.

Two former Ralphie Handlers and CU graduates, Ben Frei and Kevin Priola, took over as volunteer directors of the program in 2001. In anticipation of Kevin's retirement (who is now a Colorado State Legislator), an assistant volunteer director was added in 2010, CU graduate and former Ralphie Handler, John Graves. The program has been managed since 1994 by Gail Pederson, CU Associate AD/Football Chief of Staff. Together Ben, John and Gail manage the selection of 15 CU student handlers along with all aspects of Ralphie's care. Gail manages the program's sponsorships, public relations and appearances.

Ralphie IV made her debut against Colorado State at Mile High Stadium in Denver on September 5, 1998. She has appeared in six bowl games and four Big 12 Championship games and in 2006 made the trip to Athens for the CU-Georgia game. In November 2007, "Ralphie's Salute To A New Era" was held and Ralphie IV was semi-retired and Ralphie V was officially introduced to the public. Ralphie IV occasionally makes appearances but her last official run was on August 31, 2008 against CSU at Invesco Field at Mile High Stadium in Denver.

Ralphie V, known as "Blackout," also from a Ted Turner Ranch, the Ver¬mejo Park Ranch in New Mexico, was donated to the university in January 2007 as a 325-pound, four-month old calf. She made her debut on April 19, 2008 at CU's annual spring game (which drew a record 17,800 spectators) and is the current active Ralphie. She will be eight years old in October and now weighs in at 1300 pounds and as with all buffalo, can reach speeds up to 25 miles per hour.

Redshirt-Junior • Guard • 6-5 • 205

Hampton, Va. • Kecoughtan HS • Providence College

2014-15 (RS-Junior): Transfer from Providence College • Per NCAA transfer rules, Fortune will sit out the 2014-15 season • Selected the Buffaloes over LSU and Valparaiso • Will have two years of eligibility remaining with the Buffaloes • Coach Boyle says: "We're extremely excited about Josh and what he brings to our program. "He's a guy who is battled tested in the BIG EAST for two years, played a lot minutes and played in a lot of big games. To bring a player like that into your program, only helps us. The fact that Josh sits out a year, I think is a good thing … it will allow him time to grow and develop parts of his game that he needs to work on, and it will give him a year to get use to our system what we expect and what we're all about. He can shoot the ball, shoot it from deep, which is something our team needs. Three-point shooting is one of the areas we probably under-performed last year, so Josh really helps us."

The players made me feel like family. The coaching staff was just real up front and I trust them. They won the Pac-12 (in 2012) and you can tell the fans really show them a lot of love. CU scouting report: A pass-first, very unselfish type of point guard who already has international basketball experience (USA Basketball, three-on-three competition in Indonesia with FIBA's USA team) gained through summer travels • Tremendous first step and ball-handling skills • A very good on-ball defender with great anticipation.

Boyle's take: "He's got a good basketball body, but he's a little slight right now and knows he's going to spend some time in the weight room. I love that he can get wherever he wants to go on the court. Plus, he's got lots of experience – more than the typical incoming freshman. I expect him to have an impact right away. In fact, I'm counting on it."

Academics: Is an Open Option major in Colorado's College of Arts and Sciences.

Personal: Born Dec. 8, 1995 in Denver, Colo. • Son of Darryl and Lori Collier • Youngest of four siblings (Darryl Jr., Daye, Candice) • Played on the same AAU team (Kansas City Run GMC) as fellow CU teammate Tory Miller • Also played with Ronnie Harrell (Creighton) and AAU teammate Connor Frankamp (University of Kansas) • Lists winning state championship at the Coors Events Center during his senior year and playing for Team USA U-16 as his biggest moments of prep career • Verbally committed to the Buffs on May 7, 2013 • Wore jersey number 24 in high school.

Kansas City, Kan.
New Hampton Prep [N.H.]

New Hampton Prep [N.H.]: Three-time All-Conference and was an all-state selection his senior year • Averaged nine points a game during the 2013-14 season at New Hampton Prep (N.H.) • Member of the New England Prep School (NEPSAC) AAA Athletic Conference runner-up basketball team (scored 14 points in title game) • Led New Hampton with 21 points and 12 rebounds in the semifinals against St. Thomas More • Also had a double-double with 12 points and 10 rebounds in the quarterfinals • Helped New Hampton finish with a 22-8 record • Averaged 12.3 points, 6.0 rebounds and shot 58.7 percent from the field during 2012-13 his junior season at New Hampton • Played on the same AAU team (Kansas City Run GMC) as fellow CU signee Dominique Collier • Committed to CU on Oct. 19, 2013.

CU scouting report: Big, wide-bodied player who is physically ready to compete at the next level • Roster is well-stocked with runners, jumpers and finesse-type players – and Miller also can play with finesse, but he's best as an enforcer type • Good hands, long arms make him a capable shot blocker; plays bigger than 6-9 • What makes him special is his big body, his ability to use to his advantage on defense and his ability to lower his center of gravity, making him difficult to move.

Coach Boyle's take: "Tory gives us a wide presence that we haven't had since I've been here. He's a skilled player and very competitive. With his body type and strength, he can finish down low with contact. He doesn't look like he would be a good jumper, but he is. Plus, he's 19 years old now and will bring an age and maturity level to us that's a little further along than you'd find in a typical freshman. He's got all the physical tools necessary to be a very good Pac-12 player and he understands what it means to be successful."

Academics: Intended major is pre-med.

Personal: Born March 20, 1995 in Kansas City, Kan. • Son of Bryant Miller Sr. and Sherri Stewart • Comes from a large family of three older brothers, Nicholas, Sean, Justin; older sister, Crystal; younger sister, Kelsey • Lists graduating from New Hampton Prep as his biggest moment of prep career • Career aspirations include becoming a doctor or teacher after graduating college • Selected jersey No. 14 to wear at CU because that was his number at New Hampton Prep • Joins fellow New Hampton Prep teammate Josh Repine on the CU roster.

In only four years, Tad Boyle has accomplished only what a select few have done before him in the annals of the University of Colorado men's basketball program. And yet Boyle continues to rewrite and lead the Buffaloes to greater heights not seen in a half of century.

Boyle, 51, enters his fifth year with CU men's basketball program having already established a .648 winning percentage, the best among all CU basketball head coaches with a minimum of two years at the helm.

Under his tutelage, he has won an impressive 92 games at CU, the fastest win total in the shortest amount of time in school history, and his postseason winning percentage of .650, also ranks first (with a school-best 13 victories).

"Tad continues to make Colorado more than relevant," ESPN.com Senior College Basketball Writer Andy Katz said. "He has made them into one of the top teams in the West. Now you can count on Colorado being in play for the top tier in the Pac-12 and an NCAA bid. Colorado may have joined the Pac-12 for football first but the Buffaloes have been a boon in basketball."

In four seasons, Boyle and his coaching staff have rewritten the CU record book:

- 92-50 record (.648).
- 60-9 mark at home (.870).
- 92 victories rank No. 4 on the CU all-time coaching list.
- Owns four of CU's eight 20+ winning seasons.
- First CU head coach in school history to guide program to three consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances.
- Owns or shares four of the winningest seasons in school history.
- Has graduated every CU senior student-athlete on his roster.
- 6: All-Tournament team selections.
- 5: Conference first-team selections.
- 2: Tournament MVPs.
- 1: Pac-12 Conference Defensive Player of the Year.
- 1: Wooden Top-20 Finalist.
- First CU coach to lead Buffs to four consecutive post-season appearances (2010-11 NIT semifinal; 2011-12 NCAA 3rd Round; 2012-13 NCAA 2nd Round; 2013-14 NCAA 2nd Round).
- First CU coach to win 20 games in each of his first four years AND first CU coach to have four, 20-win seasons.
- 24 wins each in the 2010-11 and 2011-12.
- 23 wins in 2013-14 • 21 in 2012-13.
- 13-7 (.650) in postseason games (9-3 conference, 3-1 NIT, 1-3 NCAA) over the last four years.
- .650 postseason winning percentage, ranks first in school history.
- 7-2 in the Pac-10/Pac-12 Conference Tournament history (.778). Record and Winning % rank first.
- Advanced to the conference tournament semifinals three of the last four years (Pac-12: 2014 & 2012; Big 12: 2011).Not just a presence at the Coors Events Center, the 18th head coach in school history, Boyle is an active ambassador in the community throughout the Centennial State.
- One of three court coaches for the 2013 USA Basketball Men's World University Games training camp (assisting the 2013 USA Basketball Men's World University Games coaching staff during the June -24July 1 training camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.).
- Official starter of the 34th Annual Bolder Boulder (May 2012), the largest road race in the United States where all participants are timed and the fifth largest road race in the world.
- In December 2012, the men's basketball team visited the Children's Hospital at the Anschutz Medical Campus in Aurora.
- September 2012, Boyle was invited to Washington, D.C. with other college basketball coaches to urge Congress to protect federal funding for cancer research and prevention programs on Capitol Hill.
- December 2011, the team volunteered with the non-profit Share-A-Gift program, an organization helping families of need acquire children's toys for the holidays. Both programs are part of the CU Athletics Leadership Development Program. The program is designed to develop a culture of leadership in which CU student-athletes act with personal responsibility, integrity and accountability while staying committed in both principle and actions to the greater good.
- In September 2011, Boyle joined 20 other coaches from the Front Range for a two-day coaching seminar with former Denver Nuggets head coach George Karl, the 2012-13 NBA Coach of the Year.

"This is it (my dream job), there's no doubt," Boyle said after being named head coach on April 19, 2010. "I remember talking with (Maryland men's head coach) Mark Turgeon once when he asked me where I wanted to be in 10 years, and I said, the head coach at the University of Colorado. This is a destination job. I'm humbled and honored."

In his first season (2010-11), Boyle began to set the standard for exciting things to come, capping the season with a trip to the World's Most Famous Arena - Madison Square Garden and a National Invitation Tournament semifinal appearance. The Buffaloes won a school-record 24 games, including 18 school-best wins at the Coors Events Center, establishing one of the best home court advantages in all of college basketball.

"They're the heartbeat of this arena, they are the difference makers," Boyle said of the Coors Events Center crowd after a home victory. "To have that (student) section full was key, and I just want them to know that we appreciate and need them."

His initial season saw CU rank fifth nationally in free throw percentage (77.8), 12th in scoring (79.6 ppg) and 19th in field goal percentage (47.3).

Boyle earned National Coach of the Week honors (Hoops Report, Jan. 10-16) after leading the Buffs to a 3-0 conference start, including wins over No. 9/8 Missouri and No. 21/20 Kansas State. The win over the Wildcats gave CU its first road win over a nationally ranked opponent since January 1997 (No. 20 Texas Tech). CU defeated four ranked teams, including a 22-point comeback win (second greatest comeback in school history) upsetting No. 5/5 Texas, 91-89.

In year two (2011-12), Boyle became the first CU coach to begin the conference season with back-to-back 3-0 starts, and was the first coach since Frosty Cox (1935-36, 1936-37) to win his conference opener in back-to-back years. He also won his 40th game (home win vs. Oregon) in just 61 games tying Cox (1935-39).

Boyle continued to make most of his "dream job" a reality for CU fans guiding the Buffaloes to the 2011-12 NCAA Tournament (third round), another 24-win season, and a conference championship in its inaugural season of the Pac-12, winning four games in four days at the Staples Center in Los Angeles.

For his efforts, Boyle became the first CU head coach to earn the District 20 Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC), an award voted among his coaching peers. The 48 wins were a school-best in any two-year span of the program.

"I'm a believer in Tad Boyle," said Jay Bilas, ESPN College Basketball Analyst. "He is not only a terrific teacher of the game with great basketball knowledge, he keeps it simple and gives his players an understanding of what you need to do to win, but a firm understanding of how teams lose, too. Boyle has tremendous toughness in him. He is demanding without being demeaning, and he puts his players in position to achieve together without fear of failing. That's what truly outstanding coaches do, and Tad Boyle is a truly outstanding coach."

In year three (2012-13), Boyle guided the Buffs to another NCAA Tournament appearance, the second year in-a-row, becoming the first CU coach in 50 years to guide the program to back-to-back tournament appearances. CU won 21 games, the third straight season the program eclipsed the 20-win plateau, also a school-first. After the team won their first mid-season tournament since the 2002-03 season, the Charleston Classic, the Buffs reached the nation's Top-25 polls for the first time since 2005-06 (No. 19 AP/USA Today Coaches' Poll, Nov. 26); AP No. 23 ranked, Nov. 19).

Attendance records also set a brand new high standard as the men's basketball team was the best ticket in town setting a number of school records, including seven sellouts; 12 of 15 home games exceeded 10,000 fans or better, in addition to season total (155,884); season average (10,392); conference total (94,371); and conference average (10,486). The attendance surge ranked third nationally among all Division I programs for largest increased average from the previous year.

Success continued for Boyle and his coaching staff in year four (2013-14) as the Buffs won 23 games, the third most victories in school history. Another NCAA Tournament followed for a school record third consecutive season, in addition setting a pair of attendance records (season total: 173,429; non-conference total: 84,133). The staff enjoyed their best start to a season in four years (14-2), a No. 15 nationally ranking, the highest a CU team has seen since 1997, and a 10-game winning streak, the fourth longest in the programs history.

Over his four years, Boyle has coached six all-tournament team selections; five conference first-team recipients; a pair of tournament most valuable players; one All-Pac-12 Conference Defensive Player of the Year; and one John R. Wooden Top-20 Finalist.

Prior to his arrival to Boulder, Boyle resurrected the basketball program at the University of Northern Colorado, where he guided the Bears to a 56-66 record (.459) the past four seasons, including a breakout season in 2009-10, when the Bears were 25-8 (.758) and finished second in the Big Sky Conference. For his efforts, he was awarded the NABC Division I All-District Coach of the Year, the Big Sky Coach of the Year by both The Sporting News and CollegeInsider.com, where he was also named a finalist for the National Mid-Major Coach of the Year award.

"This exciting process was all about both the young men we have currently and those in the future who will be joining our program, and is an investment in them and represents the competitive spirit, teamwork, passion and dedication they stand for," then-CU athletic director Mike Bohn said.

"Tad Boyle represents everything that is right about college basketball. We look forward to his leadership, poise and competitive drive to unite all our collective Buff interests to support our team and this enterprise that has so much promise for the long term."

A Greeley, Colo., native, Boyle was named the 17th coach in UNC history on April 25, 2006. At that point, the Bears were in the midst of a transition to Division I in its first season as a member of the Big Sky Conference. Northern Colorado finished 4-24 in his first season when squad finished last nationally in the final RPI rankings for that season.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING ...

"Tad has bought back a resurgence to Colorado basketball with his energy and enthusiasm. I am impressed with his knowledge of the game and his ability to communicate to his Buffaloes team."

— Dick Vitale, ESPN College Basketball Analyst

"Tad has done something few thought possible – turn Colorado into a basketball school. The Buffaloes have as much of an impact in their new conference as any other team transitioning to a new league and that is a credit to Tad and his staff."

– Andy Katz, ESPN.com Senior College Basketball Writer

"I'm a believer in Tad Boyle. He is not only a terrific teacher of the game with great basketball knowledge, he keeps it simple and gives his players an understanding of what you need to do to win, but a firm understanding of how teams lose, too. Boyle has tremendous toughness in him. He is demanding without being demeaning, and he puts his players in position to achieve together without fear of failing. That's what truly outstanding coaches do, and Tad Boyle is a truly outstanding coach."

– Jay Bilas, ESPN College Basketball Analyst

"I've been blessed to work with many hall of fame caliber coaches during my career and I can say without reservation that Tad Boyle is as talented as any coach I've been around! Whether you're talking about X's-and-O's, in-game adjustments, or recruiting...he's the total package. And, best of all...he's an even better human being."

– Mark Johnson, Sports Director Newsradio 850 KOA

There were, however, flashes of times to come that season, including close losses to both Colorado (88-86) and Colorado State (75-66).

Over the next two seasons at UNC, he improved the team's win total from four to 13 and then 14. The Bears defeated Colorado State, 72-59, in his second season and also knocked off San Diego State, 72-59. The Aztecs were ranked among the nation's top 50 teams in the RPI rankings at that time. In year three, the Bears had improved from one conference win his first season to an even 8-8 mark and earned the school's first Division I post season trip, to the Sun Belt Conference Tournament.

It all came together for Boyle in his fourth season in Greeley, as the Bears advanced to the post season for the first time in school history, advancing to the quarterfinals of the CollegeInsiders.com Tournament while racking up a school record 25 victories. He coached one first-team All-Big Sky member and also the Big Sky Conference Defensive Player of the Year.

Prior to Northern Colorado, he spent six seasons as an assistant coach at Wichita State and was part of another turn around that saw the Shockers improve from 9-19 (.321) his first year there to one of the nation's top mid-major teams in 2006 when Wichita State went 26-9 and advanced to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament. The Shockers eventually lost to Final Four Cinderella George Mason in the regional semifinals, but not before they had secured the No. 21 ranking in the final collegiate polls.

Boyle played collegiately for legendary coach Larry Brown at Kansas (1981-85). He was a member of two NCAA Tournament teams (1984, 1985) and was part of the 1984 Big Eight Tournament championship squad. As a senior, Boyle captained the Jayhawks, which featured freshman Danny Manning, who three years later led the Jayhawks to the NCAA Championship.

After earning a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Kansas in 1985, Boyle went on to serve six years as a high school basketball coach at various Colorado programs. He was the sophomore basketball coach at Greeley (Colo.) West for a year and then was an assistant coach at Loveland (Colo.) High School for two years.

From there, he served at Longmont (Colo.) High School for three years before returning to the college ranks.

It was at Kansas that Boyle played alongside Turgeon, whom he also coached with at Oregon under Jerry Green. Boyle's first collegiate coaching job in 1994 was on Green's Ducks staff, where he spent three seasons and helped the Ducks to the 1995 NCAA Tournament and the 1997 National Invitational Tournament. In 1997, Boyle followed Green to Tennessee, where he was director of basketball operations when the Vols won 20 games and advanced to the NCAA Tournament.

Boyle reconnected with Turgeon the following year, this time as an assistant coach at Jacksonville State (Ala.), where they helped turn a team that was 8-18 into a 17-11 squad in just one season.

Before heading to play collegiately at Kansas, Boyle was a standout performer at Greeley Central High School, where he led the Wildcats to a state championship as a senior in 1981 and earned Colorado Player of the Year honors as well as being selected to the Converse All-American team. His high school jersey was retired at the conclusion of his senior season.

Boyle is married to the former Ann Schell of Greeley, and they have two sons, Jack and Pete, and a daughter, Claire.

Jean Prioleau enters his fifth year as the associate head coach with the University of Colorado men's basketball staff bringing a wealth of expertise on and off the court.

"Jean is ready to be a head coach, deserves to be a head coach," CU head coach Tad Boyle said. "He is multiple-faceted in terms of his recruiting and coaching ability, relationship with the players, and his professionalism. Jean does a tremendous job and has for many years, not just CU's staff, but any staff he's been on."

Since day one of his arrival on the Boulder campus, Prioleau has helped bring Colorado Basketball to the forefront as one of the elite programs in the Pac-12 Conference, as well as the national stage.

During his four years, the Buffaloes have set countless school-firsts: 92 victories, the most of any four-year span; four-straight seasons of post-season play, four-straight seasons of 20 or more wins, and three-consecutive NCAA Tournament berths.

Last season, the trend of success continued with an NCAA Tournament berth and 23 wins, the third-most victories in school history. His assistance also pushed CU into a third place finish in the final Pac-12 Conference standings, the program's highest conference placing in 18 years.

In 2011-12 (24 wins) and 2012-13 (21 wins), Prioleau and the Buffs earned back-to-back NCAA Tournament berths for the first time in 50 years (1961-62 & 1962-63). The 2011-12 campaign, CU's first year in the Pac-12 Conference and at the inaugural conference tournament, the Buffs became just the 10th team in the nation to win at least four games in four days to capture the tournament title (a CU first since winning the Big 8 in 1968-69).

With the automatic tournament bid, CU earned its first NCAA Tournament appearance since 2002-03 where the Buffs would go on to upset No. 6 UNLV in the second round.

During his first two years with the Buffs, he helped the team set the tone of success with back-to-back 24-win campaigns of 2010-11 and 2011-12, tying for the highest number of wins ever in a season. Also during Prioleau's initial season, CU advanced to the NIT semifinals in New York City, the school's last year in the Big 12 Conference.

Prioleau has aided the Buffs with a dominant home court advantage, making the Coors Events Center one of the most feared arenas to play in, having won 60 of 69 games. The 60 wins is a program best over any four-year period with an average of 15 home wins per season.

Also on the court, Prioleau has mentored a quartet of former CU student-athlete greats that have made the next step professionally in their basketball careers. Alec Burks (No. 12 overall, Utah Jazz, 2011) and Andre Roberson (No. 26 Overall, Minnesota Timberwolves, 2013 traded to Oklahoma City) were both drafted in the NBA Draft first round; Spencer Dinwiddie was drafted by the Detroit Pistons in the 2014 NBA Draft (second round, No. 38); and Cory Higgins played with the Charlotte Bobcats during the 2011-12 season. Burks became CU's second-ever lottery pick (Chauncey Billups).

Over the last four basketball seasons, Prioleau has coached a number of CU student-athletes to conference excellence. In CU's first year of the Pac-12, Roberson (first team, All-Defensive, All-Tournament team), Carlon Brown (second team, tournament's Most Outstanding Player), and Dinwiddie (freshman team) garnered all-Conference honors.

In year two of the conference, Roberson (first team, Defensive Player of the Year, All-Defensive team); Dinwiddie (first team) and Josh Scott (All-Freshman team) earned post-season accolades, and in year three, Scott continued CU's prominence among the elite Pac-12 Conference players by being selected to the first team. Askia Booker was an honorable mention selection, as to, was Wesley Gordon to the honorable mention freshman team. Booker was also named to the Pac-12 All-Tournament team.

Prior to his arrival to CU, Prioleau was an assistant coach and recruiting coordinator at Texas Christian University from 2008-2010. With the Horned Frogs, Prioleau not only served as the program's recruiting coordinator, but also was responsible for working with the TCU guards. Prioleau guided the development of TCU freshman Ronnie Moss as he became the first freshman since the 2001-2002 campaign to average double-digits as well as the progression of guards Edvinas Ruzgas and Keion Mitchem.

Before coming to TCU, Prioleau spent two years on the coaching staff at Iowa State (2006-2008) where he helped the Cyclones record 29 victories during his time. In his two seasons, the Cyclones had three All-Big 12 Conference performers in Mike Taylor, Wesley Johnson and Jiri Hubalek. All three were ranked in the top-100 among in a pair of defensive categories.

Soon after accepting the position at Iowa State, Prioleau played an instrumental role in signing one of the top players for the Cyclones in Wesley Johnson. The 6-7 forward from Corsicana, Texas, proved to be a valuable find for the Cyclones as he garnered All-Big 12 Rookie Team accolades as well as honorable mention freshman All-American laurels during the 2006-2007 campaign.

Prior to joining the Iowa State program, Prioleau spent the 2005-2006 season as an assistant coach under former Marquette head coach and current Indiana University head coach Tom Crean. In his lone season with the Golden Eagles, Marquette recorded a 20-11 overall record and a 10-6 mark in Big East Conference en route to securing a spot in the NCAA Tournament. Prioleau was part of a Marquette program that ranked 11th in the country in three-point field goal percentage, 22nd in three-point field goals made per game and 43rd in the nation in scoring offense in his lone campaign. That season, Prioleau watched as the Golden Eagles posted victories over a trio of nationally-ranked opponents, including a 94-79 triumph over top-ranked UConn.

Before his stint with Marquette, Prioleau spent five seasons on the coaching staff at Wichita State (2000-2005) where he played a vital role in the resurgence and success of the Shockers in the Missouri Valley Conference. The Shockers earned a berth in the National Invitation Tournament on three occasions during Prioleau's tenure. During his five-year tenure, the Shockers never finished below a .500 overall or conference mark while winning 18 or more games in four of five seasons. The Shockers collected 94 total victories during, including a pair of 20-win seasons in each of his final two campaigns with the program.

In addition to signing the top recruiting class in 2001 in the Missouri Valley Conference, Prioleau helped ink Sean Ogirri (Colorado Player of the Year), Paul Miller (2006 Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Year and 2001 Freshman of the Year), Jamar Howard (Missouri Valley Conference Defensive Player of the Year) and Randy Burns (Missouri Valley Conference Rookie of the Year).

"Jean has grown tremendously in this business and what I like about him, the fact he's not only a good recruiter, a good basketball coach, he has a great basketball mind," Boyle said. "He's the full package in terms that some guys are labeled one thing or another, but he's got all the goods. I'm really fortunate to have him. He's been in the Big 12, the Big East, the Mountain West, so he knows this level of basketball and he's well-connected throughout the country."

During his professional career, Prioleau played in both domestic and international territories with stints coming in the USBL and CBA as well as pre-season training camps for the NBA's New York Knicks and Indiana Pacers. He also spent time overseas where he competed in Turkey, Italy and Switzerland. Following his graduation, Prioleau played professionally for the USBL's Long Island Surf prior to attending training camp for the Indiana Pacers Rookie/Free Agent Summer League. Prioleau was invited to the Pacers' veteran camp where he was the final cut made by the team one day prior to the start of the season.

In 1992-1993, Prioleau played for Yakima of the CBA before rejoining the Surf that summer. Prioleau made his second appearance at the Indiana Pacers' veteran camp before competing for Grand Rapids and Sioux Falls of the CBA. The following summer, he played for the New Jersey Nets' summer league team then signed a professional contract in Switzerland during the 1994-1995 season.

Prioleau began his coaching career at his alma mater - Fordham University - following an eight-year professional basketball career. During the 1999-00 campaign, Fordham recorded a 14-15 overall record and a 7-9 mark in Atlantic 10 Conference action in the lone season with Prioleau on the coaching staff. That season, Duke Freeman-McKamey was selected as the Most Improved Player in the Atlantic 10 Conference while Bevon Robin earned third team all-conference accolades.

A former standout at Fordham, Prioleau was inducted into the Athletics Hall of Fame in 2000 after concluding his career ranked second in all-time steals and assists, third in free throw percentage, fourth in field goals made and sixth in scoring. Prioleau guided the Rams to back-to-back Patriot League titles, including hitting the game-winning three-pointer in the 1992 Patriot League Championship Game.

The Rams advanced to the NCAA Tournament during the 1991-92 season for the first time since the 1971 campaign while Prioleau was selected as a first team All-Patriot League selection. He also guided the Rams to a pair of NIT Tournament appearances during the 1989-90 and 1990-91 seasons, including a 25-8 overall record during his junior campaign.

A 1992 graduate of Fordham University with a degree in physics, Prioleau is a member of both the NABC (National Association of Basketball Coaches) and BCA (Black Coaches Association).

After his collegiate career, Prioleau was the last cut of the Indiana Pacers as an undrafted rookie in the fall of 1992. From there he would play professionally with the Yakima Sun Kings of the Continental Basketball Association. In the fall of 1995, he once again tried the NBA, only to be the last cut of the New York Knicks. Prioleau would then finish his pro career in Turkey and Italy.

Prioleau and his wife, Janelle, have a son, Elijah, born January 2011.

Mike Rohn enters his fifth year as an assistant coach/head recruiting coordinator with the University of Colorado men's basketball coaching staff.

"One of the steadiest people I have ever worked with in my life," CU head coach Tad Boyle said. "Mike is the ultimate grinder, works extremely hard and he's a guy that thinks, a forward-thinker. He's ready to be a head coach. He has all the tools in what it takes to be a head coach, and is invaluable to our staff, and to me."

Rohn is an integral part of the coaching staff that has re-energized the basketball program to national prominence and continues to do so each and every year. Over his four years in Boulder, Rohn has helped the Buffaloes register 92 victories, the most in any four-year span in school history.

In addition to four-straight seasons of post-season play, four-straight seasons of 20 or more wins, and three-consecutive NCAA Tournament berths, all are school-firsts in the 111-year history of the program.

Last season the trend of success continued with 23 wins, the third-most victories in school history. Rohn helped the Buffaloes cap another successful season with an NCAA Tournament berth. His assistance pushed CU into a third place finish in the final Pac-12 Conference standings, the highest conference placing in 18 years.

In 2011-12 (24 wins) and 2012-13 (21 wins), Rohn and the Buffs earned back-to-back NCAA Tournament berths for the first time in 50 years (1961-62 & 1962-63). Also during his initial season, CU advanced to the NIT semifinals in New York City, the school's last year in the Big 12 Conference.

Rohn has also aided the Buffs with a defend-the-home-court-mentality into a dominant home court advantage, making the Coors Events Center one of the most feared arenas to play in registering 60 wins out of 69 games. The 60 victories is the best four-year home span of the program with an average of 15 home wins per season.

Throughout his coaching tenure in Boulder, Rohn has mentored a quartet of former CU student-athlete greats that have made the next step professionally in their basketball careers. Alec Burks (No. 12 overall, Utah Jazz, 2011) and Andre Roberson (No. 26 Overall, Minnesota Timberwolves, 2013 traded to Oklahoma

Askia Booker was an honorable mention selection, as to, was Wesley Gordon to the honorable mention freshman team. Booker was also named to the Pac-12 All-Tournament team.

This past summer (August 2014), Rohn was the head coach the Athletes In Action team, a school-first for any CU assistant. AIA was comprised of CU sophomore Tre'Shaun Fletcher and other college basketball players from around the nation embarking on an eight-day Baltic tour of Russia, winning three of four games against professional competition. AIA is a worldwide Christian sports organization working with all levels of sports with the hope of having Christ-followers on every team, in every sport, in every nation.

Before arriving at CU, Rohn spent the previous three years as the director of basketball operations at Texas A&M (2007-2010) where he was part of the coaching staff that helped the Aggies to a trio of NCAA Tournament Round of 32 appearances. During those three years in College Station, the Aggies won 73 games, in addition to 28 Big 12 Conference games. A&M also led the conference in scoring defense (65.8 ppg.) for the first time in league history during the 2009-10 campaign.

At Wichita State, where Rohn spent seven years (2000-2007) as an assistant coach to Mark Turgeon, in addition with current CU assistant, Jean Prioleau, the Shockers engineered an impressive resume earning three-straight NIT trips (2003, 2004, 2005). During the 2005-06 season, the Shockers not only won their first Missouri Valley Conference championship in 19 years, they capped off a 26-9 record with a 2006 NCAA Tournament berth and a Sweet 16 appearance, a school-first in 18 years.

Rohn also helped coach fifth-year student-athlete Paul Miller capped off one of the best careers of any Shocker center by being named the MVC Player of the Year, the first Shocker to earn the award in 21 years, in addition to Jamar Howard (Missouri Valley Conference Defensive Player of the Year).

Prior to Wichita State, Rohn served three seasons as head coach from 1996-2000 at Dodge City (Kan.) Community College, where he built a 55-38 record and coached the Conquistadors to three consecutive state playoff appearances, including a 21-10 mark in 1999-2000. Rohn was also an assistant coach at Dodge City from 1993-96. In 1997, Dodge City was crowned the 1997 Jayhawk West Conference Champions.

Rohn was a graduate assistant coach at Fort Hays State (1991-1993) while earning a master's degree in sports administration and coaching. He earned a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1990 from McPherson College, where he was a two-time all-conference selection. There he was named the league's newcomer of the year as a junior and was the conference player of the year as a senior. He also was named McPherson's Male Athlete of the Year in 1989.

He also served as an assistant coach at Colby Community College (1990-91) and at his alma mater, McPherson College (1989-1990). Rohn transferred to McPherson after playing two seasons at Dodge City Community College.

Rohn and his wife, Stephanie, have two daughters, Raegen and Rylee.

ASSISTANT COACH RODNEY BILLUPS

Rodney Billups enters his fifth year with the University of Colorado men's basketball team and his third year as an assistant coach on Tad Boyle's staff.

During his first two years (2010-12) on the CU staff, Billups was the director basketball operations where he was an integral part of the behind-of-the-scenes success of back-to-back 24-win campaigns of the Buffaloes program with travel, scheduling, and the day-to-day operations of the program. He is also the co-director of the CU basketball summer camps, which has seen a record number of participants each summer.

When he was promoted to the coaching staff as an assistant coach prior to the 2012-13 season, the Buffaloes didn't skip a beat. Billups continued CU's excellence on the bench enjoying their finest seasons-to-date with a 21-win campaign in 2012-13, and 23 wins in 2013-14, the third-most victories in school history. The 92 victories are the most ever in any four-year span in school history; in addition, the four-straight seasons of post-season play and three-straight NCAA Tournament berths, are both school marks.

Last year, the Buffaloes capped another successful season, an NCAA Tournament berth. In addition, his assistance helped CU tie for a third place finish in the final conference standings, CU's highest conference finish in 18 years.

In 2011-12 and 2012-13, Billups and the Buffs earned back-to-back NCAA Tournament berths for the first time in 50 years (1961-62 & 1962-63). The 2011-12 season saw the Buffaloes make their first NCAA Tournament appearance in nine years, upsetting No. 6 UNLV in the second round and advancing to the third round. Prior to the NCAA Tourney, at the inaugural Pac-12 Conference tournament, the Buffs became just the 10th team in the nation to win at least four games in four days to capture the tournament title (a CU first since winning the Big 8 in 1968-69) at the Staples Center in Los Angeles.

Over the last four seasons, Billups has helped coached a number of CU student-athletes to conference excellence.

In CU's first year of the Pac-12, a trio were named all-conference as Andre Roberson (first team, All-Defensive, All-Tournament team), Carlon Brown (second team, tournament's Most Outstanding Player), and Spencer Dinwiddie (freshman team).

In year two of the conference, Roberson (first team, Defensive Player of the Year, All-Defensive team); Dinwiddie (first team) and Josh Scott (All-Freshman team) earned post-season accolades. In the third year of the conference, Scott continued CU's prominence among the elite Pac-12 Conference players being selected to the first team, while Askia Booker was an honorable mention selection, as to, Wesley Gordon to the honorable mention freshman team. Booker was also named to the Pac-12 All-Tournament team.

During his previous four years on the staff, Billups has also helped mentor four former CU student-athlete greats that have made the next step professionally in their basketball careers.

Alec Burks (No. 12 overall, Utah Jazz, 2011) and Andre Roberson (No. 26 Overall, Minnesota Timberwolves, 2013 traded to Oklahoma City) were both drafted in the NBA Draft first round; Spencer Dinwiddie was drafted by the Detroit Pistons in the 2014 NBA Draft (second round, No. 38 overall); and Cory Higgins, who played with the Charlotte Bobcats during the 2011-12 season. Burks also became CU's second-ever lottery pick.

Billups is the younger brother of former CU great Chauncey Billups, who played with the Buffaloes from 1995-97. The younger Billups is a Colorado native graduating from George Washington High School in 2001. He later was a three-year standout with the University of Denver Pioneers from 2002-05.

"Rodney continues to bring a lot of value to our staff," men's basketball head coach Tad Boyle said. "Each year, he gets more and more comfortable in his recruiting role, and continues to develop into a fine, young coach."

At DU, Billups averaged 10.2 points, 6.4 assists, and 3.2 rebounds during his 2004-05 senior season. In addition to leading the Sun Belt Conference in assists, he also ranked 17th nationally. He was named an All-SBC third team selection in 2004-05, the same season he helped the Pioneers win 20 games and a National Invitational Tournament berth.

Billups' 199 assists in his senior season, ranks third all-time in school history, while his 58 steals, ranks seventh. Over his three years at DU, Billups ranks fourth all-time in assists (418) and steals (154). For his career, he averaged 8.5 points per game, in addition to 4.6 assists, 2.7 rebounds and 1.7 steals per game.

In 2004-05, Billups was named co-recipient of the Floyd M. Theard Jr. Memorial Award. The award is presented each year to the DU men's basketball player who best displays the qualities of leadership, scholarship and sportsmanship.

Billups earned his business management degree from DU in 2005. After his collegiate days, he played professional basketball for ASK Riga in Latvia (2005-06), where he led the league in steals and assists. He also played one year in Finland (2006-07).

DIRECTOR OF PLAYER DEVELOPMENT SEAN KEARNEY

Sean Kearney begins his second year with the University of Colorado men's basketball staff as the Director of Player Development and brings 27 years of coaching experience to the Buffaloes.

Regarded as one of the most respected and well-liked coaches in the game today, Kearney was the Associate Head Coach at the University of Notre Dame under head coach Mike Brey from 2000 through 2009. With the Irish, Kearney was part of nine post-season teams, including five NCAA Tournaments (Sweet 16 in 2003) and four NIT berths. Notre Dame posted a 188-101 record for a 61.0 winning percentage that included six 20-win campaigns and finished with an 88-60 record in Big East regular-season play that included five seasons with 10-plus wins.

Kearney also coached at least one player in his nine seasons that were named to the Big East All-Conference team, including a pair of conference player of year nominees, one rookie of the year, and nine first team selections.

Kearney aided in the development of first-round NBA Draft picks Troy Murphy in 2001 and Ryan Humphrey in 2002. Also under his tutelage, 2006 graduate Torin Francis earned Big East all-conference honors two of his four seasons (as an all-rookie team selection in 2003 and all-conference honorable mention choice in 2004) and finished his career as one of only seven players in school history with better than 1,000 career points and 900 rebounds. Forward Luke Harangody was named Big East Player of the Year in 2008 and is the first player in league history to lead the conference in scoring in back-to-back seasons.

"Sean is a great addition to our staff," Boyle said. "Sean brings a lot of experience as an assistant and head coach, and has a great perspective. He's going to be a great-sounding board for me based on all the years of his experience he has in the game.

"He has recruiting ties all-around the country," Boyle added. "Sean has recruited nationally from coast-to-coast and has a lot of ties back east that some of our coaches on staff don't necessarily have."

After Notre Dame, Kearney was the men's basketball head coach for one year at the College of the Holy Cross (2009-2010).

"I had a fabulous first season in Boulder and couldn't be more excited to move forward with this basketball program," Kearney said. "In any profession, you always want to be improving your knowledge and your skills, and I am absolutely a better coach today than when I arrived last summer. The opportunity to work with Tad Boyle and this staff every day enhances my abilities as a coach, especially on the defensive end."

Although not on the coaching sideline over the last three years (2010-2013), Kearney was not far from the college game working as a color analyst for Irish radio broadcasts, in addition to Big East and Big Ten games with ESPN during the 2012-2013 season. During October and November months, Kearney traveled throughout the country attending NBA training camps and early season basketball practices at numerous college campuses.

Prior to Notre Dame, Kearney spent nine years (1991-2000) at the University of Delaware where he helped the Blue Hens to their four NCAA tournament appearances (1992, 1993, 1998, 1999).

In each of the final three years at Delaware, the Blue Hens registered at least 20 wins, a first in that school's history. Kearney was instrumental in developing the Blue Hens' post players. Three of the players he worked with – Greg Smith, Spencer Dunkley and Mike Pegues – combine to hold over 20 Blue Hen records.

Kearney began his coaching career in 1981 as an assistant at his alma mater, Cardinal O'Hara High School in Springfield, Pa.

From 1981-1986, he spent five years working with his former high school coach, Bud Gardler. While coaching at Cardinal O'Hara, he was employed as a senior systems analyst for Cigna. It was during that time that Kearney joined the staff of the prestigious Five-Star Basketball Camps. That association helped him move on to the college coaching ranks.

His collegiate coaching career began in dramatic fashion at Providence College as a volunteer assistant under Hall of Fame head coach Rick Pitino. There he was on coaching staff that included Herb Sendek (current Arizona State head coach), Stu Jackson (former NBA Executive Vice President, Basketball Operations), Gordie Chiesa (former Utah Jazz NBA assistant), and Jeff Van Gundy (former NBA assistant and head coach).

During his only season at the Providence, R.I. school, the Friars advanced to the Final Four of the 1987 NCAA tournament in New Orleans by winning the Southeast Regional championship, marking the school's second Final Four appearance.

After Pitino moved to the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association, Kearney became an assistant under Hall of Fame basketball head coach Herb Magee at Division II power Philadelphia Textile (now Philadelphia University). After just one season, he moved to Northwestern where he was an assistant coach under Bill Foster from 1988-1991.

Kearney graduated with honors from the University of Scranton in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in political science, was a four-year member of the Royals' basketball team. In his final two seasons, Scranton finished with consecutive 18-11 records. He was a member of teams that won three Middle Atlantic Conference titles and earned three NCAA Division III playoff appearances. As a senior, he averaged 4.2 assists per game.

Born Nov. 14, 1959 in Darby, Pa., he is married to the former Kimberly Lancaster. The couple has two daughters, Erin and Shannon.

James Hardy enters his eighth year with the University of Colorado and sixth as the Director of Basketball Strength and Conditioning with the men's basketball program. Hardy is also the strength and conditioning director for the women's lacrosse team.

"James continues to grow and develop," CU head coach Tad Boyle said. "Being a young strength coach relatively new to basketball, I've really seen him grow with his passion and dedication to our players.

"The thing I love about James, he takes ownership and what he does in our program. One of the things being a head coach, it's gratifying to see those around you continue to develop and get better every year, not only players, but your assistant coaches and in James' case, our strength coach."

Hardy came to the Buffs after spending two years at Auburn University as a graduate assistant in the Tiger's strength and conditioning department. He earned his master's degree in biomechanics from AU in 2006.

His certifications include CSCS and CSCCA.

Born on December 5, 1981 in Danville, Va., Hardy graduated from Lafayette High School in 2000, lettering in soccer.

Rawley Klingsmith

Men's Basketball Athletic Trainer

Rawley Klingsmith enters his second year with the University of Colorado sports medicine staff as the athletic trainer for men's basketball and the spirit squad.

Prior to coming to Boulder, Klingsmith was an integral part of the University of Northern Colorado sports medicine staff since 2004. In January 2012, he was promoted to Assistant Athletic Director for Human Performance - Head Athletic Trainer.

Klingsmith is reunited with current CU men's basketball head coach Tad Boyle, who coached the Bears from 2006-2010. At UNC, Klingsmith helped with all of Northern Colorado's 19 intercollegiate sports, assisting with student athletic training instruction and coordinating physician/doctor involvement.

"Rawley has great prospective, because he was the trainer at Northern Colorado with me from day one," said CU head coach Tad Boyle. "He has a great feel for athletes; he's dealt with professional athletes with his background with the Denver Broncos. He's a great reader of people (student-athletes) and I think as a trainer, the psychological aspect of injuries and recovery from injuries isn't talked about enough, and Rawley has a great feel for that."

Klingsmith graduated from the University of Northern Colorado in May of 2000 with a bachelor of arts degree in kinesiology/athletic training. As an undergraduate, Klingsmith was a student athletic trainer and assisted with football, baseball, wrestling, soccer, volleyball and swimming.

B.G. Brooks

Contributing Editor

Former Rocky Mountain News writer B.G. Brooks joined the University of Colorado athletic department as a contributing editor for CUBuffs.com in July 2009.

Brooks, 68, had covered the CU athletics scene since 1987, most notably football and men's and women's basketball. He wrote thousands of stories until the paper went out of business this past April, leaving over 200 employees scrambling for new employment. He has now found a home with the school he reported on for over two decades.

CU then-athletic director Mike Bohn and sports information officials had discussed for some time the merits of bringing in an experienced and respected outside reporter to take the school's website to another level. The addition of Brooks more than accomplishes that desire, while enhancing the website's reputation and taking some of the load off SID personnel who often don't have much time to tend to feature writing that Brooks has specialized in his entire career, which has spanned 39 years.

"We are fortunate to add someone with B.G.'s reputation and caliber to CUBuffs.com," Bohn said. "This will continue our commitment to transparency and increase original content on our website to a previous unforeseen level."

The veteran reporter will provide analytical game coverage and some commentary for football and basketball, and will write feature stories as well as working on special projects and series with a green light to be objective. By virtue of being the web site's first on-staff reporter, his access will expand, but it is important to note that access for media regularly covering the Buffs will be unchanged, with CU continuing to provide more access to its teams, student-athletes, coaches and administrators than most other schools.

He began his career at the Memphis Commercial-Appeal upon graduating from the University of Memphis in 1970. He worked for both the Columbia Daily-Tribune and the Missourian while attending grad school at the University of Missouri before joining the Rocky Mountain News in 1978. His experience includes the full scope, from copy editing and beat reporting (of which he was twice honored as the state's best in 2004 and 2005 by the Colorado AP editors) to time as a columnist as well as sports editor. This is technically his second go-round with the CU system, having served as a consultant and advisor for the The Advocate, the University of Colorado-Denver student newspaper.

He also has been a long time voter for many of college football's top awards, including the Heisman Trophy, the Butkus Award and the Doak Walker Award, as well as being an Associated Press Top 25 voter from 1987-2007.

He becomes the seventh full-time reporter with newspaper roots for a school or conference.

North Carolina State was the first to bring in a newspaper reporter, doing so in 2004 when it hired Tim Peeler from the Greensboro News & Record for GoPack.com; he is now the managing editor of the site. The Big 12 Conference hired Wendell Barnhouse, formerly of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, in a similar capacity last summer, as did Baylor, which hired Jerry Hill from the Waco Tribune-Herald.

Several schools have blogs or columns by SID's and/or by one of their radio announcers. The two oldest that are still current are believed to be Plati-'Tudes (debuted in 2000 by Dave Plati, Colorado) and Bill Little Commentary (dating back to 2001, Bill Little, Texas). Stanford hired a former sportswriter (Dave Kiefer, San Jose Mercury-News) as an assistant SID, with his responsibilities including serving as the main feature writer on GoStanford.com.

"We have prided ourselves on having areas on CUBuffs.com that are original, like 'Tudes, CU Classic and all the great video pieces produced by BuffVision," Plati said. "It is obvious fans can't get enough news on their favorite teams, and adding a veteran writer like Butch to our staff will dramatically increase our content. We're all very excited about this, and I think our fans will be, too."

850 KOA BUFFS RADIO

KOA-Radio (850 AM), the long-time flagship station of the Colorado Football Network, begins its fifth year broadcasting the CU Buffaloes men's basketball program. The 50,000-watt powerhouse has long been the premier sports station in the Rocky Mountain region and at night, can be heard in over 30 states, in much of Canada and Mexico, and sometimes as far away as northern Europe, Australia and Japan.

Entering his 11th year of calling all the exciting play-by-play action is the voice of Buff Basketball, KOA Sports Director Mark Johnson. Joining him on the broadcast is former CU men's basketball standout Scott Wilke (1984-88).

CU and KOA are now in their seventh contract since being reunited in 1985 after a brief three-year hiatus. Several area radio stations broadcasted CU football and basketball games up until 1982, when a single, flagship contract was negotiated for radio; KOA had broadcast games from 1942 through 1981 and assumed the flagship role in 1985.

During Pac-12 Conference basketball season, 850 KOA's sister station, 760-AM has the Colorado coaches show, Buffs PrimeTime at Carelli's of Boulder Ristorante Italiano - located on the corner of 30th and Baseline. Johnson talks with CU men's basketball head coach Tad Boyle in front of a live audience every Tuesday beginning in January through March from 7-8 p.m. Johnson and Boyle discuss the previous and upcoming games on the basketball schedule right through CU's March run to the Pac-12 Conference Tournament.

MARK JOHNSON

Prior to joining Newsradio 850 KOA in 2004, Mark Johnson previously spent two years as the "Voice of the Orange" for the Syracuse University football and men's basketball programs. He called the national championship basketball season for the Orange during the 2002-03 season. Before his time in Syracuse, Johnson was the play-by-play announcer for four years at Illinois State University and earned three Silver Dome Awards for best play-by-play broadcast in the state of Illinois. He also worked for two years as an announcer for the University of North Dakota. Johnson earned a bachelor's degree in communications from North Dakota in 1992. He and his wife, Susan, have two sons, Jacob; Nicolas, a 2014 under- and MBA graduate from CSU-Pueblo; and a daughter, Halle, a 2014 CU graduate in only three years.

SCOTT WILKE

Scott Wilke left his mark on the CU record book from 1984-88 averaging 12.4 points and 5.2 rebounds per game. Entering the 2014-15 season, Wilke continues to rank in a number of categories, including No. 9 in field goal percentage (.536), No. 11 in scoring (1,366) and No. 20 in rebounding (576). After college, Wilke played professional basketball for 12 years in Europe, including five years in England, and three years in Luxembourg. He also played in Australia, Japan, Austria, and Finland. Wilke begins his 11th year at Horizon High School in Thornton, where he teaches business and marketing courses. He's also an advisor for DECA and FBLA (co-curricular clubs). Wilke graduated with a bachelor's degree in business from CU in 1988 and earned a master's degree in business administration through Bellevue University (Nebraska) in 2006. Wilke and his wife, Susan, have two sons, Alex, a May 2014 CU graduate; Jax and a daughter, Phoenix.

BUFFS FALL IN SEASON-OPENER

DALLAS – The Colorado Buffaloes opened a highly anticipated 2013-14 basketball season with a disappointing offensive performance against No. 25 Baylor, falling 72-60 at the American Airlines Center.

CU shot a dismal 33.3 percent, hitting just 22 of its 66 field goal attempts and never led in the contest. Nonetheless, with 2:23 remaining the Buffs trailed by only six after a layup by Josh Scott cut Baylor's lead to 64-58.

"We cut it to six at that one point," CU head coach Tad Boyle said, "but, we couldn't get over the hump."

The Buffs regained possession after a missed jumper by Baylor's Cory Jefferson and a rebound by Wesley Gordon. But a bad possession ending with a forced jumper by Askia Booker left the Buffs still down six and needing a stop.

Instead, Baylor 7-footer Isaiah Austin connected on a jump hook and the Buffs again trailed by eight. However, the Bears fouled Buffs junior guard Spencer Dinwiddie – who boasts an 82 percent career free-throw percentage – at the line with 47 seconds remaining. His pair of free throws again cut Baylor's lead to six, but Baylor junior college transfer Kenny Chery answered with a pair of foul shots and CU was all but finished.

Dinwiddie's three-point attempt rimmed out, the Bears corralled the rebound and finished out the game at the free-throw line, sending the Buffs back to Boulder 0-1.

"It's disappointing, but it's not the end of the world," Boyle said. "We have to keep getting better, that's all you can do . . . I just want to play hard, play smart and play together."

The Buffaloes were missing their typical offensive production that has come to be expected from Dinwiddie, Booker and Xavier Johnson. That trio was limited to a combined 28 points on 11-of-37 shooting.

Scott was the bright spot on offense for Colorado as the sophomore finished with a double-double, scoring 15 points and grabbing 11 rebounds. Scott's frontcourt-mate, redshirt freshmen Wesley Gordon, also delivered for the Buffaloes starting in his first career game.

Gordon finished with nine points and eight rebounds, and Boyle classified Gordon's performance as "terrific."

YOUTH FACTOR BIG IN HOME-OPENING WIN

BOULDER – Tad Boyle might be a long way from settling on an eight- or nine-player rotation for his Colorado men's basketball team, but this much is settled: Freshmen will figure prominently in any plan he devises.

That became apparent Sunday afternoon at the Coors Events Center in CU's 91-65 home-opening romp over overmatched UT-Martin. Boyle's quartet of first-year scholarship players – Dustin Thomas, Jaron Hopkins, Tre'Shaun Fletcher and George King – and redshirt freshman Wesley Gordon made key contributions as the Buffs shook any residue from a 72-60 loss two nights earlier to No. 25 Baylor.

"I'm still getting used to the rotations," Boyle said. "I'm not sure we have the rotations yet that we're going to have as the year goes on. But I really like our guys . . . I thought our freshmen really grew tonight and gave us good minutes. It's hard again with the rotations; I'd like to not have three or four (freshmen) on the floor at once, but sometimes there's nothing I can do about that."

And there are times – at least in early November – when it seems like a good idea, provided they contribute as they did Sunday. Four of the Buffs' first-year players combined for 36 points, with Gordon leading that pack with 13 and eight rebounds. He debuted against Baylor with nine points and eight boards.

Thomas and Hopkins scored nine points each, with Hopkins contributing three – tying him for team high – of the Buffs' 19 assists. Fletcher added five points and while King didn't score, he grabbed three rebounds and made one assist in his 5 minutes of court time.

"We got a lot of guys in the rotation and I thought that was good," Boyle said. "We're awfully young, as I've been telling you guys, and I think it showed at times."

CU didn't begin pulling away from UTM, a first-time foe from the Ohio Valley Conference, until sophomore Xavier Johnson hit a three-pointer from the left wing to tie the score at 24-24 with 8:21 left in the first half. That trey ignited a 12-0 Buffs run that eventually went to 19-3 and resulted in a 40-27 advantage – CU's largest of the first half.

UGLY OR NOT, BUFFS FINALLY GET 'W'

BOULDER – Tad Boyle likes it fast, Larry Shyatt likes it slow. The hare finally took down the tortoise Wednesday night, but it was hardly the hoops version of the Indy 500 and it was anything but picturesque.

Boyle's Colorado Buffs, perennial losers to Shyatt's Wyoming Cowboys, encountered nearly night-long difficulty finding offensive consistency. But the Buffs dialed up their defense in the second half, hit their free throws when needed and exited the Coors Events Center with what Boyle labeled a homely 63-58 win.

"If you guys are looking for the definition of the phrase 'winning ugly' I think you saw it tonight," he said afterward. "It wasn't pretty, it wasn't our best effort, but I was really proud of our guys for finding a way down the stretch to win the game."

The Cowboys – staunch believers in low-possession, low-scoring games – had defeated the Buffs six straight times. Payback came Wednesday night, but it didn't come easily for CU, which trailed by 10 points in the first half and got its final seven points on free throws (7-of-12) in the game's last 3:06. The Buffs hit 24-of-34 free throws for the game to the Cowboys' 11-of-15.

Junior Spencer Dinwiddie made five of his eight free throw attempts during the final 3:06, finishing with a team-high 15 points. He was 10-of-13 from the free throw line, taking all of his foul shots in the second half, when the Buffs rallied from a 31-26 deficit at intermission largely on their performance on the defensive end.

Three other Buffs starters backed up Dinwiddie with double-figure scoring efforts – Askia Booker with 14, Xavier Johnson with 13 and Josh Scott with 12. The Buffs outrebounded the Cowboys 35-24, with Scott grabbing nine boards and Dinwiddie adding seven.

With Wyoming switching defenses and forcing CU to attack a zone and get to the free throw line for the bulk of its offense, the Buffs managed only four assists in 40 minutes. It was CU's lowest total since having just two in a 1977 game at Jacksonville in a one-point win. CU's bench was outscored by Wyoming's 16-3, which Boyle attributed in part to his "shortening" his bench in the second half due to most of his top reserves being freshmen.

CU shot 40 percent (18-of-45) for the game but held Wyoming to 38.1 percent (8-of-21) in the second half.

BUFFS RISE & SHINE IN ROUT OF TIGERS

BOULDER – If a 10 a.m. tip time can produce as efficient a start as it did Saturday for the Colorado Buffaloes, more early morning games might shoot to the top of coach Tad Boyle's wish list.

Well, probably not, but there's no denying Boyle's team didn't sleep in. Early on in what was believed to be the earliest tip ever at the Coors Events Center, the Buffs were bright-eyed and dialed in during a 94-70 rout of Jackson State.

"We're used to it," CU guard Askia Booker said of the early start. "We practice at 6:30 (a.m.). I don't know that many other teams do it . . . coach thinks it makes us mentally tough."

Boyle was particularly happy with his team's togetherness and the way the ball was shared. In a tight win against Wyoming three nights earlier, CU managed only four assists. On Saturday morning, the Buffs finished with 23 on 28 field goals – a turnaround that left Boyle pleased and puzzled.

As a coach, it's hard to understand how we go from four to 23 assists," he said. "But the tone was set by Spencer (Dinwiddie) and 'Ski' . . . six-of-10 (shooting) with six assists is the line we want from 'Ski;' he was his old self."

It was Booker's most complete game of the young season, but he disputed the notion that his switch finally was flipped on: "My switch is never off. I got going a little bit and I thank coach Boyle for that. He tells me to be aggressive 24/7, to take shots when I'm open. He wants me to take good shots and I think I did that today. Other than that, my switch is always on."

Boyle called the win "a great team victory and I think our team took a step forward . . . it's one game but it's a positive thing to build on. I'm proud of them for playing together."

Dinwiddie and Booker – CU's starting backcourt – combined for 26 points and had 12 of their team's 23 assists. Booker's six assists were a career high, as were Dinwiddie's six steals. Seven Buffs – the most in the Boyle era – reached double figures, topped by Booker's 15. Xavier Talton and freshman Dustin Thomas scored 13 each, Jaron Hopkins added 12, Dinwiddie and Josh Scott 11 each, and Wesley Gordon had 10.

BUFFS KEEP GROWING, RUN PAST WOLVES

BOULDER – Colorado's young Buffs are growing up, which means an occasional pain or two. For now, it's nothing they can't tolerate but it won't stay that way much longer.

Ebbing and flowing Monday night at the Coors Events Center, CU alternately buried and revived Arkansas State before finally putting down the talented Red Wolves 93-70.

"Obviously, we're happy with a 23-point win," Buffs coach Tad Boyle said. "That was the good news. But I think again, like most games we've played this year, there's a lot of things we can take from this one and learn from and get better from. And I think the thing that stands out for me tonight was defensive intensity."

The Buffs (4-1) led by 18 points at halftime, by 20 in the opening seconds of the second half, then by only eight points with 13:30 remaining.

CU ultimately took control against Arkansas State (2-2), but it took a Spencer Dinwiddie three-pointer with 10:09 to play to restore a double-digit lead (68-56) and allow the Buffs to rediscover how to hit the accelerator.

Dinwiddie, one of four CU players in double figures, had another fine floor game, hitting four of five field goal attempts (two-of-two threes) and three of four free throws for 13 points. He also had a game-high five assists and two steals.

But the Buffs' high-point man was their growing low-post presence, Josh Scott, the 6-10 sophomore. His 20 points were one short of his career high. "They had a 6-7, although he was 250 pounds, and a 6-10 – but they were single-covering me and they weren't digging hard," Scott said. "If you're going to give me that, I'm probably going to score. That's pretty much all I can say about that."

Also in double figures for the Buffs were freshmen George King (11) and Jaron Hopkins (10). Eleven of the 14 CU players in uniform scored, but for the second consecutive game the Buffs were without sophomore forward Xavier Johnson, who also missed Saturday's game against Jackson State after being "dinged" in a late-week practice, according to Boyle.

BUFFS WITHSTAND GAUCHOS' TREY BINGE

BOULDER – The Colorado Buffaloes' perimeter defense has them living on the edge. They survived another three-point barrage Thursday night – this one by UC Santa Barbara – and won 76-68 for their fifth consecutive victory at the Coors Events Center.

But, according to coach Tad Boyle, the Buffs' three-point defense is "officially a deficiency of our team. Maybe I've been in denial . . . if it happens six games in a row, then maybe it's a trend."

Minus leading scorer (24 ppg) and rebounder (13 rpg) Alan Williams – a 6-7, 240-pound inside force – the Gauchos compensated on the perimeter by making 11 of 28 three-point attempts. Seven of the 11 treys left the torrid right hand of reserve guard Taran Brown, who scored a career-high 23 points. He missed only three of his long attempts.

Guard Askia Booker said the Buffs' scouting report on the Gauchos identified Brown "as a shooter . . . but we didn't know he shot like that."

And that didn't sit well with Boyle, who said it's up to his players to trust what they're told on paper and shown on tape. "That's not respecting your opponent," Boyle said. "When you have 'shooter' on the report that means he's a shooter. I don't care if he's starting or coming off the bench."

The Gauchos' 11 treys were one less than the Buffs surrendered in a 91-65 rout of UT-Martin. That lopsided score might have led to Boyle's "denial" of his team's soft three-point defense. But through six games, CU's perimeter defensive percentage has been no better than 33.3 percent (vs. Wyoming).

"We ain't guarding the three-point line," CU guard Spencer Dinwiddie said. "Give credit to them, but most of (their shots) were open."

Any list of Buffs' deficiencies didn't include Dinwiddie, who said he didn't sense a pregame readiness from his teammates and chose to assert himself more than in the previous games. He did, scoring a game-best 24 points that included 14-of-15 made free throws.

The Buffs hit 12 of 14 free throws in the final 3:56, with Dinwiddie sinking nine of 10 in that span.

Said Boyle: "We don't win tonight without Spencer Dinwiddie . . . he was dialed in, aggressive."

The Buffs outrebounded the Gauchos 34-25, made 12 steals – the most this season against UCSB – and forced 17 turnovers – another UCSB high mark.

FURIOUS COMEBACK TURNS CRIMSON RED

BOULDER – Long before Sunday, Tad Boyle had no doubt about the competitive makeup of his Colorado basketball team. When he left the Coors Events Center late Sunday afternoon, his belief had been underscored.

After trailing for almost 35 minutes, the Buffaloes shifted gears offensively and defensively – and, yes, mentally – and overtook previously unbeaten Harvard, 70-62, improving to 50-7 under Boyle at the CEC.

"Our team has fight in it, no doubt," Boyle said. "Our guys found a way . . . we've got competitors in that locker room."

Sunday's second half proved it. Down by 14 points in the opening minute of the final 20, the Buffs (6-1) used a 14-0 run in the last 8:23 to catch and surpass the Crimson (4-1). Sophomore forward Xavier Johnson contributed back-to-back three-pointers in the run, with junior guard Spencer Dinwiddie adding a third and edging the CEC crowd of 9,770 close to delirium.

"The three threes got the crowd going," Boyle said. "Our fans were terrific."

The win was CU's biggest in a six-game November home stand that saw Boyle's four-year record in the month climb to 15-0. "The thing that's so satisfying is how we got it and the team we got it against," Boyle said, citing Crimson coach Tommy Amaker "and what he's done with the Harvard program . . . that's a veteran, well-coached team."

Dinwiddie's 17 points topped four CU players in double figures and further reinforced Boyle's opinion of his 6-6 point guard. "He's playing at a very high level," Boyle said. "Spencer has a good feel for the game; he's a very calming influence our on team. I trust him – but I trust all of our players."

Dinwiddie had scoring help from guard Askia Booker and forward Josh Scott with 12 points each, while Johnson added 11. Harvard also had four players reach double figures, led by Kyle Casey's 13.

It was the second-half board work – especially on the defensive end – of Scott and teammate Wesley Gordon, who grabbed a game-best 11 rebounds apiece, that made a large impression on Boyle in a highly physical game. CU out-rebounded the Ivy League visitors 46-29.

The Buffs also held the Crimson to 23.5 percent shooting from the field in the second half and limited them to one three-pointer after allowing six treys in the first half.

SCOTT SHINES IN HOMECOMING

COLORADO SPRINGS — After more than a year of waiting, Josh Scott finally returned home on Saturday. An afternoon that began with a rousing ovation from the Clune Arena faithful culminated with one of the finest performances of his young career.

The 6-10 sophomore from nearby Monument had 16 points and a season-high 13 rebounds as the Buffs led the Air Force Falcons from wire-to-wire en route to a convincing 81-57 victory. Scott reached his third double-double of the year half way through the second half and then sat for the game's final five minutes while the Buffs coasted to their seventh straight victory.

"It feels good, it's good to show up for the home crowd," said Scott. "I won't lie, so it's nice."

After being held to zero points and just three rebounds for the first 12:17 of the game, Scott sprang off the mat to score 16 points and grab 10 boards over the remainder of the afternoon. His tenacious and spirited play in front of the hometown fans helped break a close game wide open in the second half.

Scott's first bucket came at the 7:43 mark of the first half, as the Buffs were clinging to a tenuous nine-point lead. By the time he scored his final bucket nearly 18 minutes later, the Buffs lead had ballooned to 28 points mostly on the strength of the big man's domination of an undersized and overwhelmed Falcon front court.

"Once I got the ball in the high-post, I was just looking for Josh down low and we executed well," said freshman forward Wesley Gordon.

Scott's play may have been the highlight of the game, but it was an effective CU defense that won it. The Buffs out-rebounded the Falcons 42-25 and forced them into a resounding 18 turnovers as AFA was held to a season-low 57 points. The 57 points were the fewest the Buffs have allowed in a road game since they gave up 47 at Oregon last year.

Despite all of the Air Force mistakes, the turnover issues were far from one-sided. The Buffs turned the ball over nine times themselves in the first half and it was the sloppy play that kept Air Force in the game for more than a half.

BUFFS CLOSE OUT RAMS

FORT COLLINS – Spencer Dinwiddie has little difficulty believing in himself or his game. His lone hang-up – and it's receding by the day, maybe by the hour – is knowing when to turn it up and take over.

Just past the halfway mark of Tuesday's first half in frenetic Moby Arena, Dinwiddie sensed he should be doing both. So he did. Getting help in a second-half stretch run from freshman Jaron Hopkins, Dinwiddie pushed Colorado past rival Colorado State 67-62 for the Buffs eighth consecutive win.

"I'm proud of our guys and Spencer was the big difference," CU coach Tad Boyle said. "He was the best player on the floor and it wasn't even close."

In passing 1,000 points for his career, Dinwiddie finished with a game-best 28 – one off a career-high set in last season's win against CSU in Boulder. But Tuesday night's production might have been more impressive; Dinwiddie scored 19 of his total in the second half as the Buffs were trying to overcome themselves, hit seven of seven second-half free throws (he was 11-of-11 for the night), and scored seven of CU's final nine points.

Redshirt freshman Wes Gordon held CSU's leading scorer, J.J. Avila (19.0), to 16 points, and like Bejarano, Avila didn't do much that wasn't contested by the 6-9 Gordon. Avila needed 19 attempts to make his four field goals.

Boyle called Gordon's defense "terrific" and said the Buffs "battled . . . we made plays when we had to make plays and got stops when we had to get stops. It wasn't a pretty game offensively when you go three for 19 from three (point range). I mean it's tough – and there were some good looks."

Two of CU's three treys came from Hopkins, who scored eight straight points – a steal/stuff, two consecutive threes – in the second half when the Buffs were rallying from a five-point deficit. He finished with 10 points, and teammate Askia Booker added 12 – including a pair of free throws with three seconds to play that sealed CU's first win at Moby Arena since Dec. 22, 2007.

Boyle called Hopkins' steal and slam "the biggest play of the game." And while Hopkins wouldn't go that far, he did concur, "It was pretty big. I read the play; I'm pretty good at reading the plays."

The Buffs handed the Rams their first home loss this season and now have beaten all three Front Range schools – CSU, Air Force, Wyoming – in the same season. That hadn't happened in six previous tries.

BOOKER, BUFFS FIND WAY TO STUN NO. 6 KU

BOULDER – No way for Colorado to beat towering, talented Kansas without 6-9 forward Wes Gordon?

Way.

No way (except maybe at gunpoint) that CU coach Tad Boyle strays from man-to-man defense and utilizes a 2-3 zone?

Way.

No way Coors Events Center matinee idol Ben Mills contributes meaningful first-half minutes against a team like the Jayhawks?

Way.

No way CU shoots nearly as frigid as the Boulder weather – 41.1 percent from the field and 59.5 percent from the foul line – and survives?

Way.

And no way the up, down, often kicked-around Askia Booker delivers the biggest shot of his life?

Way – and way, way past that.

It was CU 75, No. 6 KU 72 at the sold-out, geeked-out CEC on Saturday afternoon. The Buffs (9-1) won their ninth consecutive game for the first time since the 2005-06 season and slapped down a top 10 team for the first time since last Valentine's Day when they blew away (without a kiss) No. 9 Arizona 71-58.

Booker hit three-pointers to close out each half, but it was his 30-footer at the final buzzer that he, his teammates and the crowd of 11,113 will remember for . . . maybe forever.

It had been a decade – or since the 2002-03 season – and 19 games, most of them in another conference, since CU defeated KU, and it was Boyle's first win as a head coach in five tries against his alma mater. The Jayhawks still lead the series 123-40, but as for that 40th Buffs win . . .

"I'm not quite sure what to say after that one . . . it's hard to put in historical perspective," Boyle said about half an hour after CU students had cleared the CEC court and the building had stopped shuddering.

CU's list of Saturday heroes starts with the 6-1 junior guard from Los Angeles but goes upward to the 7-0 Mills, who means every bit as much to his teammates as the Buffs logo. Then add Spencer Dinwiddie (15 points, seven assists), Xavier Johnson (14 points, six rebounds, three steals), Josh Scott (14 points, four boards, two assists) and nearly every other CU player who suited up.

But it was Booker's final trey that shot down the Jayhawks and shut down their fans. With 3 seconds to play and the score tied at 72-72 after KU had erased a nine-point CU lead, Booker got a pressurized inbounds pass from Johnson at the right sidecourt, went three dribbles past halfcourt and pulled up for his jumper heard 'round the Rockies and no doubt deep into the Heartland.

The ball found the net as time expired and Booker, who tied Dinwiddie with a team-best 15 points, found his place in CU hoops history. Was it the biggest shot of his career?

"Without a doubt . . . unless I win an NBA championship, that's it," he said. "I'm not sure I ever thought that would happen. At the same time, I think it's a testament to Coach Boyle and how we go through our late clock plays in practice."

BUFFS OVERCOME ELON (AND THEMSELVES)

BOULDER – Colorado coach Tad Boyle seriously doubted that a post-Kansas hangover reared its head on Friday night and his junior point guard, Spencer Dinwiddie, was even more emphatic.

"Not at all," said Dinwiddie after No. 21 Colorado had finally disposed of Elon University 80-63 at the Coors Events Center. "It's a credit to our team – we move on fast after wins and losses . . . I just don't think we gave (Elon) the respect they deserved and we didn't guard them at the three-point line."

Yet as erratic and simply puzzling as the Buffaloes (10-1) were in several areas – shooting free throws, protecting the ball and defending the long ball to name three – they still won their tenth consecutive game, which hasn't been done in CU basketball in 52 years.

Said Boyle: "It gives you an idea of where our program is when we win by 17 at home and people are kind of disappointed and frustrated. So I guess that's a good sign."

Such is progress, particularly when it follows six days after one of the benchmarks in program history – a 75-72 buzzer-beating victory over then-No. 6 KU. In the wild aftermath of that game, Boyle's message to his team had been: "Don't get drunk on your own wine."

According to Dinwiddie at least, the Buffs took it to heart and head. But on Friday night, CU stumbled around just enough and Elon hit more than enough treys to make Boyle and the CEC crowd of 8,831 occasionally uneasy. The Phoenix' 13 made treys (32 attempts) was an opponent high this season against the Buffs.

Boyle called the Phoenix (5-5) "a good team" that will win its share of games in the Southern Conference. But he also said his team won "a take-care-of-business-game" with a "workmanlike effort" – hardly superlatives after a superlative Saturday against the Jayhawks.

"Some nights it's not going to be as pretty . . . there's still a lot of improvement to be made," Boyle said. "But I thought the cream rose in the second half."

CU's cream on this night: Dinwiddie, Xavier Johnson, Josh Scott and freshman George King. Dinwiddie finished with 17 points, seven assists and six rebounds, while Johnson and Scott each contributed 12 points and had double-doubles. King scored 10 off the bench, helping CU roll to a 31-6 edge in that area, and had a second-half tip-dunk that perked up his team and the crowd.

BUFFS' LATE RALLY FALLS SHORT

LAS VEGAS – Colorado cut a 12-point Oklahoma State lead to four in the final minute, but that's where the Buffaloes' rally and their 10-game winning streak would stop. The No. 7 Cowboys held on for a 78-73 win in the second game of the MGM Grand Showcase.

No. 20 CU (10-2) struggled to get timely stops and had just as much trouble finding an offensive rhythm, and when Phil Forte III drained a long trey just under the 3-minute mark OSU (11-1) had a 73-61 lead.

The Buffs were running out of chances and time, but a 10-2 flurry brought them to within 75-71 on a put-back by Josh Scott with 26 seconds to play.

OSU's Marcus Smart hit a pair of free throws (77-71) with 23.4 seconds remaining but Scott answered with two (77-73) at the 16-second mark. Two seconds later, Forte hit one of two foul shots for the Cowboys' final margin.

"I take the blame for this loss," said CU coach Tad Boyle. "As a coach I didn't do a good job on the sideline. I didn't have our team ready to play tonight for whatever reason. I've got to look myself in the mirror."

In hindsight, Boyle questioned whether he had the Buffs practice as much as necessary during semester finals week which preceded Saturday's game. "That's where I take responsibility as a coach, coming off of finals and we had two practices as a team," he said. "I thought that at this time of the season we could carry over without those lengthy practices through finals; I want to respect our guys as students.

CU junior guard Askia Booker, who finished with a season-high 19 points, disagreed with Boyle shouldering the loss. "I don't think the blame goes on coach Boyle," he said. "He's just tough on himself – just like I am on myself . . . the only thing we maybe could have done better was a have a couple more days of practice."

The Cowboys' 78 points were the most the Buffs have allowed this season. OSU shot 61.9 percent from the field (13-of-21) in the second half and finished at 52.1 percent (25-of-48). CU shot only 40.6 percent from the field (26-of-64). The Buffs outrebounded the Cowboys 41-30 and got 21 second-chance points to the Cowboys' four.

CU ROLLS, SET SCHOOL FT MARK

BOULDER – Ready or not, the Pac-12 Conference schedule is fast approaching – and the Colorado Buffaloes appear ready.

No. 21 CU was perfect at the free throw line – the Buffs set a school record by hitting all 26 of their attempts – imperfect at times elsewhere, but all-in-all good enough on Saturday night to march past Georgia 84-70 at the Coors Events Center.

"I told our team in the locker room, this is a good win against a quality SEC opponent," said Buffs coach Tad Boyle. "These guys are going to win a lot of games in the SEC. They are a talented group, but this is a time for us to exhale for a day."

Rebounding from a 78-73 loss to No. 7 Oklahoma State in Las Vegas that snapped a 10-game winning streak, CU finished its non-conference schedule 11-2 and matched its best start in 34 years.

"To be 11-2 with the caliber of schedule that we played says a lot about this group, and we've got a lot of basketball ahead of us," Boyle said. "Season number one is over with, our nonconference portion is done, and now we are going into an 18-game marathon of the Pac-12. Our league is very good, and we're going to have to be ready mentally, physically, emotionally, spiritually, the whole nine yards."

The individual pride of his players, said Boyle, was responsible for the 26 consecutive free throws, which broke the former school mark of 14-for-14 set in 1980 against Nebraska. The Pac-12 record is 28-for-28 by Washington State (vs. Oregon, 2009), the NCAA record is 34-for-34 (three teams).

He called setting the school record "nice," but added, "In the big picture of things, there might be some games where we're going to want some of those back. That's just basketball."

Josh Scott hit all eight of his free throws on the way to 14 points – he also grabbed 13 rebounds – and guard Spencer Dinwiddie was perfect on his seven foul shots in contributing 17 points. They were among five Buffs in double figures, topped by guard Askia Booker's 19 – 12 of them in the second half. Also in double digits were forwards Wesley Gordon (10) and Xavier Johnson (13).

Johnson scored 11 of his total in the first half when he hit his first three 3-point attempts, enabling the Buffs to go ahead 11-6 and never look back.

SECOND-HALF SURGE EARNS PAC-12 WIN

BOULDER – The launch of Pac-12 Conference play at the Coors Events Center sprang very few surprises on Colorado coach Tad Boyle. The biggest might have been 6-10 Eric Moreland and his 11th hour reinstatement, but Boyle's Buffs eventually adjusted to Moreland's presence, as well as Oregon State's 2-3 zone, and earned a difficult 64-58 win.

"Good win . . . welcome to Pac-12 Conference play," a relieved Boyle said. "Nothing's going to be easy. Anybody who saw the game saw the talent and skill Oregon State has (and) with Moreland back, they're a different animal . . . they just keep coming at you with athletes off the bench."

That's where Moreland, a junior, spent 12 non-conference games, suspended by coach Craig Robinson for a summer violation of team rules. Robinson initially levied a 14-game suspension, but late Wednesday night – on the eve of conference play – announced that Moreland had satisfied whatever was required to return to the court.

The No. 20 Buffs (12-2, 1-0) had prepped for Moreland's backup – 6-10 senior Angus Brandt – but CU post Josh Scott claimed Moreland's unexpected return didn't surprise him: "To be honest I was kind of expecting him to play . . . I don't know why I figured it but I just did."

In three games against CU last season, including a 64-58 win at the CEC that stands as the Buffs' last home loss (Boyle is 54-7 at home), Moreland averaged 10.2 points and 10 rebounds. But his length and athleticism is typical for the Beavers. Said Boyle: "We're not going to win a jumping contest with Oregon State."

And in Thursday night's first half, the Buffs didn't win the rebound battle either. Moreland got eight first-half boards (10 total, with two points) as OSU (8-5, 0-1) out-boarded the Buffs 21-13, marking the first time this season CU has not had a first-half rebounding edge. But after a "come to Tad" halftime address, the Buffs regained their intensity and out-rebounded the Beavs 21-13 in the second half. That might have made Oregon State's 37-34 edge for the night a little more palatable for Boyle.

His team held the visitors to 37.5 percent from the field – OSU arrived shooting 50 percent – and converted 17 OSU turnovers into 25 points. Those numbers, bolstered by the Buffs' nine steals, helped them overcome a mediocre shooting night; CU finished 38.2 percent from the field (21-of-55) and hit only five of its 20 3-point attempts.

BOOKER, DINWIDDIE PROPEL CU PAST DUCKS

BOULDER – Colorado's pair of stellar junior guards – Askia Booker and Spencer Dinwiddie – took control Sunday afternoon, alternately pushing and pulling the No. 20 Buffs to a 100-91 Pac-12 Conference win over No. 10 Oregon at the raucous Coors Events Center.

CU improved to 13-2 (2-0 Pac-12), matching the program's best start since the 1968-69 season. The Buffs have now won five of six meetings and four straight against the Ducks since joining the Pac-12 and are unbeaten (5-0 all time, 3-0 Pac-12) against Oregon at the CEC, where fourth-year coach Tad Boyle is an imposing 55-7.

"That was a high-level basketball game, a treat for anybody in the building," Boyle said. "It's a special win because of the respect we have for (coach) Dana Altman and the Oregon program."

Booker, who scored a career-high 27 points, and Dinwiddie (23) combined for 50 points as the Buffs overcame a 10-point second-half deficit and disposed of the previously unbeaten Ducks (13-1, 1-1).

CU's prized backcourt duo was golden in nearly everything they touched: Booker hit 10-of-12 free throws, Dinwiddie sank 10-of-11 and they combined for 11 of CU's 14 assists. Between them, they were four-of-seven from beyond the arc, with Dinwiddie going three-for-four.

"It's pretty simple," said Dinwiddie, who played 37 minutes to Booker's 36 and declined Boyle's offers for second-half breaks. "When 'Ski 'plays really well, we play really well. We kind of go as he goes . . . when he's up, we are one good team."

Booker called his and Dinwiddie's combined productivity "wonderful" and said of his backcourt mate: "I think he's probably the best point guard I've played with . . . it's nice to have somebody like that on my side and know I can trust him."

Boyle said when his starting guards are dialed in on the same afternoon, the Buffs are not only hard to handle but fun to observe – especially when an opponent enters the CEC with up-and-down intentions: "I wish every team that came into Coors wanted to run . . . that's the way we want to play. It's fun to watch, it's fun to play, it's fun to coach. Yeah, it was fun today."

CU also got double-figure scoring from Josh Scott and Xavier Johnson, who contributed 15 points each.

BUFFS EDGE PAST COUGARS IN OT

SPOKANE, Wash. - The Colorado Buffaloes hit the Pac-12 road for the first time on Wednesday night and the road almost hit back.

No. 15 CU escaped Spokane Arena with a 71-70 overtime win over Washington State to improve to 14-2 overall and remain unbeaten (3-0) in the Pac-12. The Buffs' 14-2 record matches their best start since the 1968-69 season.

For 40 minutes, the task of earning their first conference road win of the season seemed bleak, but in the five extra minutes that mattered most the Buffaloes came away with the victory.

"[Washington State] dictated the tempo, we let them dictate the tempo, we were soft defensively," Colorado head coach Tad Boyle said. "We did what we had to do down the stretch to get the win, and for that I'm proud, but I am not proud of this performance."

Sophomore Josh Scott scored eight of his team high 19 points in overtime as CU finally pulled away from WSU (7-8, 0-3). Scott also collected nine rebounds, barely missing his sixth consecutive double-double. Junior guard Askia Booker scored 18 points and sophomore forward Xavier Johnson added 14.

The Buffs hit five of eight free throws - four by Booker, one by Spencer Dinwiddie - in the final 37.2 seconds of the extra period but had to withstand a pair of treys by the Cougars that brought them to within one point with 1.5 seconds to play.

"We didn't play very well, I think that's pretty obvious, but I'm proud we pulled it out," Scott said. "I think our team had a little realization that we are the No. 15 team in the country and people are going to make tough shots, we were lucky to pull this one out."

Hit tough shots, the Cougars did. Junior guard Dexter Kernish-Drew led all scorers with 24 points, including an unbelievable performance from beyond the arc, hitting 6-of-8 3-pointers. As a team, Washington State hit 13-of-23 shots (56.5 percent) from deep, matching Elon for the most threes hit by a CU opponent this season.

Colorado was able to overcome the Cougars' hot shooting by getting to the free throw line. The Buffs shot 38 freebies, connecting on 26 of them, while WSU only shot three free throws the entire night.

"We were not ready to play from the get-go, we came out flat and there is no excuse for it," Boyle said. "We dodged a bullet tonight."

HUSKIES SCORCH BUFFS; DINWIDDIE INJURED

SEATTLE – The Colorado Buffaloes suffered their first Pac-12 Conference defeat on Sunday afternoon – 71-54 to Washington – but they left for Boulder hoping they hadn't absorbed a larger loss.

The No. 15 Buffs (14-3, 3-1) appeared to dictate the pace for much of the first half at Alaska Airlines Arena, leading by as many as seven points. But they struggled to find a rhythm after losing junior guard Spencer Dinwiddie to a knee injury with 2:51 left in the half.

Dinwiddie finished with 7 points and 1 assist in 15 minutes. Speaking with reporters after the game, CU coach Tad Boyle expressed concern over the injury to CU's leading scorer.

"My gut says it's not good, but we'll see," Boyle said. "If he's out, he's out. I feel so bad for the kid because he's worked so hard, but we'll have to wait and see."

CU, still off to its best start since the 2005-06 season, had no answer for UW's C.J. Wilcox. He finished with a game and career-high 31 points on 12-of-18 shooting and was deadly from downtown. The senior guard hit seven three-pointers, including five in the second half, to put the game out of reach.

"Every time he shoots it, you think it's going in," Boyle said. "He's got such a good stroke a good release and he gets it off quickly. A guy who plays without the ball like that is pretty special."

Colorado committed a season-high 20 turnovers and shot just 1-for-12 (.083) from beyond the arc. Josh Scott, who has now scored in double figures in eight consecutive games, paced the Buffs with 15 points.

"The second half, boy we shot ourselves in the foot. You turn the ball over 20 times against a good team and you've got six assists, it's just a recipe for disaster," Boyle said. "They're a good team and they've got good players and they're playing well right now."

Wesley Gordon, who finished with a season-high 13 rebounds and 11 points, collected 11 boards in the first half en route to posting his first career double-double. Said Scott of Dinwiddie's loss: "He's our point guard, our floor general. When he isn't there, it's a big-time deal. I think everybody knows when he's not playing or if he doesn't play, it's a big deal. Again, I don't think we can put this on Spencer being out. I think this one's on us that played, because we have the talent.

BRUINS DEAL BUFFS FIRST HOME LOSS

BOULDER – Until they adjust to life without Spencer Dinwiddie, little will come easy for the Colorado Buffaloes, even on their home court.

No. 25 UCLA made that clear, defeating CU 69-56 and dealing the No. 21 Buffs their first loss in 12 games this season at the Coors Events Center.

UCLA became the only Pac-12 Conference team to win twice at the CEC in CU's Tad Boyle era. Boyle's home record in 3 1/2 seasons is 55-8, but the Buffs are 0-3 against the Bruins since joining the Pac-12 Conference in 2011.

Boyle refused to blame the loss on the absence of Dinwiddie, CU's junior floor leader and scoring leader who suffered a season-ending knee injury last Sunday at Washington that will require surgery.

Dinwiddie watched from the CU bench wearing an elastic sleeve on his left leg. Also watching was freshman Tre'Shaun Fletcher, who is out 6-8 weeks with a knee injury.

"That was a winnable basketball game," Boyle said. "We're disappointed with the way played (but) if we learned anything, it's that we're going to be OK . . . do not count this team out, guys, do not count us out."

The Buffs (14-4, 3-2) went nearly 9 minutes in the second half without a field goal, helping the Bruins (14-3, 3-1) fashion a 12-point lead. CU closed to within seven points – 58-51 – in the final 3:22, but the Buffs' threat ended there.

Boyle called adjusting to Dinwiddie's departure "a work in progress . . . the reality is, it will (take time) but we've got guys who are capable of playing better. I believe in them, they know that.

"It's going to be a process; we lost a pretty key component of our team – two of them in fact . . . but this was a winnable game. We had a shot, we just didn't do what we needed to do."

Askia Booker led CU with 21 points and Josh Scott added 19 points, a team-best nine rebounds and three blocks. Booker called playing without his friend and backcourt mate Dinwiddie "rough, but at the same time, we don't have him anymore (and) we can't be sorry for ourselves ... Josh and I are going to have to step up."

UCLA had three players in double figures, topped by Norman Powell's 19. Jordan Adams collected a double-double (14 points, 13 rebounds) and David Wear chipped in 11 points.

BUFFS' BLOCK PARTY SETS TONE

BOULDER – Any lingering memories of the Colorado Buffaloes' painful loss on Thursday night to UCLA – their first home defeat of the 2013-14 season – were quickly blocked out on Saturday.

Literally, forcefully, fervently.

Swatting away seven first-half shots and setting a pedal-to-the-metal pace that produced an early 20-2 lead, No. 21 CU slapped Southern California 83-62 at the Coors Events Center.

"This was just what the doctor ordered for this team . . . this was the kind of game we needed," CU coach Tad Boyle said, noting the timing of the win couldn't have been better after the 69-56 loss to UCLA and knee injuries last weekend that ended point guard Spencer Dinwiddie's junior season and shelved freshman wing Tre'Shaun Fletcher for 6-8 weeks. Both players will undergo surgery.

"Our team took what they had not done against UCLA and did a much better job. Obviously it's one game, we have to move on. I said this after the UCLA game and I'll say it again, 'Don't count this team out.' These guys have toughness, they have grit, and we can win some games in this league. All you can ask for in life is an opportunity and we have a great one in front of us."

But needing a win Saturday to break a current two-game losing streak and maybe reestablish some of their swagger, the Buffs did both against the Trojans – obviously a right-place, right-time opponent.

Still, junior guard Askia Booker, one of four Buffs (15-4, 4-2) in double figures Saturday, kept the 21-point blowout in perspective.

"We can't get drunk off of this win," he said. "USC is pretty low in the (Pac-12) standings and we're about to go play the No. 1 team in the country. We have to stay locked in as a team."

The Buffs (15-4 overall, 4-2 Pac-12) finished Saturday with a season-high 10 blocked shots – six shy of the school record – and held the Trojans (9-9, 0-5) to 36 percent shooting from the field while hitting 50.9 percent of their own shots.

CU outrebounded the visitors by 20 (43-23), with redshirt freshman Wesley Gordon collecting a game-high eight rebounds and accounting for five of the Buffs' blocked shots.

BUFFS FALL BEHIND EARLY, FALL AT UA

TUCSON – The Colorado Buffaloes left Arizona's McKale Center last season doubting they'd lost. The top-ranked Wildcats allowed no room for doubt on Thursday night.

Leading by as many as 20 points midway through the second half, Arizona disposed of CU 69-57, sending the Buffs to their third defeat in their last four Pac-12 Conference games. It was also CU's fourth loss in six games against ranked opponents this season and its 16th all-time loss (no wins) against a top-ranked foe.

CU will try and salvage this season's trip to the desert with a 5 p.m. game on Saturday at Arizona State.

The Wildcats (19-0, 6-0) led 39-24 at halftime and posted their first 20-point lead (51-31) on a reverse dunk by freshman Aaron Gordon with 15:02 to play. But the Buffs (15-5, 4-3) kept battling and came as close as 11 (66-55) on an Askia Booker layup with 1:15 remaining.

"We did a good job of battling back, even in the first half we cut it to six, but we couldn't get over the hump. They are an explosive team," CU coach Tad Boyle said on KOA Radio. "There are some positive things we can take from this, but we have to be a better offensive executing team on the road . . . but when you leave a game like this, you have to focus on the positives. We won the second half (33-30) and that's a sign of progress."

Arizona, allowing a conference-best 56.7 points a game, held CU to its lowest point total of the season. Baylor defeated the Buffs 72-60 in the season opener.

The talented Gordon, who scored 12 points, was one of three Wildcats in double figures. Nick Johnson led Arizona with 18 and Brandon Ashley added 15, including seven of the Wildcats' first 11 points as they raced to an 11-2 lead.

Xavier Johnson led CU with 21 points – one off his career high – and got assistance from Josh Scott (15 points, 11 rebounds) and Booker (11 points). Scott's double-double was his ninth of the season and fourth in Pac-12 play.

Johnson made four of his five 3-point attempts and all three of his free throw tries. "X. Johnson plays well against these guys," Boyle said. "There's something about it; he's amped for these guys, but we need that every time."

CU committed 16 turnovers, leading to 23 Arizona points, while the Buffs got only 11 points from seven Wildcats turnovers – and Boyle called the Buffs' 16 miscues "the tale of the game . . . they got 24 layups, we want that number to be seven or less. And they had 24."

BUFFS' OFFENSE SPUTTERS AGAIN

TEMPE, ARIZ. – After struggling early in a Thursday night loss at No. 1 Arizona, Colorado's difficulties in the desert continued as Arizona State rolled to a 72-51 Pac-12 Conference win.

Minus point guard Spender Dinwiddie and wing Tre'Shaun Fletcher now for four complete games, the Buffaloes were held to season-low point totals in Tucson and Tempe. Their 57 points against Arizona – the Wildcats had 69 – had been their lowest output of the season until Saturday night.

"This was just a bad game overall," head coach Tad Boyle said. "There was nothing we can point to that we can even look at as a positive. The message to the team after the game was that it's never as good as it seems when things are going well, and it's never as bad as it seems after days like this."

The loss was the Buffs' fourth in their past five games, dropping them to 15-6 overall and 4-4 in the conference. The Sun Devils (15-5, 4-3) led 34-23 at halftime and put the game away with a 17-6 run to open the second half. For the game, the Buffs shot only 42.6 percent (20-of-47) from the field.

ASU beat CU for the third consecutive time and now lead the overall series 5-4. The Sun Devils were the only Pac-12 team to sweep the Buffs last season – winning 65-56 in Tempe and 63-62 in overtime in Boulder.

Xavier Johnson, who led the Buffs with 21 points at Arizona, paced CU with 12 points Saturday. Josh Scott added 11 points and seven rebounds, and Askia Booker contributed 10 and went over 1,000 points for his career.

Booker is the second Colorado player to surpasse the point total this season as Spencer Dinwiddie did so when he scored 28 points against CSU on Dec. 3.

ASU guard Jahii Carson joined Booker in the 1,000 point club – surpassing the milestone in only his second season – after leading the Sun Devils with 18 points on Saturday night. Jonathan Gilling added 12 points, shooting a perfect 4-for-4 from 3-point range.

qThe Sun Devils' 7-foot-2 center, Jordan Bachinski, finished with three blocks (15 in three games vs. CU) and is now only 10 blocks away from breaking the Pac-12 record held by Anthony Cook (Arizona 1985-89).

BUFFS TOUGHEN UP, DISPOSE OF UTES IN OT

BOULDER – It was the kind of game that Tad Boyle had challenged his team to win – down-and-dirty, back-and-forth, blink-and-you're-done.

Boyle's Colorado Buffaloes didn't blink. Never considered it either. Down 12 points in the second half, the Buffs caught Utah, got caught by a late Utes 3-pointer, then mustered enough want-to to win 79-75 in overtime Saturday at the Coors Events Center.

"Holy cow," Boyle said afterwards. "We needed that one bad and our guys responded . . . because of what we've been through, it doesn't matter who you are, you need to win your games at home and hold serve. We dropped one already (to UCLA) we'd love to have back. But it doesn't work that way so this was a big game for us."

Losers in four of their previous five games without Spencer Dinwiddie and Tre'Shaun Fletcher, the Buffs needed step-up performances from stand-in players and command performances from their veterans. Finally, the afternoon came together on both fronts.

CU (16-6 overall, 5-4) had five players in double figures – four of them starters and two of those (Xavier Johnson, Josh Scott) finishing with double-doubles. Scott scored a game-high 20 points and tied Johnson, who scored 11, with a game-best 10 rebounds. Forward Wesley Gordon added 12 points and six rebounds as the Buffs blasted the Utes on the boards, 42-24.

CU was no less productive in the backcourt, with guards Askia Booker and Xavier Talton combining for 32 points. Booker's stat line was near staggering: 18 points, eight rebounds, seven of the Buffs' 13 assists, 7-of-10 from the free throw line and one steal.

But it was Talton who might have been the Buffs' biggest force. Scoring a career-high 14 points, the sophomore from Sterling hit back-to-back 3-pointers during a 14-2 second-half run that brought CU back from its 12-point deficit. He also opened the OT scoring with another trey – he was four-of-five from beyond the arc – as the Buffs finally put away the Utes (14-7, 3-6).

Talton, who with an angry cut under his left eye looked as if he'd gone 10 rounds in the ring rather than 22 minutes on the court, said he'd never experienced such a game – "Not on both ends. I think everybody just found me and I was feeling more confident. Just being in the gym this last week we talked about competing . . . we've been in the guy shooting a lot, so I think that's something that's helped out."

BUFFS HOLD ON FOR 'W'

BOULDER – The Colorado Buffaloes and junior guard Askia Booker opened the second half on the run and appeared ready to race past Washington State on Wednesday night. Not so fast, said the Cougars' DaVonte Lacy.

The Buffs held on – far from tightly – for a 68-63 Pac-12 Conference win that was secured – but barely – at the foul line in the final 1:05. CU hit only 8 of 14 free throws during that span, but Booker's 6 of 8 – including a pair with 2 seconds remaining – kept the Buffs afloat.

"A win's a win," said CU coach Tad Boyle, "especially in conference play. But it was not pretty, especially at the end. Obviously we have to finish better and that puts a bit of a damper on this win."

With Lacy hitting 21 of his game-high and career-high 34 points in the second half – including five of his eight 3-pointers – WSU cut a 19-point CU lead to three (66-63) before Booker's final pair of foul shots.

"We had a 19-point lead and gave it up," said Booker, whose 26 points was one off his career high. "We took it down to the last second. We can't let it get to that point. It seemed like we didn't have enough energy towards the end and we can't do that Sunday because that team is a lot better and will come in and finish us off."

"That team" is Washington, which defeated CU 71-54 in Seattle last month and visits the Events Center Sunday.

Booker scored 15 of his total as the Buffs (17-6, 6-4) increased a three-point halftime lead to 50-33 with 8:25 to play, then to 54-35 less than 2 minutes later. But Lacy, who didn't play in CU's 71-70 overtime win in Spokane on Jan. 8, and the Cougars (9-13, 2-8) roared back with their shooting behind the arc.

They attempted 15 treys in the second half, hitting nine of them (60 percent) and finishing 13-of-27 for the game (48.1 percent). The Cougars' 13 made 3-pointers tied their total in the first meeting and Elon's output for the most by a CU opponent this season.

Boyle said the Buffs defended Que Johnson well (he made 2 of 11 field goals and finished with eight points) but faltered on Lacy. "Not so much on him," Boyle said. "When you're eight for 13 on threes, that's not good enough (defense)."

CU's Xavier Johnson backed up Booker with 20 points – they were the only two Buffs in double figures – and Johnson's nine rebounds and Wesley Gordon's 10 picked up the slack for a sub-par Josh Scott. CU's leading scorer (14.4 ppg) and rebounder (9.1 rpg) didn't get his first point or board until the game's final half minute.

BUFFS' BALANCED SCORING STIFLES UW

BOULDER – Colorado overpowered Washington 91-65 on Sunday night at the Coors Events Center, capping a crucial three-game home stand with its third consecutive win and its second-largest margin of victory since joining the Pac-12 Conference.

The night quickly turned into all Buffs all the time, and coach Tad Boyle called it "as complete of a performance by our team that we've had in a long time. When you defend and you rebound and you shoot the way we did, it's a recipe for a runaway win.

"I'm really proud of our guys, they played together . . . we had 18 assists, it's been a long time since we've had that number, we really shared the ball and played inside-out. Great individual performances and a great team performance."

The win gave the Buffaloes their second three-game Pac-12 winning streak of the season. They opened 3-0, then lost Spencer Dinwiddie and Tre'Shaun Fletcher during a 71-54 defeat at UW and dropped four of their next five games.

But on Sunday night, CU (18-6, 7-4) in no way resembled the team that last month slipped badly in Seattle. Getting an air-tight defensive effort on UW sharpshooter C.J. Wilcox and 20-point scoring performances from three players, the Buffs rolled to a 48-33 halftime lead and led by as many as 30 points (89-59) in winning for the 15th time (against one loss) at the CEC this season. Their 15 home wins are the second-best for a CU team; the 2010-11 Buffs went 18-2.

Xavier Johnson, Josh Scott and Askia Booker accounted for 68 of CU's total, with Johnson scoring a career-high 27, Scott tying a career high with 21 (10 rebounds for his 11th double-double of the season) and Booker adding 20.

"Those guys just picked it up," said UW coach Lorenzo Romar. "All three of them picked up the slack for what they didn't have. I don't think (their length inside) bothered us much. Not as much as it did the first time. It bothered us the first time we played them although Josh Scott is a very good player and shot blocker and defender."

A trio of Buffs reaching 20 points hadn't happened since Feb. 3, 2007 when Kal Bay (21), Dominique Coleman (20) and Richard Roby (20) all reached the 20-point mark against Oklahoma State.

BUFFS FALTER IN SECOND HALF

LOS ANGELES – Colorado battled gallantly for a half and a little bit beyond here Thursday night at Pauley Pavilion. But the second 20 minutes were all UCLA as the Bruins overran the Buffaloes 92-74, halting CU's Pac-12 Conference winning streak at three.

Up 40-36 at halftime, CU was victimized by UCLA's 3-point shooting in a dizzying 56-point Bruins second half. UCLA (19-5, 8-3) won for the fifth time in six games while CU (18-7, 7-5) lost for a fifth consecutive time to the Bruins and remains winless (0-6) in L.A.

"We weren't good enough in the second half, obviously," said CU coach Tad Boyle. "We knew at halftime that we were in the game because we were making shots – we were pretty efficient offensively. Our defense wasn't good enough all night long, and you guys know it's about defensive rebounding. When we hit those numbers that we did against Washington the results take care of themselves."

But in most categories Thursday night, the Buffs lost the numbers game to the Bruins. UCLA finished the game 11-of-22 from beyond the arc, including 8-of-12 (66.7 percent) in the second half. The Bruins shot 56.5 percent from the field for the night while the Buffs finished at 45.9 percent. UCLA also won the board battle by 10 (37-27) and converted 12 CU turnovers into 15 points.

"UCLA just shot the lights out in the second half," Boyle said. "They executed, we didn't get stops when we had to, they shot the three-ball well, and our defense wasn't good enough and we got out-rebounded by 10. UCLA is a good team, and they pose some matchup problems for us . . . but It hurts when you know you played good enough for 20 minutes to win a game, but we have to play for 40. Some of that credit goes towards UCLA, they're a good basketball team and they played well tonight and they made shots."

CU had four players in double figures, led by Josh Scott's 20, while Askia Booker added 16 points and a career-high 12 assists for his first career double-double. Xavier Johnson contributed 14 points and nine rebounds, and Xavier Talton scored 10 points.

Five Bruins, meanwhile, reached double figures, topped by Kyle Anderson's 22 points and a career-high 11 assists. Jordan Adams (17), Bryce Alford (14), Travis Wear (13) and Norman Powell (10) were UCLA's other double-digit scorers – but Alford's second-half productivity separated him from that quartet.

BALANCE ATTACK SINKS USC

LOS ANGELES – After playing a forgettable second half in a loss at UCLA on Thursday, Colorado responded with 40 mostly solid minutes of basketball and an 83-74 victory over Southern California on Sunday night at the Galen Center.

The Buffaloes (19-7, 8-5 Pac-12) finished with five players scoring in double-figures, led by Xavier Johnson with 20 points and Askia Booker with 18. It was the third time in the last four games Johnson has scored 20 points or more.

The Buffs' other double-figure scorers were Josh Scott (17 points, 8 rebounds), Xavier Talton (14 points, 7 rebounds) and Jaron Hopkins (10 points, 4 assists). CU is now 5-0 on the season when five players score 10 or more points in a game.

"Our offense has gotten a lot better in the last couple weeks," Colorado head coach Tad Boyle told KOA Radio 850. "But, our defense and our rebounding are going to carry us and if we don't get that right – doesn't matter if we are playing at home or on the road – you better have those things in check."

Booker also contributed eight rebounds, six of his team's 18 assists and a pair of steals in 34 minutes. He also committed six of the Buffs' 17 turnovers, which cost CU 15 points.

But all-in-all, CU was efficient offensively, finishing at 50 percent from the field (28-of-56) and making 8-of-17 3-pointers (47.1 percent). Said Boyle: "We obviously have gotten better offensively. We're functioning as a group and really sharing the ball. It was a great effort by our team offensively."

The Buffs gained their largest lead of the game after a Scott dunk that put them up 72-54 with 4:38 remaining in the contest. But as the game came to a close USC found second-chance opportunities that allowed the Trojans to creep back in.

Trailing by as many as 18 points in the second half, USC (10-15, 1-11) was able to rally late and got to within eight with 28.5 seconds remaining but came no closer. The Trojans were led by Byron Wesley, who finished with 21 points and 8 rebounds. CU forced USC into 17 turnovers, 12 of them in the first half as CU fashioned an 11-point lead.

BUFFS GRIND OUT 61-52 WIN OVER ASU

BOULDER – Tad Boyle cringes at the mention of revenge as a motivator, but he probably doesn't object to pay-back. His Colorado Buffaloes got that (and maybe just a little revenge) at the Coors Events Center, out-gutting and out-grinding Arizona State, 61-52.

CU's win broke a three-game Pac-12 Conference losing streak to ASU and gave Boyle's fourth Buffs team its fourth 20-win season – a school-record. The Buffs (20-7, 9-5) now have back-to-back 20-win regular seasons and improved to 60-8 at the CEC under Boyle, including 16-1 this season with only No. 4 Arizona remaining on the home schedule.

Boyle was noticeably dialed in and demonstrative in front of his bench.

"I'm tired of losing to these guys, number one, and number two, I knew what was at stake," he said. "They're a physical team and you'd better buck up and be physical back, otherwise they'll punk you. I wanted to make sure I was dialed in. I feel that way every game. I may not show it every game, but I wanted our fans to know and our players to know how important this game was – and I think they really fed off it."

He called the grueling win "great for our program and it came at a very instrumental time in our season . . . our guys stepped up and our crowd was fantastic for a 9 p.m. tipoff. I can't be more thankful and my hat goes off to them . . . now we need them one more time – Saturday."

If pay-back was on someone else's mind beside Boyle, it was Josh Scott. In a low-post entanglement last season with ASU's 7-2 Jordan Bachynski, CU's 6-10 Scott was flung to the court and suffered a concussion. The Buffs lost 63-62 in overtime.

Wednesday night was day-and-night different. The energized Scott was the banger, Bachynski the bangee. Scott got his 11th double-double of the season – 13 points, 13 rebounds as CU out-boarded ASU 48-27 – and held Bachynski to four points and three rebounds.

"Josh takes this matchup personal," Boyle said. "What went on here last year in this building, we didn't like it, we didn't appreciate it and he hadn't forgotten about it. Neither had I. And I don't think our fans had either. I'm proud of Josh, he's a battler; I'll take that guy any day of the week."

ARIZONA SURGE PAST CU IN CEC FINALE

BOULDER – Arizona started fast and finished faster Saturday night at the Coors Events Center, spoiling Colorado's Senior Night and a day of ESPN College GameDay hoopla with an 88-61 romp past the Buffaloes.

It was CU's worst home loss of the four-year Tad Boyle era, surpassing a 74-50 defeat by Stanford in 2012, and only the second Buffs loss in 18 games this season at the CEC.

It also was a night of firsts for the No. 4 Wildcats (25-2, 12-2), who won for the first time in Boulder since 1973 and swept CU for the first time since the Buffs became members of the Pac-12 Conference in 2011.

"It was a disappointing performance by our team and I have to look square in the mirror on that," Boyle said. "As their coach, I didn't do a very good job tonight."

The Buffs (20-8, 9-6) go on the road for their final three regular-season games, traveling to Utah on Saturday, then wrapping up at Stanford (Wednesday, March 5) and California (Saturday, March 8). The Pac-12 Tournament is March 12-15 in Las Vegas, and Boyle might need that long to digest this weekend's letdown.

After crediting Arizona for its performance, he reflected on the magnitude of the night and the depth of the disappointment. The Wildcats, he said, "whipped us in every which way you can whip a team . . . our fans were so ready for this game, this win; we gave them nothing. That's a sick feeling to go home and live with. I don't know what to say.

"I haven't been embarrassed many times as a coach, but I was embarrassed by the way my team played . . . we have to own it and accept it. The pit in my stomach has more to do with our fans and seniors. They deserve more (but) we deserve what we got tonight."

CU has but two seniors – center Ben Mills and guard Beau Gamble. Mills made his first career start, played 7 minutes total and closed out the Buffs' scoring with the first trey of his career. Gamble made his first appearance of the night in the final 3 minutes, entering the game with the Wildcats leading 78-53.

After trailing by as many as 17 points in the first half, CU cut Arizona's lead to 31-26 at the half and to 37-33 early in the second half. But the talented Wildcats answered with a 14-6 run that put them ahead 51-39 and effectively put the game away with just over 12 minutes remaining.

SECOND-HALF DOLDRUMS CONTINUE

SALT LAKE CITY – For the Colorado men's basketball team, the start of second halves has become the beginning of the end. The Buffaloes' all-too-familiar script for failure played out again Saturday in a 75-64 Pac-12 Conference loss to Utah.

After a 30-30 halftime tie, the Utes outscored the Buffs 15-2 to open the second half and take a 45-32 lead. But that was a mere continuation of the last stages of the first 20 minutes. Over those final 4-plus minutes and the first 7-plus of the second half, Utah outscored its visitors from the other side of the Rockies 23-2.

And Senior Day at the Jon M. Huntsman Center was all but a wrap.

"Right now second halves are baffling when it comes to the Buffs," coach Tad Boyle said. "This is three out of the last four games when you go back to UCLA . . . same way. They just had their way with us offensively in the second half – Arizona and now Utah. It happens once you think, OK, maybe somebody got hot, it's an aberration. But it's not . . . we've got to look at ourselves in the mirror and understand that right now we're not good enough in the second half defensively."

In an 88-61 home loss to No. 4 Arizona last weekend, the Buffs allowed the Wildcats to shoot 84.9 percent from the field in the second half. Saturday, the Utes made 70.8 percent of their second-half field goal attempts. Utah also outrebounded CU by three after losing the board battle by 18 in Boulder in the Buffs' 79-75 overtime win.

Boyle called that a "big swing," but pointed to porous defense as a culprit for even the slightest board advantage. "There's not a lot of rebounds to be had," he said. "That's why it gets down to defense. When you're taking the ball out of the net 70 or 85 percent of the time – holy cow, you better be making a lot of shots. I don't think there's an offense out there in college basketball to overcome those numbers."

The Buffs (20-9, 9-7) closed to within nine points twice in the final 10 minutes Saturday but came no closer as the Utes (19-9, 8-8) improved to 18-2 at home this season. The Utes have now won 21 of 24 at the Huntsman Center dating to last season.

CU had two players in double figures – Josh Scott with 17 and Xavier Johnson with 10. Askia Booker finished with four points, a pair of first-half free throws and one field goal in the second half.

BUFFS WITHSTAND CARDINAL RALLY

STANFORD, Calif. – After back-to-back losses, the Colorado men's basketball team got the win it desperately needed, holding on to defeat Stanford 59-56 in a game that could prove critical as March Madness looms.

CU (21-9, 10-7 Pac-12) withstood a Stanford comeback at Maples Pavilion and made free throws down the stretch to pick up its 21st regular season victory, matching the 1996-97 team for the best in school history.

"Getting a victory like this on the road is huge for our team," CU coach Tad Boyle said on KOA Radio 850. "This team has an opportunity to set itself apart from any other team in the University of Colorado basketball history."

Securing the win, Boyle continued, "wasn't easy. Our defense played good enough to keep us in the game until our offense got back going."

Leading 46-38 after a jumper by Askia Booker with 14:15 to play, the Buffaloes watched the Cardinal (18-11, 9-8) come back to tie the game at 46-46. CU didn't score again until Xavier Johnson's jump shot with 5:59 remaining produced a 48-46 lead. A 13-2 run briefly gave Stanford a late lead, but CU refused to wilt.

"This was a big win for us," said Johnson, one of two Buffs in double figures with 14 points. "For us to go nine minutes without scoring and still come out with the victory means that we've made great progress as a team."

Josh Scott led CU with 17 points and 11 rebounds, posting his 12th double-double and 14th of his career.

Chasson Randle dominated for Stanford, scoring a game-high 24 points on 9-for-18 shooting from the field, while teammate Josh Huestis added nine points.

CU had an eight point lead in the second half until Randle single-handedly brought the Cardinal back. In its 13-2 run, Randle accounted for 10 points, including a 7-0 run of his own.

The Buffs refused to crumble, answering with a 7-0 run capped by a Xavier Talton 3-pointer to take a 55-51 lead. However, Randle answered again with a conventional three-point play to bring Stanford within one (55-54) with 1:17 remaining.

With 45 seconds left, CU committed a shot-clock violation, giving Stanford possession. The Cardinal again looked to Randle for the lead but Booker stripped him of the ball and then connected on 1-of-2 free throws after being fouled.

After a Stanford 3-point attempt rimmed out, Scott came away with the rebound, then gave the Buffs a four-point lead by hitting two free throws. Talton was the last Buff to go to the free throw line, making one of two and putting CU up 59-56. Randle had one last chance to be Stanford's hero, but his final trey attempt was off the mark.

BUFFS COME UP SHORT IN OT

BERKELEY, Calif. – In a game that featured most of the emotions of March Madness, the Colorado Buffaloes ended the regular season in despair, falling to California 66-65 in overtime on Saturday at the Haas Pavilion.

A CU victory would have secured a top four seed and a first-round bye in next week's Pac-12 Tournament in Las Vegas. But the Buffs became one of five teams finishing 10-8 in conference play – joining Cal, Oregon, Arizona State and Stanford.

No. 5 seed CU will play USC, the No. 12 seed, in the first round (Wednesday, 3:30 p.m. MDT). The top four seeds, in order, are Arizona, UCLA, ASU and Cal.

CU (21-10) held Cal (19-12) without a field goal in Saturday's extra 5 minutes, but the Golden Bears survived by making seven of nine free throws, with Justin Cobbs' final pair giving Cal its one-point lead with 20.8 seconds left in OT.

After Xavier Talton missed from the left wing, Cal's Tyrone Wallace was fouled and missed the front end of a one-and-one with 4.5 seconds remaining, giving CU one final shot. The Bears escaped with the win when Askia Booker's potential buzzer beater was off the mark.

The Bears missed their final three field goal attempts in regulation and all seven of their shots in overtime.

"X. Talton had a great look from three," CU head coach Tad Boyle told 850 KOA radio following the game. "He's a good shooter, we'll take that shot. I thought the difference in the second half was offensive rebounds."

Cal had 13 offensive boards, and as Boyle and his staff counted, 10 of those came in the second half, allowing the Bears to find the second-chance points (nine) needed to win.

"We put ourselves in a position to win because we guarded and we rebounded," Boyle said. "But we didn't defensive rebound like we needed to in the second half – especially late."

Entering the game, CU was 39-2 when out-rebounding its opponents and holding them to under 40 percent shooting from the field. The Buffs hit those numbers, but not the end result they were looking for; they limited Cal to just 35 percent (23-of-65) from the field and out-rebounded the Bears by 10 (45-35). CU shot 25-of-62 (40 percent) from the field.

Cal also scored 13 points off 12 CU turnovers, while only making five miscues that led to six Buffaloes points.

Colorado squandered a chance to win the game on the final possession of regulation after Cobbs made two free throws to tie the game at 59-59 with 28 seconds remaining. Talton let the clock to wind all the way down, but then forced a pass that resulted in a turnover.

LATE SURGE SENDS CU INTO QUARTERS

LAS VEGAS – In March, basketball teams can live on their game's intangibles and die without them. On an afternoon when their leading scorer's frustration nearly overshadowed his productivity and little else went smoothly, the Colorado Buffaloes turned to those intangibles to survive – and they did.

No. 5 seed CU used an 8-0 run late in the second half to pull away from No. 12 seed Southern California, then held on loosely to eliminate the Trojans 59-56 in Wednesday's first round of the Pac-12 Tournament.

A relieved CU coach Tad Boyle called it an exercise in winning ugly – but in March ugly still counts. The Buffs (22-10) advance to play No. 4 seed California (19-12) in Thursday's quarterfinal round (3:30 p.m. MDT) in the MGM Garden Arena. In their only meeting this season, Cal defeated CU by one point in overtime last weekend in Berkeley.

CU's 22nd win of the season ties for the fourth-most wins in school history, with Boyle owning three of the top four winningest seasons.

Reaching the quarterfinals was more difficult than many imagined for CU. USC, losers of 11 of its final 12 regular-season games, took a five-point lead with 9:46 remaining Wednesday and appeared ready to close out the erratic Buffs, who had swept the Trojans (11-21) in their two previous meetings.

But CU dialed up one of the intangibles – mental toughness – that finally surfaced late in the regular season and nearly carried the Buffs to a sweep of their Bay Area road trip. It arrived when needed in Vegas, and it came in the form of chasing down long rebounds, loose balls and protecting the ball over the game's final 10 minutes. The Buffs committed nine of their 13 turnovers in the first half, the other four in the opening minutes of the second half.

Down 47-42 with just under 10 minutes to play, maybe CU's – and junior guard Askia Booker's – alarm buttons were hit. Booker converted a three-point play, followed with a 15-foot jumper, then fed Xavier Johnson for a stuff that tied the score at 49-49 with 8:01 left.

"Around the first media timeout in the second half, I told myself that it's either now or never," Booker said. "I talked to coach (Jean) Prioleau and he said, 'It's time.' That's when I told myself, let's get going.

Booker led the Buffs with 21 points – his fifth 20-point game of the season and seventh of his career. He also contributed seven rebounds and four assists against only one turnover.

BUFFS OUTLAST BEARS, ADVANCE TO SEMIS

LAS VEGAS – Revenge might be sweet, but advancing is sweeter. Ask the Colorado Buffaloes. They avenged their one-point overtime loss to California five days ago by eliminating the Bears 59-56 in Thursday's quarterfinal round of the Pac-12 Conference Tournament.

No. 5 seed CU (23-10) advances to Friday's Pac-12 semifinals to play top-seeded Arizona (29-3) in the MGM Garden Arena.

CU's 23 wins are the second-most in school history behind two seasons (2010-11 and 2011-12) of 24 wins under fourth-year coach Tad Boyle.

"You could tell from the start that our players really wanted this game and they had that intensity about them that was pretty evident," Boyle said. "It was to a man. It wasn't just one guy, it was the whole group."

Four CU players scored in double figures, topped by Askia Booker's 17 points. His last two points came on his first two free throws of the game with 12.1 seconds left, giving CU a 58-54 lead. Six seconds later, Eli Stalzer's one of two from the foul line pushed the Buffs ahead 59-56.

"I thought 'Ski's two free throws gave our team a lot of confidence . . . those two free throws were big," Boyle said. "Eli (was) in a tough position; he hadn't played all second half. I stick him in there and he makes the front end of a one-and-one, which is the hardest one. I've got confidence in all our guys at the line, but they were big-time plays."

Cal guard Justin Cobbs missed a desperation 3-point attempt to tie at the buzzer. He scored a game-high 21 points and keyed a comeback that brought Cal, the tournament's No. 4 seed, back from a 10-point second-half deficit.

Cal (19-13) defeated CU 66-65 in overtime five days ago in Berkeley, and the sour residue accompanied the Buffs to Vegas as an obvious motivator.

Other Buffs in double digits were Xavier Talton (13), Josh Scott (11) and Xavier Johnson (10). Talton accounted for half of CU's six 3-pointers, including a critical trey that ended a nearly 6-minute scoring drought and gave the Buffs a 52-48 lead.

CU finished with a 38-29 board advantage that helped the Buffs to a 10-4 edge in second-chance points and limited Cal to 41.5 percent shooting from the field (22-of-53).

WILDCATS DELIVER SECOND-HALF KO PUNCH

LAS VEGAS – Colorado got the first-half start they wanted Friday against Arizona, but the start of the second was another story – one of shock and maybe a little bit of awe.

The fourth-ranked Wildcats, the top seed in the Pac-12 Tournament, held the fifth-seeded Buffs to only two field goals in the second half's first 12:32, coupled that shutdown with a 20-4 run, and raced away with a 63-43 semifinal win at the MGM Grand Garden Arena.

Arizona (30-3) plays UCLA in the Pac-12 championship game. CU (23-11) awaits word on Selection Sunday to make potential NCAA Tournament plans.

"We're obviously disappointed in the result, but we lost to a darn good Arizona team," Tad Boyle said. "That's a hell of a team, a hell of a program. They've had an unbelievable year."

His defense was pit-bull nasty to the Buffs, but Arizona coach Sean Miller returned Boyle's kind words, complimenting Boyle and his staff on rejuvenating the Buffs after losing point guard Spencer Dinwiddie in mid-January.

Miller said outsiders can't comprehend the magnitude of such a loss and what it takes to adjust: "I mean it knocks you back. You can't call timeout, have a month to prepare and think about things. You have to get it right away.

"What Tad and his staff have done and what those players have done has been really nothing short of remarkable. The fact they're sitting in the NCAA Tournament, our hat's off to them and we wish them nothing but the best."

The Buffs could have used some of the post-game goodwill from the Wildcats' defense in the second half. Ahead only 27-24 at halftime, Arizona allowed a Josh Scott layup at the 18:32 mark, but didn't permit another CU field goal for almost 5 minutes.

Nearly another 6 minutes passed before the Buffs got their third basket of the second half, and by then the Wildcats had rolled to a 51-32 advantage. The Buffs were on their way to a night of near-record lows:

Their 43 points were the lowest since scoring 49 against Illinois (57) in the 2013 NCAA Tournament;

Their 29 percent field goal shooting was the lowest since Arizona held CU to 32.7 on Feb. 22 in Boulder;

Their 25 rebounds – the Wildcats hauled down 41 – were a season low, as were their 15 field goals.

PITT POUNDS BUFFS OUT OF TOURNEY

ORLANDO, Fla. – The NCAA Tournament Selection Committee had a slightly higher opinion of Colorado than it did Pittsburgh. The Panthers must have taken it personally, and they took it to the Buffaloes in almost every way imaginable.

No. 9 seed Pitt pounded No. 8 seed CU here in the NCAA's second round, sending the Buffs back to the Rocky Mountains with a crushing 77-48 loss at the Amway Center.

CU made its third consecutive NCAA Tournament trip – a school record – but also made it a second straight "one-and-done" NCAA visit, with Thursday's 29-point loss the school's largest ever in NCAA play.

The Buffs were eliminated 57-49 by Illinois in last March's first tourney game in Austin, Texas.

CU dropped to 1-3 in NCAA Tournament competition under fourth-year coach Tad Boyle, but at 23-12 finished the 2013-14 season with the third-highest win total in school history.

"We're obviously extremely disappointed with our performance today," he said. "Credit goes to Pittsburgh; I don't want to take anything away from them. They're a great team. They've had a great year. They're good players and (have) a very good coach. But the Buffaloes for some reason or another did not play the way we're capable of playing. As a coach you take responsibility for that, which I do, but we're just very disappointed."

Pitt (26-9) advances to Saturday's third round against top-seeded, top-ranked Florida.

The Buffs never led, never threatened and were never given – or maybe never gave themselves – a chance. Tourney games matching 8-9 seeds can be touch-and-go; this one was take a beating and go home. Pitt controlled the opening tip and everything thereafter.

CU had experienced a few bad first halves this season – both regular-season Arizona losses come immediately to mind – but nothing as horrific on this big a stage. By intermission, the Panthers led 46-18 and had dealt the Buffs their worst halftime deficit of the season, held them to their lowest first-half point total, their lowest field goal total (five) and harassed the Buffs into 10 turnovers – the second most in a first half this season.

3-POINT ARC: Since 1982-83 when the 3-point shot was added to the college game, Mack Tuck ranks among the best 3-point shooters in CU history - of those who are 6'6" and taller. Here's the Top-10 list with a minimum of 150 career attempts:

ROAD TRIPS: CU closed the regular season with three straight road games (Utah, Stanford, Cal); then left for the Pac-12 Conference Tournament (Las Vegas), and headed across the country for the NCAA Tournament (Orlando). Since March 1, the Buffs have covered four times zones:

Boulder to SLC (Utah: Mar. 1: 510 miles)

Boulder-Palo Alto (Stanford: Mar. 5: 1,270 miles)

Palo Alto-Berkeley (Cal: Mar. 8, via bus: 39 miles)

Boulder-Las Vegas (Pac-12 Tourney: 762 miles)

Boulder-Orlando (NCAA Tournament: Mar. 22: 1,860 miles):

Total Distance Traveled: 4,441 miles

CARBON COPIES: Colorado's last three wins in March have all been by the same score, 59-56, the first time that has occurred in program history, including two back-to-back (a 66-65 overtime loss is wedged in there after the first one). However, this marks only the ninth time that CU has won two games in a row by the same score, but four of those had at least one loss in-between; ironically, it's the second time this season it has happened, otherwise you have to go back to 1964 for the previous time:

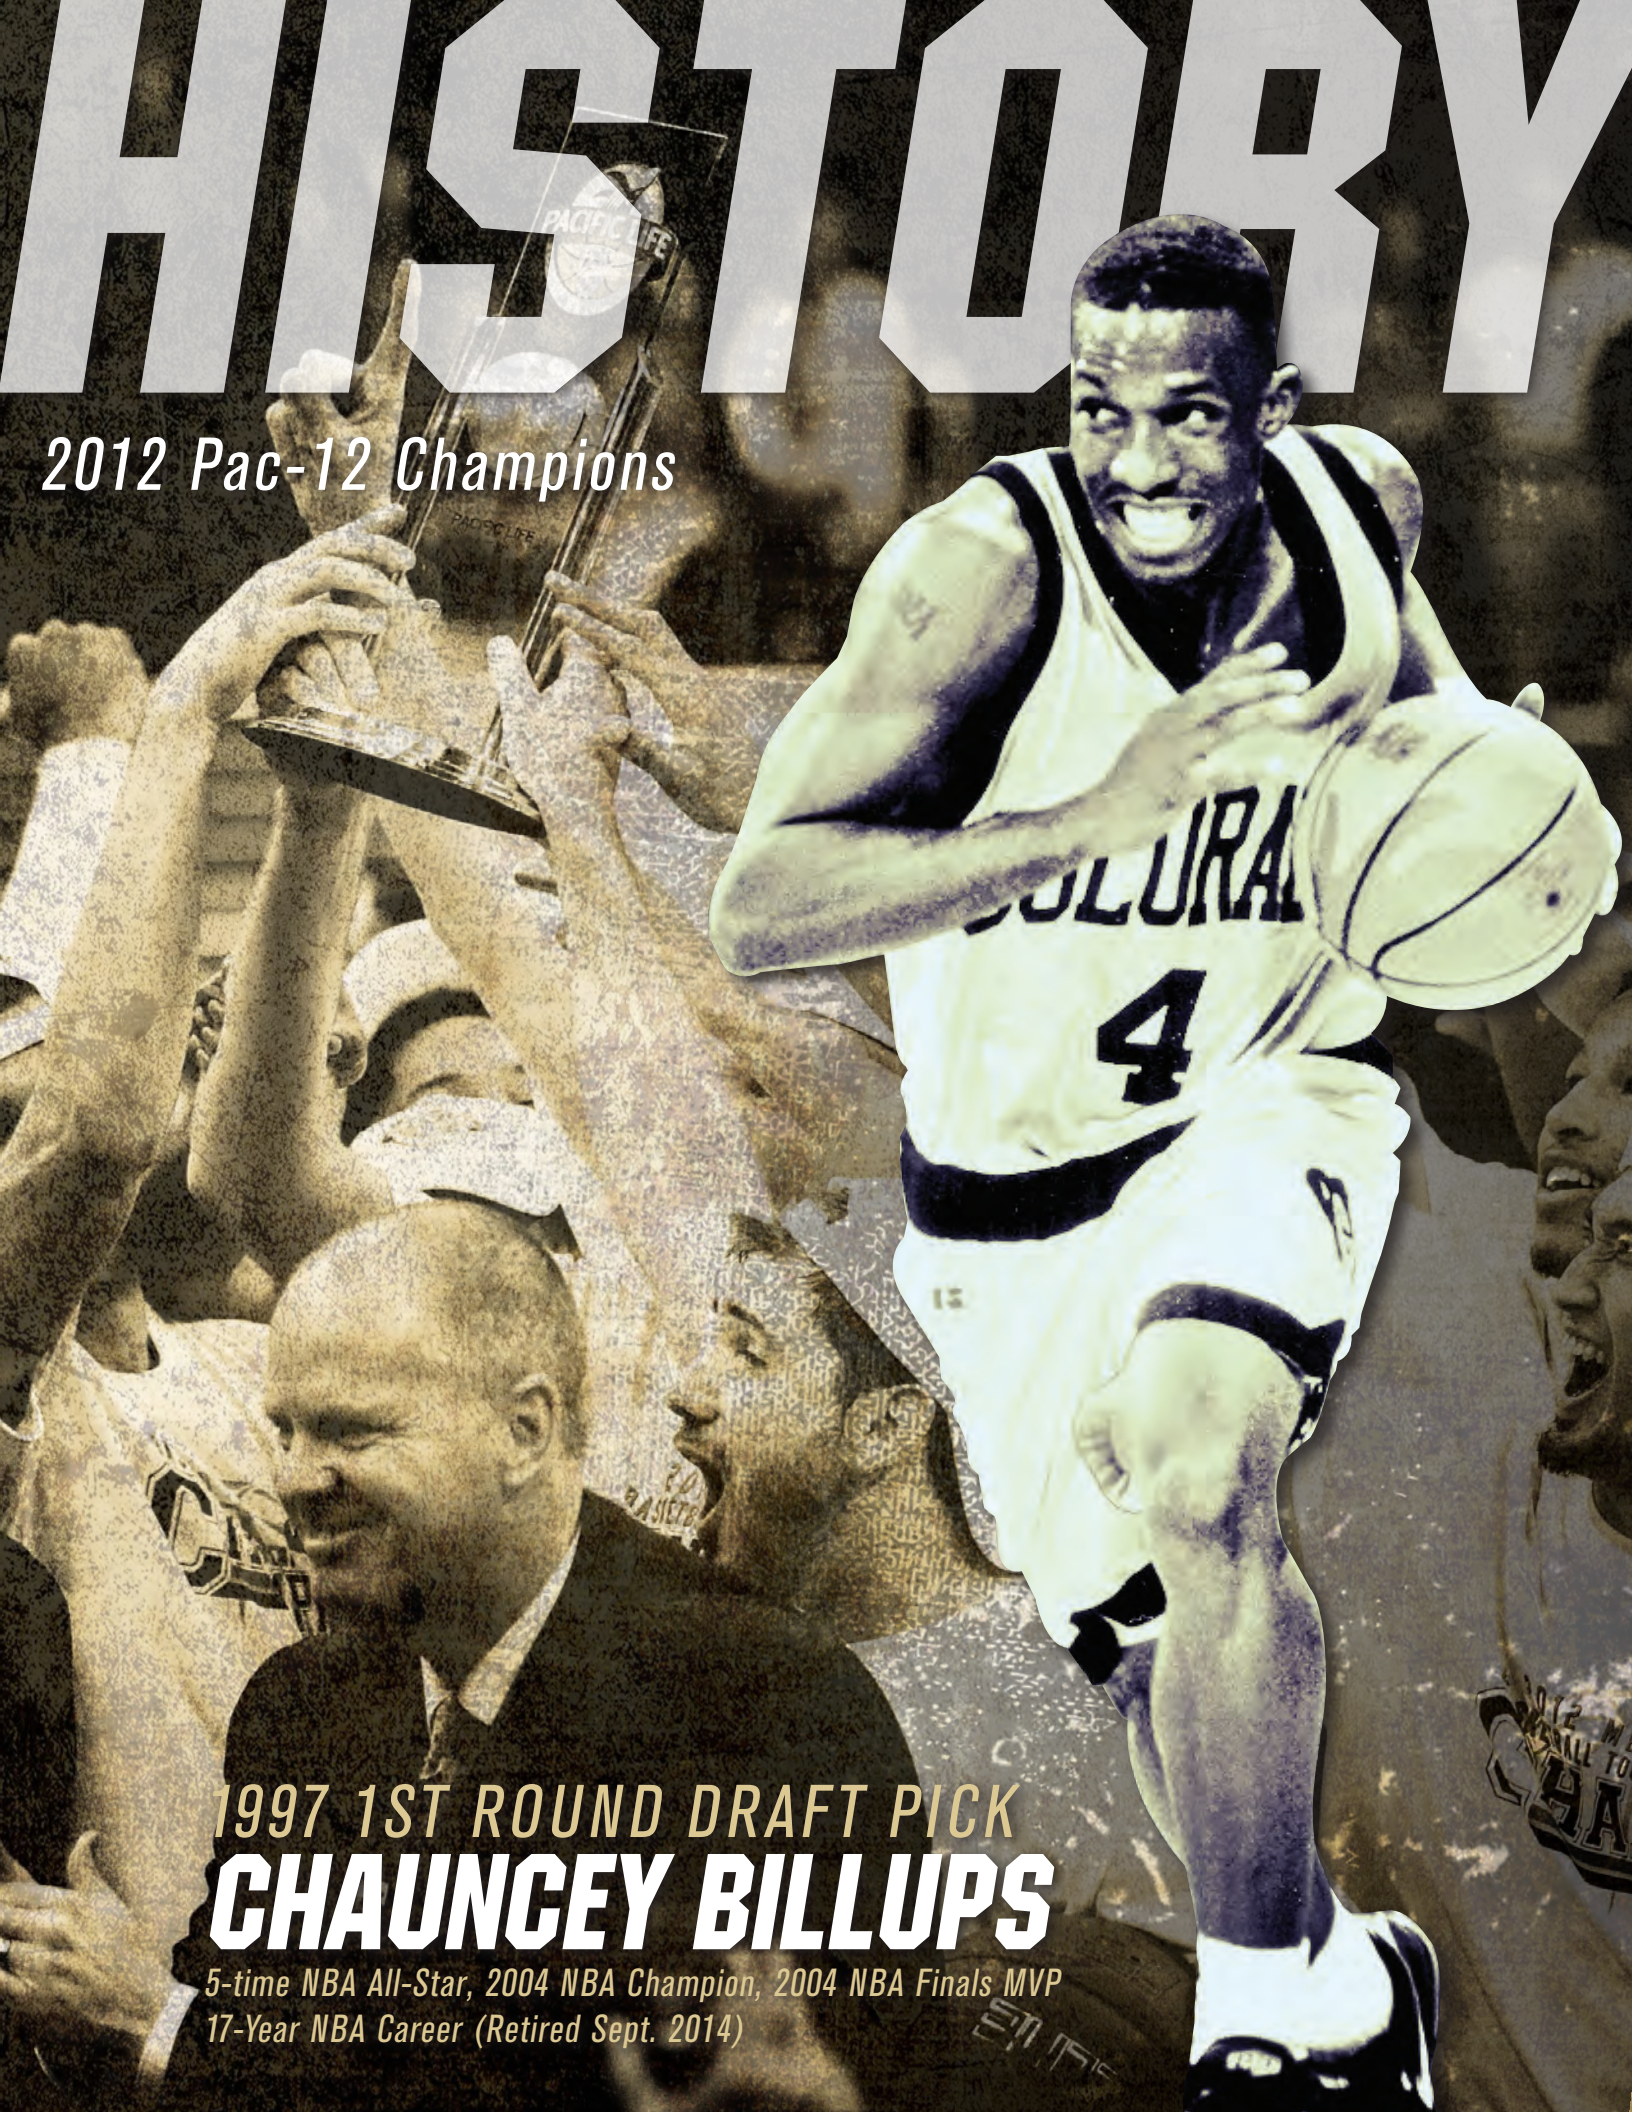

Mar. 12, 2014—Southern Cal	W	59-56
Mar. 13, 2014—California	W	59-56
Dec. 28, 2013—Georgia	W	64-58
Jan. 2, 2014—Oregon State	W	64-58
Jan. 13, 1964—Missouri	W	90-77
Feb. 1, 1964—at Oklahoma	W	90-77
Dec. 4, 1947—Colorado A&M	W	60-40
Dec. 8, 1947—at Colorado A&M	W	60-40
Mar. 2, 1940—at Denver	W	52-37
Mar. 13, 1940—DePaul (NIT)	W	52-37

(CU won back-to-back games by identical scores but with losses in-between in the 1905-06, 1925-26, 1926-27 and 1982-83 seasons).

CLOSE CALLS: CU's last four of six games were decided by a total of 10 points, tied for the second closest cluster of games in school history. During the 1986-87 season, the Buffs played in four consecutive games decided by nine points (and that is correct, Kansas was a rare league game played in early December):

Dec. 11, 1986—at Colorado State	L	64-67
Dec. 13, 1986—at Kansas		L	56-59
Dec. 18, 1986—at Tulsa	W	53-51
Dec. 29, 1986—at UC-Santa Barbara	L	72-73

Colorado also had four-game spans decided by 10 points in 1947-48, 1964-65 and 1968-69; the closest that five straight games have been decided in school history is 12 points in 1947-48, followed by 15 points in 1964-65 and then 16 in both 1932-33 and 1950-51 (in '32-33, six games were decided by a total of 17 points).

COLORADO BASKETBALL HISTORY

Over the last four years of Colorado Basketball, head coach Tad Boyle and his coaching staff, have built the Buffaloes into one of the elite Pac-12 Conference basketball programs, if not the nation.

Four years have produced four-straight postseason appearances, a school-first three consecutive NCAA Tournament berths; four-straight 20-plus winning seasons, and Pac-12 Conference Tournament championship. Under his tutelage, Boyle has won an impressive 92 games at CU, the fastest win total in the shortest amount of time in school history, and his postseason winning percentage of .650, also ranks first (with a school-best 13 victories).

Very impressive for coach and a basketball program that had only four 20-plus winning seasons before his arrival during the spring of 2010.

In those short four years, CU basketball history has been re-written altogether. Boyle's success has brought ESPN College GameDay to Boulder (Feb. 22, 2014); he has won a school record 24 games in a single-season, twice; home dominance at the Coors Events Center with 60 victories in 69 games, in addition to school attendance records being broken, then re-broken a year later; and most importantly every senior that has made his final year on the Buff roster, has graduated (Boyle's staff is 13-for-13).

On the court, there have been six all-tournament team selections; five conference first-team recipients; two tournament most valuable players; one Pac-12 Conference Defensive Player of the Year; and one Wooden Top-20 Finalist.

For the third time in the last four years, three student-athletes have left the program to pursue the next step of his basketball endeavors. Spencer Dinwiddie left school after his junior year (2013-14), where he was selected in the second round of the 2014 NBA Draft (No. 38 overall) by Detroit. In 2012-13, Andre Roberson was selected in the first round (No. 26 overall) by Minnesota then traded to Oklahoma City, then in the 2011 draft, Alec Burks, became CU's second-ever lottery pick, selected No. 12 overall by Utah.

Rounding out the four former players who have played for Boyle while at CU is the school's all-time co-scoring leader, Cory Higgins (2,001 points). Higgins played with the Charlotte Bobcats from 2011-13.

Last season (2013-14) produced another banner year for the program. CU was seeded eighth at the NCAA Tournament, the highest seed since being the number nine in the 1997 tournament. The 23 victories was the third-most victories in school history, and for the first time in 18 years, the Buffaloes finished had a third place finish in the final Pac-12 Conference standings, the program's highest conference placing in 18 years (in the conference tournament seeded fifth).

More attendance records fell once again as the program set a pair of attendance records (season total: 173,429 bettered the previous record of 155,884; non-conference total: 84,133, also bettered last year's best of 61,513).

Year four under Boyle, has seen a significant average each and every year. For the first time in the programs history, the men's basketball team has seen four-straight seasons where conference attendance figures are 9,000-plus each season with season attendance has also increased for all games, reaching over 124,000 each season.

The staff enjoyed their best start to a season in four years (14-2), a No. 15 nationally ranking, the highest a CU team has seen since 1997, and a 10-game winning streak, the fourth longest in the programs history.

After making the conference freshman team in 2012-13, junior-to-be Josh Scott made the Pac-12 first team a year later. Scott developed into CU's constant force down-low and around the basket making 51 percent of his shots, collecting 13 double-doubles and averaging 14.1 points and 8.4 rebounds a game. Senior-to-be Askia Booker made the Pac-12 Tournament team for his outstanding play in the opening and quarterfinal rounds, and Wesley Gordon began his initial season as a red-shirt freshman, making the conference all-Freshman team.

During the 2011-12 and 2012-13 season, CU basketball saw back-to-back NCAA Tournament berths for the first time in 50 years, in addition to a school-first, three-straight 20-win seasons with another school-first, three-straight post-season appearances.

The coaching staff has also helped the Buffs reach unprecedented heights in the win column. CU won a school record 24 games in each of the 2010-11 and 2011-12 seasons, with another 21 victories in 2012-13. The 69 victories were the most victories in any three-year span in school history.

Also in 2011-12, the Buffs won their first in-season tournament since the 2002-03 campaign winning the Charleston Classic that catapulted the Buffs into the national rankings for the first time since the 2005-06 season earning a No. 23 spot in the Associated Press top-25 poll. The following week, CU earned a No. 19 nod in the AP/USA Today Coaches' Polls.

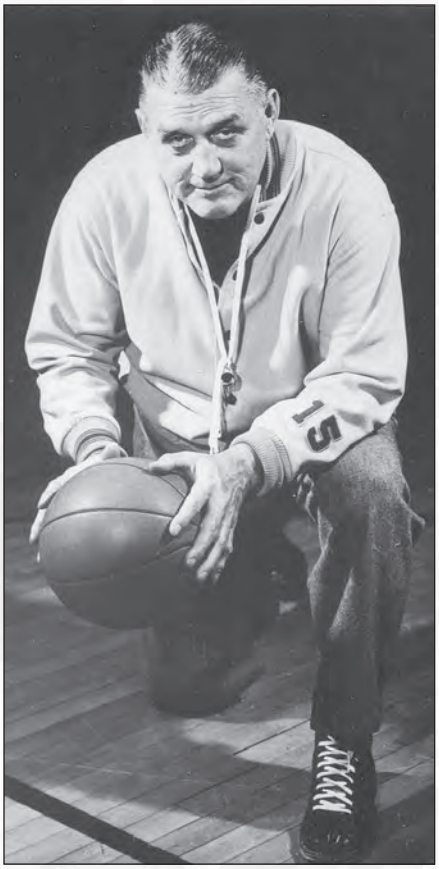

It was also the first year of the Pac-12 Conference and at inaugural conference tournament, the Buffs became just the 10th team in the nation to win at least four games in four days to capture the tournament title (CU's first since winning the Big 8 title in 1968-69). CU earned its first NCAA Tournament appearance since 2002-03 when the Buffs would go on to upset No. 6 UNLV in the second round.

In addition to the last three years, a number of student-athletes that have earned conference excellence with a number of conference accolades.

In CU's first year of the Pac-12, Andre Roberson (first team, all-defensive, all-tournament team), Carlon Brown (second team, tournament's most outstanding player), and Spencer Dinwiddie (freshman team) were all named to conference teams.

In year two of the conference, Roberson (first team, defensive player of the year, all-defensive team); Dinwiddie (first team) and Josh Scott (all-freshman team) all earned post-season accolades, and in CU's last year of the Big 12 Conference in 2010-11, Alec Burks (first team, Big 12 All-Tournament team), Cory Higgins (second team), Levi Knutson (co-sixth man award) were all recognized.

Although the 2012-13 season did not capture the exciting moments of another Pac-12 Tournament championship, the Buffs did see another exciting year ranking No. 1 in Pac-12 Conference-only defense (62.2 ppg.); No. 1 in Pac-12 Conference Team (all games); 3-Point Defense (32.0). They also defeated four ranked opponents, a first since 2002-03 and won three-straight road conference games for the first time since 2000-01.

The conference regular season had its ups and downs where at one point, CU could have ended the season as the number one or two seed in the tournament. However, losing three of its last four games and dropping to the No. 6 overall seed, the Buff overcame No. 12 seed Utah, 53-41 on 34.9 percent shooting on the opening night at the Staples Center in Los Angeles.

On the day two and against No. 3 seed Oregon, CU edged the Ducks, 63-62 for the second time in three meetings this season. Sophomore forward Andre Roberson put back with 13 seconds remaining and a defensive stand by senior point-guard Nate Tomlinson proved to be the difference in the one point win. In the semifinals, CU took care of No. 2 Cal, 70-59 on 59.1 percent shooting from the field in the second half. Senior guard Carlon Brown breakaway windmill dunk served as an exclamation point in the final minute of CU's victory. The play was No. 4 on SportsCenter's Top Ten plays of the day.

In the finals, the Buffs held on again for another upset, edging No. 4 seed Arizona, 53-51 after leading the Wildcats by 12 points in the second half. CU scored only three points in the last nine minutes of the game, however, Brown had a highlight reel dunk in the final minute, snapping a streak of 8:19 without a field goal. CU became the first team to win four games in Pac-12 Conference Tournament history, and just the 10th team from the "big six" conferences to do so since 1952. At the NCAA Tournament, the Buffs, seeded No. 11 upset No. 6 and No. 23/25 ranked UNLV in the second round, then fell to No. 3 Baylor, 80-63, two days later.

Carlon Brown was named the tournament's most outstanding player, in addition being named to the all-tournament. Andre Roberson also earned all-tournament team had a superb sophomore year becoming the first CU player to average a double-double for the entire season (11.6 ppg., 11.1 rpg.) since Stephane Pelle (2001-02; 12.8 ppg., 10.8 rpg.). Roberson also became the 12th player in school history to lead the team in rebounding in back-to-back seasons, and just the third CU player to lead the team in rebounds, blocks, and steals in the same season, duplicating that feat during his freshman season.

In addition, Roberson set the single-season rebounding record (401) breaking a 58-year old record (Burdette Haldorson, 1954-55); set the single-season defensive rebounding record (290) breaking the 225 by Shaun Vandiver (1989-90), 23 years ago; and shattered sophomore season record for most rebounds (401) topping old mark of 337 (Cliff Meely in 1968-69, 44 years ago.

Roberson ranked third nationally in rebounds per game with 11.1 and trailed the national leader (Siena's O.D. Anosike) by 1.4 rebounds per game. Roberson's third place finish is the highest finish by a CU player in rebounding was Alex Stivrins who finished sixth in the nation with an 11.7 average in the 1984-85 season. Roberson finished the season with 20 double-doubles, fifth nationally and was No. 54 nationally in blocked shots (1.86).

CU's freshman duo of Spencer Dinwiddie and Askia Booker added to their designation of the highest scoring frosh pair in CU history. Dinwiddie (360 points) and Booker (317) combined for 677 points, well outdistancing all other rookie twosomes (the only two with 250-plus points). Dinwiddie was No. 101st nationally in free throw percentage (81.6).

Attendance records also set a brand new high standard as the men's basketball team was the best ticket in town setting a number of school records, including seven sellouts; 12 of 15 home games exceeded 10,000 fans or better, in addition to season total (155,884); season average (10,392); conference total (94,371); conference average (10,486); and non-conference total (61,513). The season and non-conference total would fall in 2013-14.

The attendance surge ranked third nationally among all Division I programs for largest increased average from the previous year.

Boyle made the most of his "dream job" in his first year on the University of Colorado campus guiding the Buffaloes to a school-record 24 victories in 2010-11. In addition to setting the standard of the most successful season ever by a CU head coach, capping the season with a trip to the World's Most Famous Arena - Madison Square Garden, and a National Invitation Tournament semifinal appearance.

Named the 18th head coach in CU men's basketball history (on April 19, 2010), Boyle, 51, also etched his name among the school's great coaches becoming first head coach in 20 years to win his coaching debut; becoming the first CU coach since H.B. Lee (1950-51) to win his first two conference games in his first year, in addition to becoming the first Buff head coach since Henry Iba (1933-34) to win his first three conference games.

"This is it (my dream job), there's no doubt," Boyle said. "I remember talking with (former Texas A&M head coach) Mark Turgeon once when he asked me where I wanted to be in 10 years, and I said the head coach at the University of Colorado. This is a destination job. I'm humbled and honored."

From 2007-10 the program was led by Jeff Bzdelik, who came from the United States Air Force Academy, where he led the Buffaloes to a 36-58 (.383) record. His best season was his last, a 15-16 mark and 6-10 in the Big 12 in 2009-10. Over his three seasons with the Buffs, Bzdelik experienced a series of near-misses, losing 27 single-digit games, 18 of those in the Big 12. The 27 losses were an average of 4.6 points.

Entering the 2014-15 season, the Buffalo program boasts a winning record of 1,220-1,137 (.518) in 111 years of basketball being played with the 1942-44 seasons not played due to World War II.

A program first known as the Silver and Gold, won its first game back on Jan. 10, 1902 defeating State Prep School, 34-10. That game marked the beginning of what was to become an outstanding tradition of basketball at CU.

Although there have been many changes over the years from that first victory, the Silver and Gold became known as the Buffaloes in 1934, after CU students rented a buffalo calf for the final football game that year. Colorado has been a member of six conferences, joining the Rocky Mountain

CU greats Jay Humphries and the late-Cliff Meely on the night when the Coors Events Center set an attendance record Dec. 5, 2012. The Buffs defeated Colorado State, 70-61 in front of 11,708 spectators.

CU IN THE HISTORY BOOKS

Colorado is just one of just 12 schools to have ever qualified for the NCAA Tournament and the National Invitation Tournament (NIT) in the same year, as the Buffaloes made dual appearances in 1940, becoming the first school to ever do that. That year, CU won the NIT and finished fourth in the NCAA West Region. The other schools that have matches this feat are: Arizona (1951), Bradley (1950), Brigham Young (1951), City College of New York (which won both tourneys in 1950), Dayton (1952), Duquesne (1952), Kentucky (1949), North Carolina State (1951), St. John's (1951 and 1952), St. Louis University (1952), and Utah (1944).

David Harrison

Conference in 1909, and then the Mountain States in 1937. The Buffs became a member of the Big Seven Conference in 1947, which became the Big Eight in 1958, and now are a member of the Big 12 Conference as teams from the Big Eight and Southwest Conferences merged in the 1996-97 season. In 2011-12, CU along with the University of Utah joined the Pac-12 Conference.

Another major change in Colorado basketball came in 1979, when the team moved into the Colorado Events/Conference Center with its spacious seating capacity of 11,076. The facility was renamed the Coors Events/Conference Center in 1990, in honor of a donation made by Coors to the campus. Many names and faces have helped make Colorado basketball special. There have been those, however, whose contributions stand out. Today, it's simply called the Coors Events Center.

A total of 18 coaches have guided the Buffs to victory, but none more so than past leaders of Forrest B. "Frosty" Cox, H.B. Lee, Russell "Sox" Walseth, Ricardo Patton, and Tad Boyle. The first coach to make a solid presence on the coaching sideline was Cox, who spent 13 years roaming the Balch Fieldhouse from 1936-50. Cox collected a 147- 89 (.623) record with his 1937-38 team reaching the championship game of the National Invitation Tournament before falling to Temple. While at the helm, Cox's teams won four Mountain States Conference (MSC) titles and he concluded his CU career with the best won-lost percentage (.623) of any CU coach of more than one season.

Some of CU basketball's finest moments were orchestrated by Lee from 1951-56. Lee took control of the CU squad in 1950, and in four short seasons he guided the Buffs to their first NCAA Tournament appearance in eight years (1953-54). During that season, the Buffaloes established themselves as a contender defeating NCAA runner-up Kansas on Feb. 2 (70-62).

The following year (1954-55), CU performed a feat not familiar in present day basketball, sweeping the Jayhawks in the season series, a feat only accomplished four other times (1948-49, 1958-59, 1961-62, 1962-63). Colorado made its only trip to the Final Four falling to San Francisco in the semifinals, however redeeming themselves in the third place game, defeating Iowa. That season saw Lee's squad win a then-school-best 19 games and secure a pair of Big 7 titles (one shared). From 1957-76, basketball was under the direction of Walseth. His 261 wins are the most by any coach in school basketball history. Walseth led the Buffs to back-to-back Big Eight Conference titles in 1961-62 and 1962- 63, and both teams reached the NCAA second round before being eliminated by Cincinnati.

Walseth also engineered six Big 8 placings were his teams finished third or better in the conference, including three first place tallies (one shared). During the 1968-69 season, Walseth's team won a then-school best 21 games and during his tenure won 14 or more games in a season, 11 times. His teams also had 13 winning seasons. Today, CU now plays on the "Sox Walseth Floor" in the Coors Events Center, a tribute to Walseth's success as a Buff.

Coaches are not solely responsible for the success of each season, and the Buffs have had a wealth of outstanding talent on the hardwood in its proud past. Outstanding Buff performers range from Jack Harvey, CU's first All-American; to Burdette Haldorson, who led CU to consecutive Big Seven titles in 1953-54 and 1954-55; Cliff Meely; Scott Wedman; Jay Humphries to Chauncey Billups, CU's highest NBA Draftee (drafted third overall in the first round of the 1997 NBA Draft by the Boston Celtics).

The "Big Burd," as Haldorson was called, won the league scoring race in both championship seasons, netting 21.3 and 23.9 points per game, respectively. After CU finished third in the 1955 NCAA Tournament, Haldorson was selected to the AAU All-America team. His 13.8 rebounds per game that year is still a CU single season record. He also owns the record for most rebounds in a game, pulling down 31 in a 1952 effort against Oklahoma.

Meely became another familiar name to CU fans and opponents from 1968 to 1971. The sensational center-forward is CU's second all-time rebounder (971 boards, 12.1 avg.). In addition, Meely held a number of Big Eight scoring marks when his collegiate career ended in 1971.

Named an All-American for his performance during his senior campaign, Meely averaged of 28.0 points and hauled in 11.9 rebounds per game. His 47-point, 25-rebound outing against

Donnie Boyce

Oklahoma was one highlight of that milestone season. That 1971 season capped a highly successful college career for Meely, as he led the Buffs to the conference title in 1968-69.

The next Buff to make an impact was Wedman, a sharp-shooting forward from 1971-74. Wedman came to CU from Denver's Mullen High School and led the team in scoring and rebounding for two years, field goal percentage three years, and free throw percentage one year. Before leaving Colorado, Wedman was firmly established in the school record books.

His numbers have placed him sixth in rebounding (No. 10 today), seventh in scoring (No. 18 today), and eighth in field goal percentage. After enjoying a successful 12-year stint in the NBA, Wedman concluded his professional career in 1987 with the Boston Celtics.

Arguably the best and most exciting Buff of the 1980s was guard Jay Humphries from 1980-84. While running the offense, Humphries became the school's all-time assist leader (562), where he still is today and finishing fourth in scoring (1,306 points; today he's No. 14). His specialty, however, was defensive play. He finished as the Buffs' all-time leader in steals, a record he still holds today with 309 (2.8 spg.), and led the nation in hefts during the 1982-83 campaign with 115.

CU closed out the 1980s and began a new decade of Buffalo basketball with two greats, Shaun Vandiver and Stevie Wise. Both Vandiver and Wise were instrumental in the school's run through the 1991 National Invitation Tournament, CU's first postseason appearance since making the NCAA Tourney in 1969. And before it was over, the Buffaloes had played to a standing room only crowd in the Coors Events Center, cutting down the nets there after defeating Arkansas State to advance to the NIT's Final Four in New York City, and eventually finished third in the tournament.

Vandiver, a 6'10" center, a transfer to CU in 1988 after leading Hutchinson CC to the junior college national championship, worked his way up the Buff charts with an excellent shooting touch and a desire to hit the boards. He finished his three-year career as the Buffs' all-time leader in field goal percentage (.574, 750-of-1307). His 1,876 points and 962 boards, today rank fifth and fourth, respectively in school history. He currently stands third on the field goal percentage chart.

Wise too, left his mark in the CU record books. Coming to Boulder as a guard in 1987, he managed to suit up for 119 games in a Colorado uniform, the fifth-most (today tied for ninth). Like Vandiver, he too loved to shoot, and is one of the Buffs' all-time three-point specialists, holding several of CU's three-point shooting marks. Wise also finished his career as the No. 3 scorer (1,727 points) and sits in sixth today. Wise still ranks among the top nine in career minutes (4th), steals (t-4th) and assists (8th).

Donnie Boyce marked the onset of the 1990s, as the Maywood, Ill., product took CU and the Big Eight by storm. After four incredible seasons, Boyce walked away as the then-all-time leading scorer (1,995 points) in school history and led the Buffs to an NIT bid at the end of his senior season, 1994-95. He became the first of two CU Buffs (Richard Roby, 2004-08) to lead the team in scoring all four years. His 1,995 career points is now third overall.

Boyce, however, never enjoyed postseason play, as he suffered a broken leg that ended his collegiate career during CU's game with Oklahoma in the opening round of the 1995 Big Eight Tournament. Nonetheless, Boyce was drafted by the Atlanta Hawks with the 42nd pick in the second round of the 1995 NBA Draft. With numerous school records in tow, Boyce is remembered as one of the best players in CU history.

Chauncey Billups continued CU's tradition of great players as he made his mark early in his career. In only his fourth game as a freshman, Billups posted the first triple-double in CU history. His 24-point, 11-assist, 11-rebound game against George Mason was a harbinger of great things to come for the 6'3" product from George Washington High School in Denver.

As a sophomore, Billups would lead Colorado to its first NCAA appearance (1996-97) in 28 years and earn many postseason accolades, including All-Big 12 first-team honors and first-team freshman All-America kudos from Basketball Weekly and Basketball Times. In two years, Billups scored over 1,000 points (1,020), becoming the 20th player in CU history to accomplish that feat (he's 30th today).

The next great point-guard, Jaquay Walls, guided CU toward back-to-back 18 win seasons, both of which brought NIT invitations. A college transfer who made his impact immediately, Walls was named honorable mention All-Big 12 and to the All-Newcomer team in his junior season. As a senior, he was twice named Big 12 Player of the Week and had a 42-point performance against Iowa State, which became the Big 12 season high, all-time conference record, as well as the top scoring performance by a Buff at the Coors Events Center. His 15 overtime points in that game was also an NCAA record. That spring, he was selected by the Indiana Pacers in the NBA Draft.

Continuing the powerful scoring tradition, Jamahl Mosley ended a four-year CU career as the 13th highest scorer ever for the Buffs finishing with 1,171 points (22nd today). He brought many accolades to himself and the Colorado program including Academic All-Big 12 as a freshman, All-Big 12 and named to the AP's All-Improved team as a junior, and as a senior, received numerous accolades as the Buffs' veteran leader. CU saw another dominant player emerge on the Boulder campus.

Seven-footer David Harrison made his presence felt during the 2001-02 season being named to the Big 12 All-Freshman team and leading the Buffaloes in scoring (13.9 ppg.). The only other players in CU history to stand over seven feet are Frank Wilcox (1955-56) and Ben Mills (2010-14). Harrison also rewrote the CU record book in field goal percentage finishing the season with a stellar 63.8 percentage and third nationally, in addition to making his name synonymous with the CU blocked shot record lists.

Harrison set a school-record 106 swats during the 2002-03 season, shattering the previous mark of 73. He also became the first player in school history and in the Big 12 Conference to record a pair of triple-doubles (31 pts., 17 reb., 10 blocks against Stetson; 20 pts., 11 blocks, 10 rebs. versus Nebraska).

Also during this span, Stephane Pelle emerged as another dominant player in CU basketball. Pelle, a four-year standout, was the first CU player in 11 years to average a double-double during the 2001-02 campaign. Averaging 12.8 points and

Stephane Pelle

10.8 rebounds per game, Pelle was named to the Big 12 All-Underrated team.

In 2002-03, CU enjoyed one its finest seasons to date, capping it off with a NCAA Tournament berth for the first time since 1996-97. With 20 victories on the season, another feat only accomplished twice before by Patton in 1996-97 (22-10) and Sox Walseth in 1968-69 (21-7), the Buffaloes also upset four nationally ranked teams – all at home for the first-time ever.

Individually, the Buffaloes received four All-Big 12 honors with Michel Morandais (second team) along with Pelle earning conference third-team. Morandais and Harrison also were named to the Big 12's specialty teams as two of the conference's most-improved players. Pelle capped his four-year career with 1,367 points and 1,054 rebounds becoming the first of two CU men's basketball players to secure both 1,000 plateaus (Andre Roberson: 2010-13: 1,012pts., 1,045 rebs.). Pelle would go on to become – and to this day – is the school's all-time leading rebounder (1,054); he's No. 10 in scoring (1,367 pts.).

During the 2003-04 campaign, CU won 18 games for the fifth time under Patton and earning its third NIT berth in eight years. More impressively, the Buffaloes won 10 conference games, the most since recording 11 back in 1996-97 and earning the number four seed at the Big 12 Tournament in Dallas. Harrison also broke the school record for blocks in a career (225) and would on go to rewrite the blocked shot record book despite playing only three years and opting for the 2004 NBA Draft (29th overall, first round, Indiana Pacers).

Other outstanding performances came from Blair Wilson breaking the CU career record for 3-pointers made (257). Earlier in the season, Wilson played "in the zone" draining six treys against Iowa State. In that game, Wilson set or tied four school records against the Cyclones making his first six 3-pointers without a miss (CU Record); tying a half record (6), tying for 3s made in a conference half, and tying consecutive 3-pointers made.

Morandais became the 21st player in CU history to score over 1,000 points in his career. He finished seventh overall with 1,428 (today, he's ninth). Wilson reached the 1,000-point plateau and finished with 1,253 points (17th today). Harrison rounded out the 1,000-point scorers finishing with 1,317 and is now 13th (the jersey number he wore) entering the 2014-15 season.

A near upset at the Big 12 Tournament highlighted a not-so popular 14-16 record in 2004-05. After upsetting No. 6 seed Texas, 81-69 in the first round of the conference tournament, the No. 11 seed Buffaloes became the first school in the nine-year history of the Big 12 to pull off the improbable upset. CU again played beyond its expectations narrowly upsetting eventual conference champion Oklahoma State, 87-85 in the quarterfinals.

The Buffaloes saw the arrival of freshman Richard Roby in 2004-05 as he would become the first freshman since Billups (1995-96) to lead CU in scoring with 16 points per game and net over double-digits 26 times in 30 games. He would become only the fourth CU player ever to make seven 3-pointers in a game, twice (Stevie Wise made seven treys, three times).

The 2005-06 Buffaloes won 20 games for the fourth time in their history en route to the National Invitational Tournament, with 14 of those coming at the Events Center tying the 2002-03 season for the most ever up until that time. The Buffs also re-wrote the school's 3-point record for made (240) and attempts (701), and Roby became the first CU player since 2003-04 and only the fourth player since 1996-97 to be named All-Big 12 first team. CU also reached the national stage by being ranked in back-to-back ESPN/USA Today Coaches' Polls, a school first since the 1996-97 campaign.

The 2006-07 season would not be one of its best seasons to reflect on, a 7-20 record and a 3-13 mark in the Big 12, school lows since the 1993-94 campaign. Entering his final year of his contract, Patton closed out his 11th full year of coaching with a school-record eight freshmen, the most on a team at one time, since 1993-94. However, it did see some positive headlines on the court.

Roby led the team in scoring for the third-straight year (17.3 ppg.), while senior guard Dominique Coleman became the first guard since Donnie Boyce in 1994-95 to lead CU in rebounding. Coleman grabbed 185 boards and averaged 6.9 caroms a game. One of the team highlights was the upset victory over No. 12/14 Oklahoma State. It marked the fifth straight season a CU team defeated a nationally ranked opponent at home.

In 2007-08, Richard Roby set the school scoring record becoming the first male player to eclipse the 2,000-point barrier netting 2,001 points (Cory Higgins would tie the mark from 2007-11). He would go on to set numerous school records over his outstanding four-year career. The Buffaloes became the first team in Big 12 history as the No. 12 seed in its post-season tournament to beat a No. 5 seed (Baylor).

Roby became the second Buff in its history to lead the team in scoring all four years (Boyce was the other).

During the 2008-09, CU saw sophomore guard Cory Higgins become one of only 13 players nationally to lead or finish second on his team in five major statistical categories (points, rebounds, assists, steals, blocked shots). He also ranked nationally in a trio of categories (steals, FT%, scoring).

In 2009-10, the Buffs provided a duel offensive punch with Higgins and super freshman Alec Burks. Higgins, garnered his second straight All-Big 12 third team honor, while Burks performed a CU first in the Buffs Big 12 history becoming the first Boulder athlete to earn conference freshman of the year honors.

Higgins and Burks each scored 587 and 512 points, respectively becoming the first tandem to net over 500 points in the same season since the 1990-91 campaign. Burks would also lead the team in rebounding, only the second freshman since Matt Bullard (6.4, 1985-86).

Burks was also named to a number of post-season teams including the Big 12 All-Rookie Team, CollegeInsider.com All-America Freshman Team, 2009-10 Basketball Times' All-Freshman first team, CU Sports Performers of the Year (CUSPY) Male Freshman of the Year, and Sporting News Magazine All-Freshman second team.

He became the first CU freshman to surpass 500 points in a single-season (512). He ranked fourth nationally of all freshmen in points per game (17.1) and field goal percentage (53.8).

As a team, CU ranked third nationally in FT% (76.6) and for the first time led the Big 12 from the charity stripe. CU also ranked 21st nationally in 3-point percentage, 26th in FG percentage, 30th in steals. The 47.3 field goal percentage tied for 10th in school history, was also the highest from any CU team since 1989-90 (47.9) and the 409 turnovers committed, was a team low over 30 games played in a season since the stat first kept in 1977-78.

The 2010-11 saw a season unlike no other in quite some time for Buffalo Basketball. With first-year head coach Tad Boyle running the bench as the 18th coach in school history, CU also won a school-record 18 home games at the Coors Events Center and achieved their highest Big 12 finish (t-5th) since 2005-06.

Cory Higgins

Statistically, CU ranked first in the Big 12 and fifth nationally in free throw percentage (77.8). Boyle's efficient attack also ranked 12th nationally in scoring (79.6 ppg) and 19th nationally in field goal percentage (47.3).

Individually, the Buffs were led by sophomore guard Alec Burks, who subsequently left early to enter the NBA Draft, became CU's second–ever lottery pick and selected No. 12 overall by the Utah Jazz. Burks would score a single-season school record 779 points, in addition setting the school mark for most free throws made (249) and attempts (302) in a single-season. He would also become the first player at CU to score over 770 points, 240 rebounds, 100 assists in same season.

A Top-20 Wooden Award finalist and unanimous Big 12 Conference first team selection, Burks was 18th nationally in scoring with 20.5 points per game. He would also become the only Big 12 Conference player to rank in the top-12 in the conference-only games in points (20.0; 2nd), rebounds (7.6; t-3rd), and assists (2.8; 12th).

Burks also became the only second CU player in history to average over 20 points, 6 rebounds, and 2.5 assists per game for a season (20.5 ppg., 6.5 rpg., 2.9 apg.), joining Donnie Boyce, who averaged 22.4 points, 6.7 rebounds, and 4.5 assists in the 1993-94 season.

And for the first time in the 15-year Big 12 Championship history, the Buffs advanced to the conference semifinals where Burks became the first CU player to be named to the all-tourney team. Later in the season, the Grandview, Mo. native would be named to the NIT All-Tournament Team (97 points in four games, 24.3 ppg.).

The 2010-11 team was not comprised by one individual, but a cast of others who led to the Buffs success throughout the season. Cory Higgins would end his stellar four-year career tying the school mark for most points in a career (2,001) tying former teammate Richard Roby, who starred in Boulder from 2004-08. Higgins was a three-time third team conference selection, also set a number of school records also becoming the career leader in minutes (4,478), games (132, today he's second), starts (131), and single-season minutes played (1,222) set in 2010-11.

Higgins would also became the first CU player male or female to score over 2,000 points, 500 rebounds, 300 assists, and 150 steals during his collegiate career.

Sharp-shooter Levi Knutson ended his career making the fifth most treys (81) in a season during CU's NIT run. The Littleton, Colo. native set the single-season mark for 3-point efficiency (47.4 percent) and notched his name among long-range shooting greats finishing third overall in career 39.3 career percentage, and tied for sixth in treys made (129).

Andre Roberson also made his presence felt during his initial season setting the freshman rebounding (297) and blocked shot (42) records. Roberson also became the first freshman to lead any CU team in rebounds, steals (51), and blocks. The feat among the Big 12 was a rarity, as Roberson became only the fourth conference player to accomplish it. Averaging 7.8 rebounds per game (100th nationally), Roberson also tied for fifth nationally in freshman rebounding (only player with zero starts).

The 2011-12 season welcomed a new addition to the Coors Events Center since the building first opened in 1979. The brand new basketball and volleyball practice facility resides directly adjacent to the north side of Events Center. The facility is 43,000 square feet of space featuring two basketball/volleyball courts; women's basketball locker rooms; and volleyball coaches' offices costing $10.8 million, funded from private funds.

Each practice court is 11,000 square feet, and both mimic the playing surface in the Coors Events Center exactly, down to the lines and logos. The structure will match the campus architectural Charles Klauder theme, a northern Italian, rural Tuscany influence, with varicolored sandstone and red-tiled roofs to match the other 200-plus buildings on the CU-Boulder campus.

It was nine years since CU last danced in the NCAA Tournament and in one of the greatest seasons ever, second year head coach Tad Boyle equaled the previous season's win total (24), advanced to the NCAA Tourney third round, and won the inaugural Pac-12 Tournament championship by winning four games in four days as the No. 6 seed.

The conference regular season had its ups and downs where at one point, CU could have ended the season as the number one or two seed in the tournament. However, losing three of its last four games and dropping to the No. 6 overall seed, the Buff overcame No. 12 seed Utah, 53-41 on 34.9 percent shooting on the opening night at the Staples Center in Los Angeles.

On the day two and against No. 3 seed Oregon, CU edged the Ducks, 63-62 for the second time in three meetings this season. Sophomore forward Andre Roberson put back with 13 seconds remaining and a defensive stand by senior point-guard Nate Tomlinson proved to be the difference in the one point win. In the semifinals, CU took care of No. 2 Cal, 70-59 on 59.1 percent shooting from the field in the second half. Senior guard Carlon Brown breakaway windmill dunk served as an exclamation point in the final minute of CU's victory. The play was No. 4 on SportsCenter's Top Ten plays of the day.

In the finals, the Buffs held on again for another upset, edging No. 4 seed Arizona, 53-51 after leading the Wildcats by 12 points in the second half. CU scored only three points in the last nine minutes of the game, however, Brown had a highlight reel dunk in the final minute, snapping a streak of 8:19 without a field goal. CU became the first team to win four games in Pac-12 Conference Tournament history, and just the 10th team from the "big six" conferences to do so since 1952. At the NCAA Tournament, the Buffs, seeded No. 11 upset No. 6 and No. 23/25 ranked UNLV in the second round, then fell to No. 3 Baylor, 80-63, two days later.

Carlon Brown was named the tournament's most outstanding player, in addition being named to the all-tournament. Andre Roberson also earned all-tournament team had a superb sophomore year becoming the first CU player to average a double-double for the entire season (11.6 ppg., 11.1 rpg.) since Stephane Pelle (2001-02; 12.8 ppg., 10.8 rpg.).

Roberson also became the 12th player in school history to lead the team in rebounding in back-to-back seasons, and just the third CU player to lead the team in rebounds, blocks, and steals in the same season, duplicating that feat during his freshman season.

In addition, Roberson set the single-season rebounding record (401) breaking a 58-year old record (Burdette Haldorson, 1954-55); set the single-season defensive rebounding record (290) breaking the 225 by Shaun Vandiver (1989-90), 23 years ago; and shattered sophomore season record for most rebounds (401) topping old mark of 337 (Cliff Meely in 1968-69, 44 years ago.

Roberson ranked third nationally in rebounds per game with 11.1 and trailed the national leader (Siena's O.D. Anosike) by 1.4 rebounds per game. Roberson's third place finish is the highest finish by a CU player in rebounding was Alex Stivrins who finished sixth in the nation with an 11.7 average in the 1984-85 season. Roberson finished the season with 20 double-doubles, fifth nationally and was No. 54 nationally in blocked shots (1.86).

CU's freshman duo of Spencer Dinwiddie and Askia Booker added to their designation of the highest scoring frosh pair in CU history. Dinwiddie (360 points) and Booker (317) combined for 677 points, well outdistancing all other rookie twosomes (the only two with 250-plus points). Dinwiddie was No. 101st nationally in free throw percentage (81.6).

Austin Dufault set the school record for most games played in a career (136) and career conference games played (66).

In a review of the 2013-14 season, CU back-to-back NCAA Tournaments for the first time in 50 years (1961-62 & 1962-63) and coach Boyle became the first CU head coach since Sox Walseth to lead the Buffs to back-to-back NCAA Tournament appearances. CU won 21 games for the fifth time for a CU team has won that many games in a season, and was ranked No. 19 AP/USA Today Coaches' Poll (Nov. 26) and No. 23 in the Associated Press (Nov. 19).

The Buffaloes won the Charleston Classic Champions (first in-season tourney title since 2002-03, Pepsi Classic) with Askia Booker being named the most valuable player. A number of other CU players brought home conference hardware: Andre Roberson: Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year, conference first team, All-Defensive team; Spencer Dinwiddie: conference first team; Josh Scott: Pac-12 Conference All-Freshman team. Scott also became the 13th freshman to average 10 or more points in his rookie year; and Roberson (11.2) finished second nationally in rebounding (behind Siena's O.D. Anosike, 11.4), however was the first player from a major BCS school to finish at the top, since 2008-09, and fourth since 1995-96.

In a review of the 2013-14 season from the opening portion of the text, CU won 23 games, the third most victories in school history; was ranked for six-straight weeks (Dec. 9-Jan. 20); the highest being No. 15. CU earned a school record third straight NCAA Tournament berth and won 10-straight games, tying for the fourth longest in history.

Josh Scott was named All-Pac-12 first team; Askia Booker was an All-Pac-12 honorable mention; and Wesley Gordon an honorable mention on All-Freshman team. Wesley Gordon finished with 41 blocks, the second-most by a freshman.

ESPN COLLEGE GAMEDAY

ESPN's basketball rendition of College GameDay, in existence for a decade, made its first appearance at the University of Colorado, February 22.

The telecast from the Coors Events Center was a spectacle from start to finish, with the C-Unit making its presence more than apparent to the national TV audience.

For over two hours, the collective body of CU students – dubbed the C-Unit in 2004 – brought energy, costumes, and witty signs to the GameDay party as a way to kick off the day's national basketball schedule. The lead attraction was Saturday night's Pac-12 Conference game matching CU against No. 4 Arizona.

GameDay was hosted by Rece Davis and featured insights from former Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps and former Duke star Jay Williams.

After the morning event, Davis spoke with CU athletic director Rick George and told him the "environment and the enthusiasm was right up there with the best that they have seen" for GameDay. "The crowd was attentive, they were into it, they listened to what we were saying on the show and responded accordingly," Davis said. "CU put on a great show."

Students began lining up outside the Events Center, Friday at 11 p.m. and by 5:45 a.m. Saturday there was about 300 students clamoring for their chance to be on national TV. Conditions weren't ideal (high winds and low temperatures), but that wasn't going to stop any crazed fans.

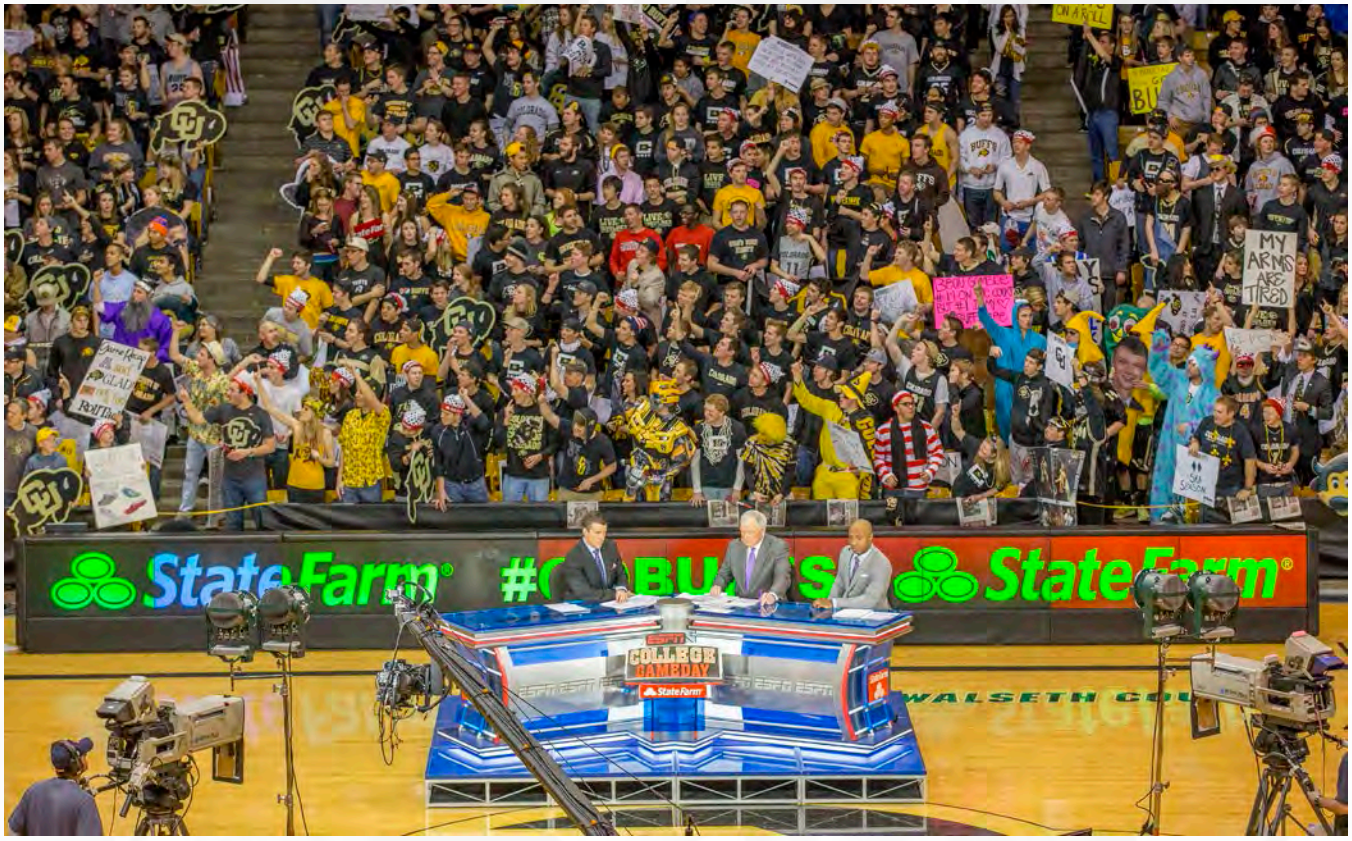

The event goes beyond students showing off their creative humor and asking parents for money via home-made signs; it provides the university a stage to tell the rest of the country what CU is all about – and the school did that Saturday.

Colorado coach Tad Boyle is also hoping to use the exposure for his own recruiting purposes as he seeks to build a national power in Boulder.

Boyle had previously said that being selected to host GameDay was, "a testament to our players, a testament to our fans, a testament to our coaches and how far this program has come."

It's no coincidence that GameDay chose to come to Boulder when the Buffaloes host the nation's fourth-ranked team. However, Saturday's event was more about CU basketball and the atmosphere that has developed at the Coors Events Center during the Boyle regime.

Arizona hosted its first GameDay event on January 28, 2012, and according to Bruce Pascoe of the Arizona Daily Star, the turnout Colorado received was comparable – if not better – than that of the Wildcats, who boast four Final Four appearances and one national championship.

Colorado is proving that its fan support belongs with some of the best in the nation and hopes to prove that its level of play belongs in the same category.

Reflecting on the days when the average attendance at the Coors Events Center was about 3,000 – compared to the nearly 10,000 this season –GameDay being on campus is a culmination of everything we could have ever envisioned when we first moved the C-Unit to behind the basket where they stand today.

"Our students showed themselves well, and their enthusiasm to be out here at six in the morning says a lot about our fans," George said. "It was awesome, you can't measure this kind of exposure."

PAC-12 TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONS

LOS ANGELES - Dust off those dancing shoes, Buffs fans. Pac-12 hoops, who's your Taddy?

The improbable, unflappable, and in the very end undeniable Colorado Buffaloes made history, outlasting Arizona 53-51 at the Staples Center to win the Pac-12 Conference tournament championship in their debut season in the expanded league.

CU is a conference tournament champion for the first time in program history and in the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 2003 after earning the Pac-12's automatic berth.

A season after being denied an NCAA Tournament berth and losing 75 percent of his offense, CU coach Tad Boyle reloaded as best he could and hoped for the best. But Boyle constructed his second season in Boulder with more determination than dreams, ultimately squeezing and coaxing every ounce of effort out of the Buffs during a taxing four-day Pac-12 run that followed a dismaying regular-season finish.

Losing three of its final four games, CU dropped from regular-season title contenders to a sixth tournament seed. No problem; rising up in L.A. was the Buffs' mission. They did it in grand - if gut-wrenching -style, and they did it the hard way, winning four games in four days.

CU (23-11) almost squandered a 12-point lead, scoring only three points in the last 9 minutes but still denying No. 4 seed Arizona (23-11) in its comeback attempt.

"Saying I'm proud of these guys is the biggest understatement I've ever made," Boyle said. "If you believe in destiny, you believe in the Colorado Buffaloes."

Freshman Spencer Dinwiddie led CU with 14 points, and senior Carlon Brown - the Buffs leading scorer in the tournament - added 13, including a dunk in the final minute that was his team's last field goal. Sophomore Andre Roberson submitted his third double-double (10 points, 11 rebounds) in four tournament games.

Brown was named the tournament MVP, highlighting a two-week run that saw him hit lows, highs and finish as high as he's ever been.

Said Boyle on Brown: "I think what you saw out of Carlon these last four games is he's a guy who put this team on his shoulders. He's been more vocal than he's been all year in timeouts, in huddles, on the floor, encouraging his teammates . . . (He) deserves the MVP of this tournament because he was big when we needed him to be big."

Brown, the only member of the CU roster to play in the NCAA Tournament (with Utah), said the late-season scoring slump he encountered finally was put behind him: "I just tried to put everything in the past, knowing I had this opportunity to be aggressive and play in this tournament . . . I just let everything go."

Roberson also was named to the all-tournament team, joining Jared Cunningham (Oregon State), Kyle Fogg (Arizona), Solomon Hill (Arizona) and Jesse Perry (Arizona). That trio led the Wildcats in scoring Saturday - Fogg with 14, Hill with 13 and Perry with 11.

Arizona coach Sean Miller was effusive in congratulating CU and Boyle: "I want to say the job that Tad Boyle has done at Colorado and what Colorado represents to the future of the Pac-12, I can make the argument that there's been no greater gift to college basketball in the Pac-12 than adding Colorado."

Miller said whoever draws CU in the NCAA Tournament "is running into a hungry, well-coached, disciplined team. I really believe that's the story of today. They beat us. They were the better team."

CU had 8- to 10-point cushions in the final 10 minutes of the previous two games and held on - barely against Oregon, handily against Cal. But could the Buffs stay composed in their biggest tournament game thus far?

Some doubt surfaced when Arizona scored five straight and cut its deficit to 50-43 on one of two free throws by Perry with 5:29 remaining. And no nerves were calmed when Tomlinson and Askia Booker both misfired badly on consecutive possessions from the same spot in the left corner.

The Wildcats capitalized on those botched trips with a layup by Hill to cap a 7-0 run and close to 50-45 with 4 minutes remaining. At the 1:41 mark, without a field goal in almost 8 minutes and seven consecutive missed shots, Boyle called a timeout.

It might not have been what Boyle had drawn up, but Roberson drove to the basket as the shot clock wound down and was fouled with 1:23 showing. He hit one of two, sending CU up 51-46.

At the other end, 22 seconds later, Perry sank two free throws, but Brown drove the lane and countered with a thunderous dunk to push the Buffs ahead 53-47 with 49 seconds to play.

CU's first trip to the NCAA Tournament in nine seasons appeared all but booked . . . but not quite. Fogg's pair of free throws at 34.5 cut CU's lead to 53-49, and Hill also converted at the other end to make the score 53-51.

Dufault, who let a pass from Tomlinson bound away from him for a turnover, also missed a pair of free throws with 14.4 to play.

"It would have been nice if we had ended the game smoother . . . if I could have knocked down a couple of free throws or caught that pass," Dufault said.

Arizona had a final chance, but Fogg's tightly contested shot with 1.4 seconds left was badly off to the left.

Continued Dufault: "We went down to the other end, and once again we just dug in defensively and got a stop."

It was done . . . CU in the Big Dance.

2012 EUROPE TOUR

BUFFS EMBARKED ON 5-GAME, 10-DAY EUROPEAN TOUR

The University of Colorado men's basketball team traveled across the Atlantic Ocean for a five-game, 10-day European trip in August taking them to Paris (France), Antwerp (Belgium) and Amsterdam (The Netherlands). It's the second time in history the CU men's basketball team has traveled to Europe for an exhibition tour in the off-season.

In 1997 from May 20-30, the CU men's basketball team played squads from England and Germany achieving a 2-2 record. In September of 2006, CU travelled to Vancouver, British Columbia winning all three games they played in.

This past August 13, CU left Denver International Airport (DIA) on Monday morning en route to Chicago, then landed in Paris the following day at 9:25 a.m. local time (8 hours and 20 minutes later) on Aug. 14.

All three European cities were eight hours ahead of mountain time.

The basketball team stayed in Paris three nights and started play against the AMW France Elite team on back-to-back nights.

Game #1 (August 15) CU dropped an 86-73 decision as sophomores Spencer Dinwiddie and Askia Booker each scored 13 points to pace the Buffaloes, while junior forward Andre Roberson added 11 points and 20 rebounds. Kevin Sepharin led all scorers with 24 points for the winners. Michel Toti and Ada Sane chipped-in with 16 and 14 points, respectively for AMW France.

The more experienced collection of professional players from the AMW France All-Stars led throughout the game in a close back-for-forth dual with the younger Buffaloes. With CU trailing 50-47 at the break, the Buffs jumped ahead early in the third quarter (international play 10 minute quarters) on a Booker three-point play and freshman forward Josh Scott's layup, giving CU a 52-50 lead after holding the home team scoreless for 3:15 minutes to open the third quarter. AMW France pulled even and took the lead for good, and led by as many as nine points on the strength of a pair of treys.

CU trailed 59-56 in the third quarter with five freshmen on the court at the same time. From there, it was a close battle as AMW France slowly pulled away pushing ahead 75-69 with 5:36 to play. Freshman Xavier Johnson recorded nine points and seven rebounds in his college debut, while Scott added 12 points on 6-of-9 shooting.

Game #2 (August 16) Both teams again played one another the following night as freshman Josh Scott tied a team-high 13 points with 10 rebounds, and junior Andre Roberson added 13 points, nine rebounds and four steals in CU's 91-74 loss against the AMW France Elite ''Pro A" All-Stars at the Stade Pierre de Coubertin in Paris.

The Buffs started strong racing out to a 9-0 lead keeping the home team scoreless through the first 7:25 of the first quarter. Roberson's three-point play on a dunk after a steal pushed CU into a commanding 11-2 lead 4:35 remaining in the quarter. However, AMW France countered and evened the game at 15-15 after 10 minutes of play.

The second quarter remained close until AMW pulled away outscoring the Americans, 26-17 in the latter 10 minutes taking a 41-32 lead at the half. The home team broke open the third quarter outscoring CU, 31-25 and erupting for 11-of-14 shooting from the field (78.6 percent), including four, three-pointers. AMW pushed its advantage to at least 13 points on two occasions in the second half. Kevin Seraphin led all scorers with 16 points (8-of-14 FG shooting) and Giovan Oniangue added 14 points and four rebounds.

The French shot 58.3 percent from the field (35-of-60) for the game. CU was led by freshman Xavier Johnson off the bench with 12 points and five rebounds, while sophomore Spencer Dinwiddie added seven points and four boards. Senior Sabatino Chen had six rebounds and sophomore Askia Booker added 10 points.

Among the activities the team experienced other than basketball was a Paris city tour that including The Eiffel Tower, a Seine River Cruise, the Louvre Museum, the Arc de Triomphe, and the Champs-Elysees.

The team left Paris and travelled by bus to Bruges, Belgium, western Europe's most-visited medieval cities for lunch and a city tour. The city was picturesque city squares and canals. The tour guide said Bruges was untouched during both World Wars.

Game #3 (August 18) Freshman Josh Scott scored a game-high 19 points leading CU with a balanced scoring attack as the Buffaloes broke open a close game in the third quarter into a 91-63 rout over Optima Ghent at the Sportarena Tolhuis. Day five of CU's 10-day European Trip saw junior Andre Roberson add 15 points and 14 rebounds, sophomore Askia Booker chip-in with 18 points and six assists, with freshmen Chris Jenkins and Xavier Johnson adding 12 and 10 points, respectively. Jenkins and Johnson grabbed six rebounds apiece.

"We made fewer defensive mistakes with fewer breakdowns, that's why we gave up 63 points rather than 80's, 90's in which we did the first two games," said CU head coach Tad Boyle. "Obviously, the level of competition tonight wasn't what it was like the first two games. I was really pleased with the way our team responded. We had about an hour and an half film session this afternoon and that, I think the guys took it to heart and really tried to go out on the floor and execute the things we talked about."

The game was close through the first 30 minutes (10-minute quarters) with CU holding a 59-53 lead, then raced out to a crushing 32-10 fourth quarter, limiting the Dragons to 10 points in the final stanza. CU scored six straight points to open the quarter increasing its advantage to 65-53 before Optima Ghent scored on a three-pointer.

From there, the rout was on as CU went on a 16-0 run with a strong display of inside and perimeter play led by Roberson's eight points. The Americans dominated the glass with a 50-19 advantage (23 offensive) and shot 45.8 percent from the field compared to the home team's 40 percent.

The Buffs trailed after the first quarter 22-19, however led each quarter thereafter. Scott was 9-of-15 from the field; Booker was 8-of-11; and Roberson went 7-of-13, along with three steals. Thomas Van de Vandel led Optima Ghent with 19 points.

Game #4 (August 19) Trailing by 10 points with two minutes to play, the CU men's basketball team almost pulled off a stunning come-from-behind victory from its underclassmen, only to fall in the final seconds to Gembo BCC, Borgerhout, 88-86 at the Sporthal Luisbekelaar. The Buffaloes played the entire game without its upperclassmen presence of Askia Booker, Sabatino Chen, Spencer Dinwiddie, and Andre Roberson.

CU countered with the entire game on Sunday with all six freshmen, first-year transfer players, and their returning reserves from a year ago. Most of CU's firepower that generated 56.2 percent scoring and 70.5 percent of rebounding a year ago, did not play. The Americans started the game with forwards Wesley Gordon and Xavier Johnson; guards Xavier Talton, Eli Stalzer and Chris Jenkins. Forwards Josh Scott and Xavier Johnson came off the bench with juniors Ben Mills and Kevin Nelson and sophomore transfer Beau Gamble seeing minutes.

Scott led all scorers with 24 points with six rebounds and a blocked shot.

"We added a fifth game on this trip trying to get some guys as many minutes, and as much as a flow of the game in a normal situation, to give them that experience, so we went with a nine-man rotation," said CU head coach Tad Boyle.

"It gave us a great-look-into our freshmen class that are not normally in the rotation and getting them some minutes, so I thought the way we competed and lose by two to a very quality team that I think is better than the team we beat last night (Sat., Aug. 18), it gives us a lot of things to build on. The thing about this trip, is you want to learn as much as you can about your young players and we had a chance to do that today."

The Buffaloes were playing their second game in less than 24 hours were also led by Jenkins with 17 points and eight rebounds; Stalzer scored 10 points with six steals; and Gordon chipped-in with seven rebounds, six points, two steals and two blocks. Johnson added 11 points.

Trailing 74-66 with 1:47 to play, Gembo BBC made back-to-back treys for what seemed like a commanding 84-74 lead. Scott scored the next bucket with a power move in the paint, then Nelson added four points, inching CU closer and an 86-83 deficit with 16.6 seconds to play. With no timeouts, CU managed to force the home team into a turnover where Jenkins subsequently missed a three-pointer to tie. Gembo BBC added a pair of free throws for an 88-83 lead and Stalzer closed the gap with a three-pointer at the buzzer. Gembo, whose average age is 28, was the Belgian Division II 2011-2012 champion and returned 10 players from its title team a year ago were led by Domien Loubry with 22 points and six three-pointers.

Four CU players, Talton, Scott, Gordon, Johnson, all fouled out one-by-one in the fourth quarter.

CU shot 45.9 percent from the field (28-of-61) and committed 29 turnovers. Gembo BBC shot 49.2 percent for the game (29-of-59).

Game #5 (August 20) In their final game of the tour, the Buffaloes broke open a six-point first quarter lead into a 23-point cushion at halftime and cruised to a 96-57 victory over the Rotterdam Challengers at the Topsportcentrum. The Buffaloes dominated every facet of the game from a 55-29 advantage on the glass and forced Rotterdam into 25 turnovers. CU shot 47 percent from the field (41-of-87) to wrap up the five-game exhibition against semi-professional teams from France, Belgium and The Netherlands with a 2-3 record.

"Tonight was our best performance as a team; offensively, defensively, our bench played very well and I was really pleased with the way we played," said CU head coach Tad Boyle. "Individually, there were some great performances as well. The best thing from this trip is every player really improved; every player got a chance to play and get in the flow of real-live game situations against good competition. This trip is invaluable to our program this year."

CU recorded a five-game best 47 made field goals with four players in double figures led by freshman Josh Scott with 19 points (8-of-13) and five rebounds; junior Andre Roberson (18 points, 12 rebounds) and freshman Xavier Johnson (11 points, 10 rebounds) notched double-doubles; and senior Sabatino Chen poured in 11 points, six rebounds, six assists, and six steals.

Freshman Wesley Gordon chipped-in with eight points and six rebounds, while sophomore Askia Booker added nine points and five assists. Everyone played in the game for CU with 11 of 13 players scoring (Dinwiddie and Beau Gamble six points each; Xavier Talton four points and five rebounds; Ben Mills and Eli Stalzer two points each). Juniors Jeremy Adams and Shane Harris-Tunks did not play in any of the five games as both were nursing injuries.

With a six-point first quarter lead (26-20) engineered by Scott's seven points and Chen's four assists, CU held the Challengers scoreless through the first 4:40 of the second quarter, jumping out to a 34-20 lead before the home team scored their first basket.

CU then raced out to a 42-22 margin behind Scott's eight points, then three-point plays by Booker and Dinwiddie pushed their advantage to 57-34 at the break. Rotterdam was out-scored 31-14 in the second quarter, while CU also dominated the glass during the first 20 minutes by a 32-13 margin.

The third quarter was the same as the second as Chen scored six of CU's next 10 points for a 67-34 lead, while Rotterdam could only generate 10 points in the third quarter. CU's starters out-scored Rotterdam's, 53-27. The game's attendance was also played in front of a well-attended crowd (374 in attendance) and was easily the most-attended game surpassing the previous four games combined.

CU closed its stay in Amsterdam on Tuesday with a tour of the Anne Frank House in the afternoon followed by a Canal Cruise and BBQ farewell dinner. Wednesday morning the Buffaloes departed Amsterdam en route to Chicago then Denver.

Boyle Takes Look Back, Ahead At CU Hoops

NEW YORK - The morning after a final-second, one-point loss might be neither the time to turn reflective nor visionary, but Tad Boyle was good doing both here Wednesday. All right, he was OK with it, although still a little stung - as one might expect - by his Colorado basketball team's 62-61 loss the previous night against Alabama.

Coming close wasn't what Boyle and the Buffs had in mind for the NIT semifinals. It wasn't the way anyone wanted his first record-setting season at CU to end. That the Buffs won more games (24) than any other men's team in school history was only small consolation in the wake of how Tuesday night's game was lost to the Crimson Tide.

As difficult to digest as the loss was the fact that Boyle awoke Wednesday morning with no practice to conduct, no game to prepare for. "It's hard to believe the season is over with - but that's a good sign," he said. "There's so many times in such a long year that sometimes when the season is over, it's a relief.

"There's no sense of relief with any of our players. That's a good sign; it's refreshing. You put things in perspective, you look at 24 wins and a lot of the things we accomplished this year, it was a very good year, a good starting point. But each year is its own year . . . next year's team will be completely different."

Boyle's first Buffs team stepped took the court in mid-October and immediately received bad news. Center Shane Harris-Tunks had suffered a knee injury that would require surgery and sideline him for the year. Before the first official practice, CU had lost a 6-foot-11, 260-pounder that would force coaches and some players to rethink their approach to the season.

Boyle wound up playing four and five guards at a time and asking other players to play out of position. Still, the players gave enough of themselves and the coaches got enough out of them to win two dozen games. Sure, some of the 14 losses were regrettable and winnable - enough to keep CU out of the NCAA Tournament.

"I don't care what season you're talking about, you're going to look at a handful of games and say what if?" Boyle conceded. "But I think overall, we got a lot out of this group. We had a lot of guys inside playing out of position; they battled, fought, clawed . . . a lot of guys sacrificed and stepped their games up. That's what makes a team so special."

The Buffs get Harris-Tunks back for 2011-12. Freshman surprise Andre Roberson, who set CU first-year records for rebounds, blocks and steals, has a season of experience. Sturdy signee Damiene Cain (6-7, 230) could make an impact inside as could in-coming freshman guards Spencer Dinwiddie and Askia Booker.

Boyle, of course, is reluctant to make any predictions sight unseen. "All have the opportunity . . . but I try to not expect too much out of freshmen," he said. "But I love what all three bring to the table. When the opportunity presents itself, I hope they're ready like Andre was."

Boyle can speak highly (and does) of Utah transfer Carlon Brown ("He's already proven himself at a high level") and University of Denver transfer Sabatino Chen ("He's good at a lot of things; I compare him to a utility infielder.")

Brown, in particular, will be looked at to help fill a leadership void created by the loss of seniors Cory Higgins, Levi Knutson, Marcus Relphorde, Javon Coney and Trent Beckley. Boyle said "all five will be missed," but the 6-5 Brown has practiced with the Buffs for a season and already proved himself to be among the better players. Add a penchant for being vocal and the respect factor, and a leadership candidate emerges. Plus, said Boyle, "He's very mature and understands things from a coach's perspective."

Other returning players will be guards Nate Tomlinson and Shannon Sharpe, forwards Trey Eckloff and Austin Dufault, and center Ben Mills.

Boyle's second CU team will venture into the Pac-12 Conference, uncharted territory for players and their coach. Boyle is excited about the idea of a conference change, but admits he doesn't yet "have a feel" for the new league or many early answers on how his team might compete.

"There's a lot of question marks," he said. "There's hope, optimism and everybody's feeling good about what just happened, but next year's a new year. As a first-year coach, we had a lot of seniors and a pretty special sophomore (Alec Burks) who produced for us. The seniors are gone, the sophomore may or may not be . . . if he leaves, there are a lot question marks. That doesn't mean we're back to square one, it just means there are a lot of question marks."

Burks, who averaged 20.5 points and 6.5 rebounds this season, is deliberating on leaving school early for the NBA or returning for his junior season. He's said his discussions will involve his family, Boyle and probably some of his teammates. As long as he doesn't retain an agent, he can "test the waters" and determine his potential draft position without losing his eligibility.

Boyle wants Burks to satisfy his and his family's needs. CU students and fans want Burks back, imploring him to return with chants of "One More Year" during the season's final month.

Buffs fans had a louder voice this season than in the past - mainly because more of them turned out. A record five sellouts were recorded at the Coors Events Center, and three NIT home games saw crowds spiral upward from 6,299 to just over 9,000 for the Kent State game. The Buffs were 18-2 - the 18 wins were a school record - at the Events Center this season, losing only to then-No. 1 Kansas (82-78) and then-No. 22 Texas A&M (73-70, OT).

Boyle loved the increase and the January-March buzz around the Buffs. His goal, though, is for CU to draw fans who "get to point where they are coming to watch CU play, CU develop and not who we're playing. I think we started that this year . . . the trick is to sustain it. And the key is our fans understanding that. I'm no dummy; I know we have to win. But I do think our fans saw the improvement in our team this year."

With its non-conference schedule cited as a major factor in keeping CU out of the NCAA Tournament, Boyle agreed that scheduling future non-conference games isn't to be done on a whim. "It makes you think about it; it doesn't mean you have any more control over it," he said, noting that CU is initiating series with Air Force and Wyoming, which join Colorado State. One - AFA or Wyoming - will begin in Boulder, the other on the road.

In addition to those non-conference foes, Georgia will visit Boulder and the Buffs will play in the Puerto Rico Tip-Off Tournament, whose field includes NIT finalists Alabama and Wichita State, as well as Iona, Maryland, Purdue, Temple and a school to be named.

Per scheduling, Boyle reiterated a thought first expressed on Selection Sunday: "There's no reward for going on the road, we found that out this year . . . you schedule road games that you can win or road games that won't hurt you if you lose. That's going to be the trick."

Not merely making a judgment by the number of wins, Boyle said he viewed his first season as successful because there was month-to-month and week-to-week improvement: "Success is measured . . . by how much you improve as the season goes on. Are you getting better every month, every game, or are you regressing? I thought we got better. So I think this was a successful year."

As CU moves forward, Boyle said the hoops job he'll have been in for a year in mid-April is better than it was five years ago. "A much better situation," he said, noting the new $12 million volleyball-basketball practice facility and a renewed commitment by the administration. "We've got everything we need to be successful. But again, next year is a new year. What I want to do is built a program that can sustain success.

"I don't want to have a year where you're losing 80 percent of your production in one year. That makes it difficult for the following year. It's not rocket science; you just have to recruit and develop. You have to be smart in 'layering' classes and how you redshirt. Once we're able to put some recruiting classes back-to-back-to-back and build some depth and redshirt some kids, then I'll say OK, it's a different job."

And that - a different job - is something he doesn't want to pursue.

"I certainly love CU and Colorado," he said. "My family loves it; there are a lot of things we feel very, very good about. I don't even worry about that stuff (his name being mentioned in job speculation). It doesn't enter my mind. I'm just fortunate to be the head coach at Colorado and I don't feel any different today than I did last April 19 when they hired me. This is where I want to be."

2011-12 REVIEW

Boyle Reflects On Season, Looks Ahead To Future

BOULDER - Tad Boyle met with members of the media for nearly 45 minutes to look back on the Buffs' run into the NCAA tournament, and ahead to the outlook for the 2012-13 men's basketball season.

As Boyle fielded questions, it became clear that the leadership that was one of CU's greatest strengths in their run to the Pac-12 Tournament title and into the Big Dance is also one of their biggest question marks heading into next season.

"The one thing about this team is we had great leadership this year that was apparent as we played in close games down the stretch," Boyle said. "We had guys like Nate (Tomlinson), Austin (Dufault), and Carlon (Brown) that really stepped up and led this team, so it will be interesting to see who those guys that step forward next year are."

Boyle added that Brown was especially vocal during the Buffs' late season run, often talking as much as CU's coaching staff during timeouts, and shared a moment from Tomlinson that may have served as a rallying point for the team's five straight wins in March.

Following Oregon and Oregon State's sweep of CU to conclude the regular season, the team watched film from the trip of getting outhustled and failing to get back in transition defensively, and, as Boyle puts it, the head coach "got after them" and "got some things off (his) chest." He then put it out to the team to see what was on their mind, and had some guys step up and say some "appropriate" things. Not among those to step up was the senior point guard. So Boyle asked, "'Nate, you've been kind of quiet, what do you think?'"

Boyle recalls Tomlinson's response: "He looked at me straight in the eye and said, 'Coach, do you really want to know?' I said, 'Absolutely I want to know,' and I had no idea what was going to come out of his mouth. He said, 'I don't think we're that good. We've played against Kansas and Texas since I've been here and, no disrespect to anyone in this room, but I don't think we're that good. The only chance we have is if we guard, we rebound, and we compete our (tails) off.' It was the right words at the right time by the right guy ... I don't know if that's why we went to L.A. and played the way we did, but I do know that his teammates got it."

"Who it's going to be next year? I don't know," Boyle said on who fills those leadership roles. "We've got some quiet guys that have to get their vocal cords ready because they have to step up. I think there were some great examples set for them this year, which is a good thing."

The returning Buffs will have a golden opportunity to develop this summer as the team will travel to France for ten days in August to play four games against European professional teams. While Boyle looks forward to those games, he believes the ten days of practice that CU will be allowed before they travel to France will be most beneficial,

Spencer Dinwiddie

Nate Tomlinson

especially since the incoming freshmen will be able to participate.

The Buffs have already signed five players to join the team for next season and "get their feet wet" in France: Wesley Gordon (Colorado Springs, Colo./Sierra HS), Chris Jenkins (Detroit, Mich./University of Detroit Jesuit HS), Xavier Johnson (Santa Ana, Calif./Mater Dei HS), Josh Scott (Monument, Colo./Lewis-Palmer HS), and Xavier Talton (Sterling, Colo./Sterling HS).

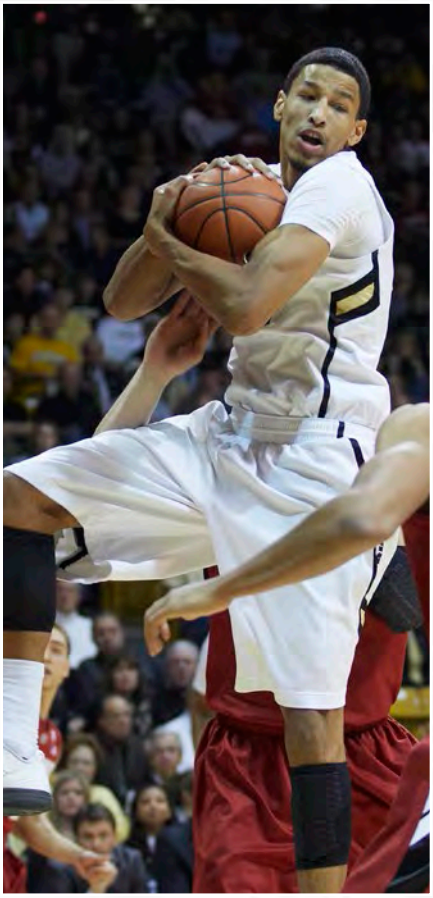

ESPN ranks CU's class No. 22 in the nation as both Johnson and Scott are widely considered to be top 100 national recruits. Boyle believes than any of the five has the ability to fill a role and contribute as a freshman: "I love all the guys we signed early. We're going to continue to recruit here late, but the five that we signed early all have the physical ability to come in and step in and play right away. Who emerges and who doesn't will be an interesting thing to watch ... I think our foreign trip is really going to help."

Boyle also will use the summer trip to see whether bench players from this past season can develop into expanded roles for next season: "We know what Andre (Roberson) can do. Ski (Booker) and Spencer (Dinwiddie) have proven themselves. It will be good to find out and develop depth."

Returning players such as Jeremy Adams, Sabatino Chen, and Shane Harris-Tunks will be given the opportunity to have a "longer leash" to show what they're capable of, as Boyle added, "Because of the (shorter leash), it was hard for them to get into a rhythm and gain a lot of confidence because they didn't get extended minutes like some of the other guys did ... With the opportunity that you're going to play and you don't have to worry about coming out of the game if you mess up, I think that will really help (them)."

Also discussed at the press conference were non-conference opponents that have been confirmed for next season. CU will host Colorado State and Air Force, as well as take trips to Wyoming and Fresno State. The Buffs will also participate in the Charleston Classic in November, a tournament featuring host Charleston, Baylor, Boston College, Dayton, St. John's, and Southern Illinois. Contracts to round out the remaining portion of the non-conference slate are still in the works.

Boyle is proud of what the Buffs have accomplished in his first two seasons at the helm, but his focus is now on where the program is headed going forward: "As we reflect back on the year we had, another 24-win season, it was a great run at the end. I'm really happy with where the program is today and, probably more importantly now, where it's going in the future."

Andre Roberson

SEASON NOTES

- Earned Colorado's first NCAA Tournament berth since the 2002-03 season (nine years) and only the third NCAA Tournament appearance since 1968-69 (43 years).
- Won the Pac-12 Conference Tournament and the automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament winning four games in four days at the Staples Center in Los Angeles. The Buffaloes were the No. 6 seed.
- Carlon Brown named the Pac-12 Tournament's Most Outstanding Player averaging 15.8 points per game on 25-of-50 (50.0 percent) shooting in CU's four wins in four days. Brown also averaged 4.8 rebounds per game with nine steals.
- Against California in the semifinals, Brown had a breakaway windmill dunk that served as an exclamation point in the final minute of CU's victory. The play was No. 4 on SportsCenter's Top Ten plays of the day. Brown also had a highlight reel dunk in the final minute of the title game against Arizona, CU's final bucket of the game in a two-point victory which also snapped a streak of 8:19 without a field goal for the Buffs. Once again in the NCAA tournament win over UNLV, Brown had a breakaway tomahawk dunk in the final three minutes that provided CU with the spark to hold onto victory.
- Carlon Brown's dunk against UNLV appeared on CBS' One Shining Moment.

NATIONAL NOTES

- Roberson ranked third nationally in rebounds per game with 11.1. Roberson trailed the national leader (Siena's O.D. Anosike) by 1.4 rebounds per game. The 68 percent makes CU the biggest gainers in attendance and a No. 1 ranking. Among the top 10 schools listed, CU is the only Pac-12 school that improved in attendance, while five Pac-12 schools decreased in attendance.

2012-13 REVIEW

Boyle Reflects On Third Year

BOULDER – Tad Boyle and Colorado coaching staff were kicking around what makes a good basketball season, a very good basketball season or a great basketball season.

They came to the conclusion that the Buffaloes' 2012-13 season fell squarely into the "good" category. And in a program that knows something about lean years, Boyle and his guys - they just signed off on their third year in Boulder - have the numbers to back up their assessment.

The Buffs won 20 games (21-12) for a third consecutive season (a program first), made a third consecutive postseason appearance (another program first) and made their second straight NCAA Tournament appearance (the first time in 50 years).

Good season, indeed.

"There were a lot of first and some seconds that we were pretty proud of," Boyle said, and his pride in his CU program continues to grow. It's almost ridiculously early to be fashioning Top 25 polls for 2013-14, but that hasn't stopped a handful of outlets from merrily launching into that project.

The Buffs are being shown an uncanny amount of April love by organizations such as The Big Lead (No. 9), Sports Illustrated (No. 11), CBSSports.com (No. 12) and USA Today (No. 16).

"You guys know I'm always trying to minimize and downplay (expectations) as much as possible," Boyle said. "But as we progress as a program – you go to three straight postseason tournaments and back-to-back NCAAs – just the natural progression is the thinking that each year is going to be bigger and better.

"We think we have the opportunity next year with the personnel in place to have a great year. But at the end of the day, (the projections) don't mean anything, other than people recognizing that you've got something pretty special going on."

True, what all the springtime hearts, flowers and cyber kisses will mean come November is TBD. But know this: Boyle likes his returning team – even if Andre Roberson isn't on it.

A pair of redshirt freshmen (6-8 Wes Gordon, 6-7 Chris Jenkins) will join three incoming freshmen (6-5 Jaron Hopkins, 6-6 Tre'Shaun Fletcher, 6-7 Dustin Thomas), adding physical length and depth and impact how Boyle and his staff go about things defensively next season.

"Our depth will be much improved, our athleticism will be much improved," Boyle said. "I think we'll be a more skilled team (and) we have to become a better half-court offensive team . . . that's probably priority No. 1 in the off-season. Priority No. 2 is using that depth and that athleticism and length on the defensive side of the ball."

Translated: Boyle wants to extend his defense, utilize more full-court pressure and, in turn, "get the game up and down and have a high-possession game," he said.

A third priority – one that Boyle wants for next season and definitely wants to address in his 2014 recruiting class – is finding a consistent shooter. Or, in his words, "a knockdown shooter, a guy that comes in and makes shots."

He believes there are several players on his current roster who can be that guy, mentioning Jenkins (if he improves his consistency), guards Eli Stalzer, Xavier Talton and Askia Booker (despite his subpar second half of the season). And there's Spencer Dinwiddie, but

Askia Booker

Andre Roberson

Xavier Johnson

Spencer Dinwiddie

as was shown in the NCAA Tournament loss to Illinois, he has to have a counterpart if he's burdened with fouls or a defense targets him.

Boyle is letting the will-he/won't-he Roberson NBA Draft saga play out, offering the 6-7 junior and his family all the information and advice they want. What concerns Boyle is the amount of misinformation circulating and who else might have the Roberson family's ears and attention.

If Roberson, said Boyle, commits himself to the same hard work he's shown in his three seasons at CU, he definitely will develop as a player next season. But the burning question is where? Will it be at CU, in the NBA Developmental League, overseas or at the end of an NBA bench?

"That's a personal choice that I can't make for him," Boyle said. Roberson and his family have until April 28 to mull that question and others that make this decision so gut-wrenching.

I asked Boyle if the Buffs' appearance in so many early Top 25s sway Roberson in any way. Boyle doesn't believe so. "Andre knows we're going to have a good team next year," he said. "I've told Andre and his parents we want what's best for him. Bottom line, that's what this whole thing's about. If he leaves early, I want him to be in the NBA and I want him getting paid. If he leaves early and he's not in the NBA and he's not getting paid, it's a disappointing decision on his end and our end. They know that."

Last fall's signing class, said Boyle, was fashioned with Roberson's departure in mind: "We're going to be good with or without him. Obviously we're a better team with him . . . but it's not going to be a make-or-break decision for Colorado basketball."

The Robersons' decision, added Boyle, "will come down to risk/reward. I look at where Alec Burks was two years ago and . . . there was very little risk that he was going to be a first-round pick. There's a great reward to be a first-round pick.

"(With) Andre, it's almost just the opposite. The reward there is iffy, the risk is pretty drastic, pretty major."

But Roberson, said Boyle, strongly believes in his ability and, like other college players before him, wants to help provide for his family. Boyle and Roberson have studied the past four NBA Drafts – who went where and how high. "But at the end of the day, there are no guarantees – unless you're a first-round draft pick," said Boyle.

CU continues to work on its 2013-14 non-conference schedule. Boyle spoke with Kentucky coach John Calipari – a longtime friend and colleague from their respective Kansas eras – about scheduling a series.

"Coach Cal" was interested – for about half a minute. "The deal breaker was them coming to Boulder . . . that was not going to happen – at least while he's the coach there," said Boyle, whose three-year home record at CU is 44-7. "So he kind of laughed me off."

The Buffs, said Boyle, likely will wind up with more neutral site games. "That's a happy medium. It's harder and harder to get people to come here. We'll get somebody; some of them you have to play (big bucks) to come here and that's always a fun negotiation that you go through this time of year."

In addition to its Pac-12 Conference opponents, non-conference foes already set for next season include Kansas and Wyoming in Boulder and Colorado State and Air Force on the road. Last season, CU won the Charleston Classic – a neutral court bonanza that aided the Buffs' RPI. Next season, Boyle said probable neutral court games on the West and East Coasts would be ideal for building the Buffs' RPI and burgeoning national exposure.

The RPI lesson this season, said Boyle, is that games against quality teams are more beneficial in the long run than games against "teams with RPIs in the 300s. That's not going to help. We might have one or two of those, but we can't have too many."

NCAA TOURNAMENT TEAMS

2013-14 NCAA Tournament

The University of Colorado basketball team earned their third straight NCAA Tournament with an eighth seed in the South Region played in Orlando. It was CU's highest NCAA Tourney seed since the 1997 when they were ninth in the East Region. The Buffaloes won 23 games, the third most victories in school history, in fact, it was the fourth straight season CU won at least 20 or more games in a season (a school record). The team won 10-straight games during November and most of December, tying for the fourth longest streak in school history. CU was nationally ranked for six straight weeks in the AP Poll (5-straight in the Coaches' Poll) reaching its peak at No. 15 with a 14-2 record. With a 3-0 Pac-12 record, junior guard Spencer Dinwiddie suffered a season-ending ACL injury to his left knee at Washington on Jan. 12. From there, the Buffs closed the season with a 9-9 record, however still defended their home court winning five of seven games. They still managed to reach the Pac-12 Tournament semifinals and finished the conference season with a 10-8 record, tying four other schools for third place. It was CU's highest conference finish in 18 years. The faithful Buff Nation reached a record number who attended games at Coors Events Center with a school-best 173,429 spectators over the 18 home games, and of the nine non-conference home games, another school-best of 84,133 fans were in attendance.

2012-13 NCAA Tournament

The defending Pac-12 Tournament champions won their first six games of the season en route to being nationally ranked for the first time since the 2005-06 campaign. CU made the national tournament for the second straight season, a school-first in 50 years (since Sox Walseth). Head Coach Tad Boyle and his staff won 21 games, the third-straight season over 20 wins (a school-first) and the 69 victories over the last three years, are the most in any three-year span. The Buffs finished fifth in the conference standings and earned an at-large seed at No. 10 in the East Region falling to No. 7 Illinois, 57-49 in Austin, Texas. Andre Roberson was named Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year as well as a first team selection. Spencer Dinwiddie led the Buffs in scoring, assists and free throw shooting, was also named to the conference first team, while Josh Scott was named to the freshman team. The fifth place conference finish was the first time since the Cliff Meely era (1968-71), the Buffs finished fifth or better in three straight years. The Buffs also set a number of attendance records including seven sellouts, 12 of 15 home games exceeding 10,000 fans, in addition to season total (155,884); season average (10,392); conference total (94,371); conference average (10,486). Over the last three years, there have been 16 sellouts with 13 wins. The Buffs would finish second Pac-12 attendance average (all games) and third in conference-only games.

It was nine years since CU last danced in the NCAA Tournament and in one of the greatest seasons ever, second year head coach Tad Boyle equaled the previous season's win total (24), advanced to the NCAA Tourney third round, and won the inaugural Pac-12 Tournament championship by winning four games in four days as the No. 6 seed. The conference regular season had its ups and downs where at one point, CU could have ended the season as the number one or two seed in the tournament. However, losing three of its last four games and dropping to the No. 6 overall seed, the Buff overcame No. 12 seed Utah, 53-41 on 34.9 percent shooting on the opening night at the Staples Center in Los Angeles. On the day two and against No. 3 seed Oregon, CU edged the Ducks, 63-62 for the second time in three meetings this season. Sophomore forward Andre Roberson put back with 13 seconds remaining and a defensive stand by senior point-guard Nate Tomlinson proved to be the difference in the one point win. In the semifinals, CU took care of No. 2 Cal, 70-59 on 59.1 percent shooting from the field in the second half. Senior guard Carlon Brown breakaway windmill dunk served as an exclamation point in the final minute of CU's victory. The play was No. 4 on SportsCenter's Top Ten plays of the day. In the finals, the Buffs held on again for another upset, edging No. 4 seed Arizona, 53-51 after leading the Wildcats by 12 points in the second half. CU scored only three points in the last nine minutes of the game, however, Brown had a highlight reel dunk in the final minute, snapping a streak of 8:19 without a field goal. CU became the first team to win four games in Pac-12 Conference Tournament history, and just the 10th team from the "big six" conferences to do so since 1952. At the NCAA Tournament, the Buffs, seeded No. 11 upset No. 6 UNLV in the second round, then fell to No. 3 Baylor, 80-63, two days later.

2002-03 NCAA Tournament

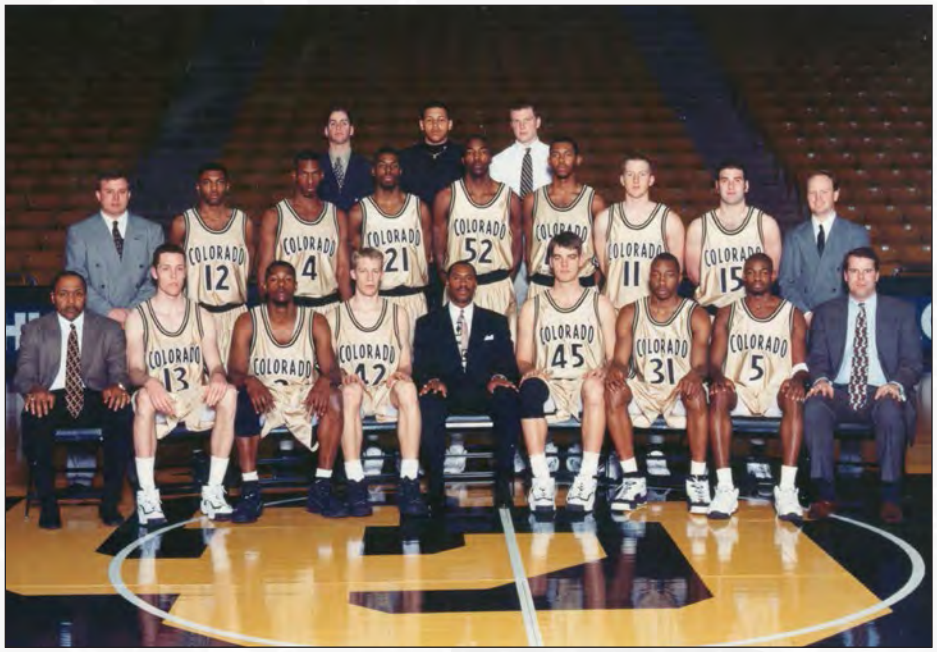

The 2002-2003 season was one of the most successful campaigns in Colorado history. Standards were set high as the team returned five of their top six scorers from a year ago. Rarely in athletic competition can a team live up to the expectations of the media, and the fans; but the Buffs were able to not only meet expectations, but surpass them. CU finished the season 20-12, the third time in school history that a 20 win season had been accomplished. That included a nearly perfect record at home, as they went 14-1 on Sox Walseth Court. The game of the year came on January 22nd when the Buffs were able to topple the #6 ranked Kansas Jayhawks; a feat not accomplished since 1991. Sophomore David Harrison had a breakout year, setting several school records. Harrison broke, and then re-broke the record for blocked shots in a game when he recorded 10 against Stetson, and then 11 at home against Nebraska. Harrison also added two triple-doubles that year against Stetson and Nebraska.

1996-97 NCAA Tournament

The Buffs were back. Not since the late 1960s had CU basketball made the NCAA tournament, or had an AP top 25 ranking. Both of those droughts ended during '96-'97 season, as Colorado made it back to the big dance. Led by sophomore phenom Chauncey Billups, the Buffs stormed to a 22-10 record. Conference play did not change their winnings ways, as they went 11-5 in the Big Twelve. The 22 wins, along with their 11 Big Twelve victories each are school records. With their stellar record, the Buffs were able to break the AP Poll and receive a #24 national ranking. This was the first time since the 1968-1969 season that CU had been ranked in the top 25. The season was highlighted by two upsets, as the Buffs were able to defeat #20 ranked Texas Tech, and then exactly one week later topple the #8 ranked Cyclones of Iowa State. Chauncey Billups turned in one of the best seasons ever by a Buffalo. Billups finished the season with 555 total points, the first time a sophomore had scored that many points since Cliff Meely put up 667 points during the '68-'69 season. Electing for the NBA draft, Billups left Colorado after his sophomore year, but not after becoming the 23rd all time scorer in school history in just two years.

1968-69 NCAA Tournament

Coming off an uninspiring 9-16 overall record the previous year, Colorado was looking for a way to get the program back on track. A 3-11 conference record had coach Sox Walseth reeling. The Buffs were in need of a spark plug; and they found it in Cliff Meely. Never in school history had a first year player given the program a jolt in the way Meely was able to do in the 1968-1969 season. The Buffs tore through the season, finishing with a 21-7 mark and an 11-4 conference schedule. That record included a perfect 11-0 on home court. The 21 wins marked at the time, a school record for wins in a season. Colorado earned a #18 national ranking for their success, the first time the Buffs were able to crack the top 25 since 1963. This success was fueled by the inspiring play of Cliff Meely. Meely finished the season with 667 points, the most ever by a sophomore and 4th all time for any class. His ability to score was complimented by superb rebounding. Meely finished the '68-'69 campaign with 337 rebounds. This mark is also the most by any sophomore, and ranks 2nd all time in CU history.

1962-63 NCAA Tournament

The 1962-1963 season opened with all eyes on the Buffs. Coming off an impressive 19 win campaign and NCAA tournament berth the year before, Colorado was receiving national attention. Coach Sox Walseth knew his team was under the microscope from the very beginning. Some critics thought a team who was not used to being in the spotlight would crumble under the pressure; these Buffaloes proved them wrong. CU stormed through the season, accumulating a 19-7 record while going 11-3 in conference play. It was the second year in a row that Colorado had gone 19-7 overall. A perfect home record and a #10 national ranking helped to keep Boulder in a basketball induced frenzy. The previous year had ended with CU having 499 wins as a program, and they seized first opportunity they had during the '62-'63 campaign to reach that milestone. December 3rd 1962 saw CU defeat Wichita State 79-69 in double overtime, the 500th win of the programs illustrious history. Senior Ken Charlton paced the Buffs in scoring for the season. En route to an All-American selection, the 5th in CU's history, Charlton put up 514 points and 214 rebounds. His point total was well above the rest of the team, outpacing the 2nd best scorer, Jim Davis, by 154 points. Charlton currently ranks 10th all time on the career scoring list.

1961-62 NCAA Tournament

A 19 win season was something the Colorado Buffaloes had seen only once in their history. The last time they won 19 games (in 1955), was the last time CU received a bid to play in the NCAA tournament. With that goal in their heads, Sox Walseth and his Buffs marched to a 19-7 record, and a near perfect 13-1 mark in conference play. The #9 ranked Buffaloes finished the regular season on a torrid pace, winning 14 of their 15 final games. The one loss was their one conference loss as well, falling at Kansas State. That span included a 12 game winning streak, as CU decimated their Big 8 opponents. The #9 national ranking was, and continues to be the highest position CU has ever had with the AP polls. Colorado scorers were paced by junior forward Ken Charlton, who finished the season with 498 points and 216 rebounds. Charlton was the only member of the team to record 400 points and 200 rebounds. One of the great storylines of the season was the play of senior forward Wilky Gilmore. Gilmore was the only member of the team to play in all 26 contests, as he accumulated 330 points and 163 rebounds. Gilmore left the program as the 2nd all time leading scorer in CU history with 1026 career points. He currently ranks 22nd.

1954-55 NCAA Tournament (FINAL FOUR)

It was a season of first for the Buffaloes. The year marked the first time in school history the Buffs were offered an invitation to the NCAA national tournament. Once they arrived, the success they had during the big dance is unmatched in school history to this day. Advancing to the national semifinals, they were eventually defeated by San Francisco. CU won the consolation game 2 days later, to finish the season as the #3 team in the country. The season also saw the first time Colorado could put the number 19 in the win column. They finished with a 19-6 overall record, going 11-1 in tournament play. Their one blemish in Big Seven play came while playing at rival Nebraska. The season opened with a bang, as CU set a school scoring record as they took down Brigham Young by a score of 88-66. Colorado had an amazing winning streak during the season, capturing 15 of 16 games spanning from December to March. A #15 national ranking was also given to the Buffs during the regular season, which marked the first time in school history that CU had broken the AP top 25 poll. The '54-'55 Buffs were blessed to have the single most dominating rebounder in the history of Colorado. Senior Burdette Haldorson tore apart record after record, many of which are still standing today. His accomplishments were highlighted by a 21 rebound effort against Oklahoma, and later a 22 rebound game against Nebraska. His season mark of 346 rebounds is still the school record, as his single season rebounds/game average. He stands 6th on the career list, with 711 rebounds. He also knew how to put the ball in the basket; his 1125 career points was the best in school history when he left. He currently stands 18th on the all time list.

1953-54 NCAA Tournament

Under the direction of coach H.B. Lee, the Buffs finished the season with a less than stellar 10-10 regular season mark. It was their inspired 10-2 Big Seven record, however, that helped the Buffs reach the NCAA tournament for the 4th time in school history. Colorado started their season losing 7 in a row. Fans and the media had already stuck the proverbial fork in the Buff's season. After a loss at home to Iowa State though, a fire was lit under the Buffs, and they went flying to finish out the season. They won 11 of their next 13 games to storm back into tournament contention. That win streak was highlighted by a home win against the defending champion Kansas Jayhawks, along with road wins against contenders Iowa State, Nebraska, and Oklahoma. At season's end, the impressive winning streak was not enough to ensure an NCAA berth. The selection was eventually made when Colorado's name was literally pulled out of a hat. Talk about luck of the draw. CU was paced by junior center Burdette Haldorson. The 6'7 center led the team with 367 points and 199 rebounds. At the time, Haldorson's average of 9 rebounds per game tied him for the all time high with Frank Gompert.

1945-46 NCAA Tournament

One of the youngest CU teams to ever make the NCAA tournament came in the 1945-1946 season. The Buffs did not have one senior to help coach Forrest Cox direct the untested youth. Thankfully for Coach Cox, and for Buffs fans, they didn't need one. Colorado battled their way to a 12-6 overall record, and a 9-3 Mountain States Conference record. The season was highlighted by a 5 game win streak during the heart of the schedule. During that span they were able to defeat conference foes Denver, Colorado State, Utah, and Brigham Young. The inexperienced Buffs were lead by center Hank Knocke. The sophomore transfer exploded out of the gates: scoring 49 points in his first four games as a Buffalo. With a sturdy 6'4 frame, Knocke was able to control the area under the basket, and maintain CU's distinction as a force to be reckoned with. Knocke's season was highlighted by two 26 point efforts; once against Utah State, and again just two weeks later against Denver. At the time, those stood as the 3rd and 4th all time single game scoring records. The Buffs ended their season with a consolation victory over the University of Baylor.

1941-42 NCAA Tournament (FINAL FOUR)

Very little could stop Colorado in their march towards their second all time appearance in the NCAA tournament. The Buffs decimated their competition, going 15-1 in the regular season. Behind the direction of head coach Forrest B. Cox, CU's explosive attack and stingy defensive work won them their first 14 games in as many attempts. The Buffs finally lost their first game of the seas on March 3rd, a 40-39 loss to conference foe Wyoming. A perfect 6-0 home record had the fans in Boulder excited; and their 9-1 away record had the rest of the nation trembling. Colorado would eventually finish their season 16-2, as they took down Kansas in the NCAA western regional semifinals. They would later bow out to Stanford in the regional finals. Their stellar play helped the Buffs capture their 4th Mountain States Conference title in 5 years. Two All-American players helped to pace CU during this dominating season: Robert Doll and Leason McCloud. Robert Doll was the big play man for the Buffs. His imposing presence down in the paint allowed him to out rebound all of his opponents. Doll would later go on to play for the Boston Celtics in the NBA. Doll was supplemented by the stellar play of McCloud. The leading scorer on the team, McCloud was seen by coach Cox as the Buffs "go to guy". McCloud's inspired 19 point performance was the turning factor in Colorado's first round victory against Kansas.

1939-1940 NCAA and NIT

Coming off of an impressive NIT tournament championship, Colorado was invited to play in the NCAA tournament for the first time in school history. Under the direction of coach Forrest Cox, the Buffs had compiled an impressive 17-2 record previous to the NCAA tournament. This included a near perfect 11-1 record in conference play, a flawless 8-0 home performance, and a mid-season 12 game winning streak. Although CU had to bow out after the first round of the tournament, they did not end the season without some hardware to show. They had earlier defeated Duquesne University for the NIT championship. A 52-37 romping of the University of Denver had given the Buffs their 3rd straight Mountain States Conference title. Colorado was lead by Jack Harvey: a two time All-American selection. Over a two year span, CU went 31-8 with Jack Harvey wearing the silver and gold. Harvey was a dominating presence in the defensive end of the court; as well as being the catalyst in an explosive fast break offense. Harvey is Colorado's only two-time All-America selection.

Sitting (L-R): Carlon Brown, Nate Tomlinson, Shannon Sharpe, Javon Coney, Alec Burks, Cory Higgins, Levi Knutson, Sabatino Chen, Andre Roberson.

2010-11 NIT Team

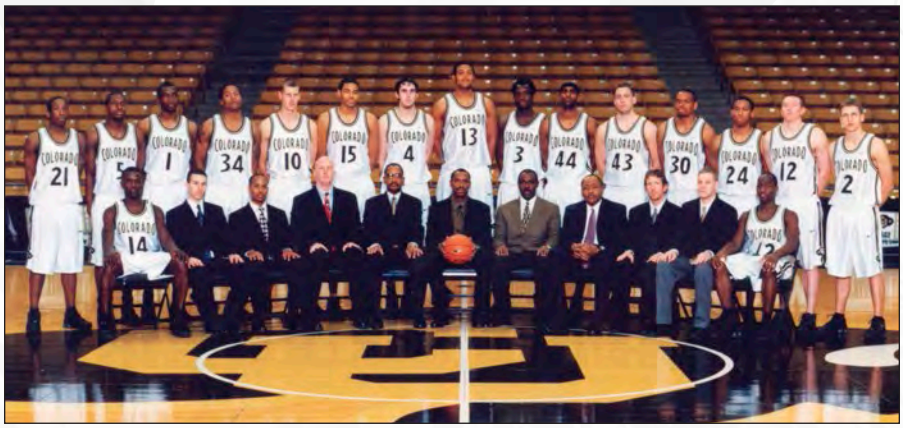

In Tad Boyle's first season as Colorado's head coach, the Buffs won a school-record 24 games (14 losses) in reaching the NIT semifinals at Madison Square Garden. Considered by most analysts to have been the NCAA Tournament's biggest snub, CU made the most of their NIT appearance by winning three straight games before ultimately falling to Alabama in the semis. Led by senior Cory Higgins, who tied Richard Roby for CU's all-time career scoring title (2,001 points), and All-Big 12 unanimous first team selection Alec Burks, the Buffs boasted a potent offensive attack that ranked 12th nationally in scoring (79.6 ppg) and 5th nationally in free throw percentage (77.8 percent). Burks set a CU record for most points in a season with 779, surpassing Cliff Meely's mark that stood for 40 years. The season marked the first time that the Buffs had six players record over 100 made field goals in a season (Burks 251, Higgins 200, Levi Knutson 158, Marcus Relphorde 148, Austin Dufault 104, Andre Roberson 101). Roberson set a CU freshmen record by recording 297 rebounds for the season, and also became the first freshman in school history to lead the team in rebounds, steals (51) and blocks (42). Knutson was honored with the co-Big 12 Sixth Man of the Year Award.

2005-06 NIT Team

Led by a veteran roster of 10 seniors and an All-Big 12 first team selection, in sophomore Richard Roby, the Buffs tallied a 20-10 overall record to earn the school's eighth NIT berth. Coach Ricardo Patton's club ran off to one of the best starts in the program's history, with a 10-1 record before conference play. The season marked the first time three players had made over 50 3-pointers in a season (Roby 63, Andy Osborn 53, Chris Copeland 50). CU became nationally ranked for the first time since the 1996-97 season, coming in at No. 25 team in the country by the USA Today/Coaches' Poll for two straight weeks (Jan. 30-Feb. 12), and tied the school record for home wins in a season, with 14.

2003-04 NIT Team

Colorado won 18 games for the fifth time under coach Ricardo Patton, including 10 in conference play, the most since recording 11 back in the 1996-97 season, and earned a number four seed in the Big 12 Tournament in Dallas. The trio of David Harrison, Blair Wilson, and Michel Morandais each surpassed the 1,000 points in a career mark, en route to the Buffaloes' third NIT berth during Patton's eight years as head coach. Harrison would break the CU record for blocks in a career with a three-block performance against Utah. Harrison went on to block 85 shots during the season and after only three years in a CU uniform, would hold every blocked shot record category. Wilson also broke a bundle of records during the season, as the senior made six treys in a game against Iowa State to break or tie four school records, most notably the school record for career 3-pointers. The Buffaloes ended the year with an overtime loss in the NIT tournament to Oregon 72-77.

1999-2000 NIT Team

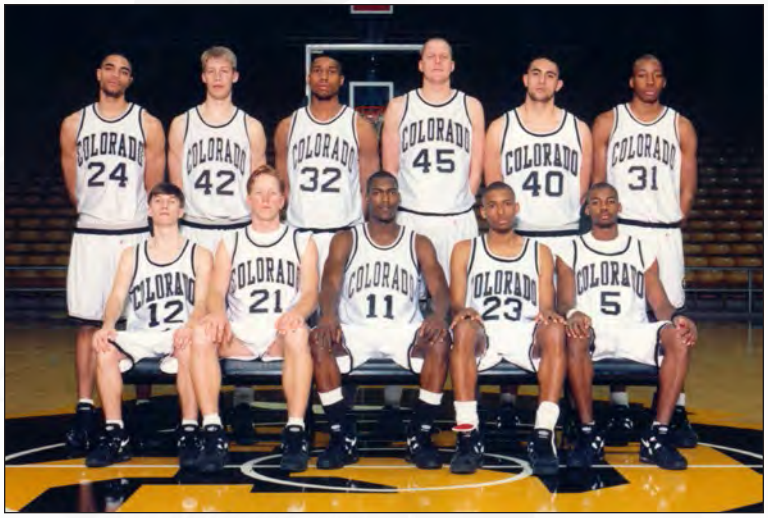

The Buffaloes marched out to an 11-5 pre-conference record to start out the 1999-00 season, led by senior guard Jaquay Walls' 17-point scoring average and Jamahl Mosley and Stephane Pelle's control of the paint, with 7.1 and 6.9 rebounds per game, respectively. On December 3 in Hawaii's Rainbow Classic, Colorado defeated Gonzaga 81-77, making it the Buffs' third straight victory over 1999 NCAA Tournament teams. In what many CU fans believe to be the best game at the Coors Events Center, CU came from behind to defeat Iowa State 102-90 in overtime. Walls scored a NCAA-record 15 points in the overtime, on his way to an astounding 42-point performance. At regular season's end the Buffs were invited to play in the NIT, only to fall in the first round to Southern Illinois 92-94. The invitation marked the third time in four years the Buffs had played in post-season tournaments.

1998-99 NIT Team (Photo Unavailable)

Colorado opened the 1998-99 campaign with a 9-3, where it would see five Buff players average double digits in scoring over the season. By the year's end, many Colorado players had established themselves as some of the elite in the Big 12. Junior Jaquay Walls was named to the All-Big 12 All-Underrated Team, as well as earning All-Big 12 Honorable Mention status. Senior guard Kenny Price was named to the All-Big 12 Third team, while also ranking third in the conference in points per game. Price's nine three-pointers in a Big 12 second round game against Texas would set a single game record, breaking his mark of eight from the year before. With his nine treys, Price would bring his total for the year to 97, the highest single-season total in CU history. In March, Colorado was selected to the NIT, marking the second time in three years that the Buffs made a post-season appearance. CU defeated first round opponent Pepperdine 65-61 in the tournament's opening round, before losing to intrastate rival Colorado State 76-86 in the second round. Price's nine three-pointers in a Big 12 second round game against Texas would set a single game record, breaking his mark of eight from the year before. With his nine treys, Price would bring his total for the year to 97, the highest single-season total in CU history.

1994-95 NIT Team

Colorado started off the 1994-95 season with a 10-3 record, including a convincing win of the Mile High Classic. The Buffs beat Eastern Washington and Hofstra by a combined 39 points for CU's fifth consecutive victory of their home tournament. On January 7 in Boulder, the Buffs ended their 16-game losing streak against ranked teams, when they defeated No. 16 Iowa State 71-57, forcing a school record 31 turnovers by the opponent. After throwing down a fast break dunk, senior guard Donnie Boyce surpassed Cliff Meely (1967-71) to become Colorado's all-time leading scorer, finishing his illustrious career with 1,995 points. Boyce remains the only Colorado player to lead his team in scoring for four consecutive years. On January 17 against Texas-San Antonio, senior Ted Allen blocked five shots to become CU's all-time leader in blocks, finishing with 53 on the year. At the season's end, Colorado qualified for the NIT, for only the second invitation to post-season play in 25 years and the first since the 1900-91 season. The Buffs finished the year with an above .500 winning percentage, for the first time since coach Joe Harrington's debut season with the team.

1990-91 NIT Team

The inside-outside combination of Shaun Vandiver and Steve Wise led the way for the Buffaloes in the 1990-91 season, where the duo combined for an average 41 points per game. The Buffs scored a school record 124 points, twice, in pre-conference match-ups against Central Connecticut State and Tennessee State, both ending in CU victories. Colorado ended a 22-year post-season drought by receiving an invitation to play in the NIT tournament. The Buffaloes beat Michigan (71-64), Wyoming (83-75), Arkansas State (81-75), and Massachusetts (98-91) en route to a third place finish. Vandiver finished the year with a 21.2-point scoring average and 10 rebounds per game, which was good enough to earn the senior center first team All-Big Eight honors, and a spot on the NIT All-Tournament team. Colorado finished the season with a 19-14 record, the team's best in 21 seasons.

1939-1940 NCAA and NIT Team

The 1939-40 edition of the Buffaloes tallied one of the best records in school history, finishing the year at 17-4. The team, led by coach Forrest Cox, dominated the Mountain States Conference with a conference record of 11-1, the sole loss coming from Utah State 29-31. Colorado went on to the NIT in New York City, where the Buffs edged out New York University 48-47 in their first game, before succumbing to Temple University by a score of 34-60, turning in a 15-6 record on the season.

Balch Fieldhouse was the home floor for the Buffaloes during the 1937-38 season.

ALL-AMERICA SELECTIONS

Jack Harvey

In his back-to-back All-America campaigns, Jack Harvey led the Buffs to two conference championships and a trip to the NCAA Tournament in his senior season. During those two years, CU posted an amazing 31-8 mark and received recognition as the No. 1 team in the land. Known for his tough defense, Harvey proved to be key in numerous Buff victories. He was also an outstanding ball-handler for a big man and was a key component in the CU fast break. A solid All-Conference performer, Harvey is the only CU cager to be selected twice as an All-American

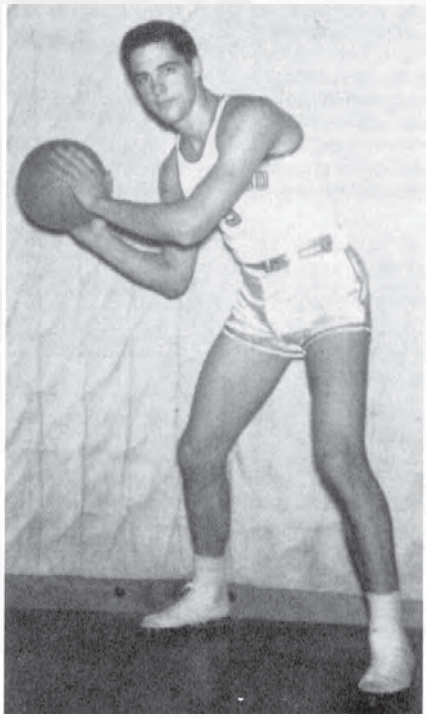

Robert Doll

Bob Doll was the big-play man for coach Frosty Cox's 1941-42 Big Seven Championship squad. Doll, along with fellow All-American Leason McCloud helped lead CU to a 16-2 record and the NCAA Western Tournament finals as a senior. He scored 168 points (9.4 ppg.) and was known as an outstanding rebounder and controlled the paint in many CU wins. He was also renowned for his shooting prowess, finishing second to McCloud in scoring. An unanimous All-Big Seven selection, Doll was selected to All-America teams by Look, Pic and Time magazines. He was also tabbed as MVP of New York's Metropolitan Tournament as a sophomore and was a huge factor in CU's three conference titles in a four-year span. After graduation, Doll went on to play for the Boston Celtics.

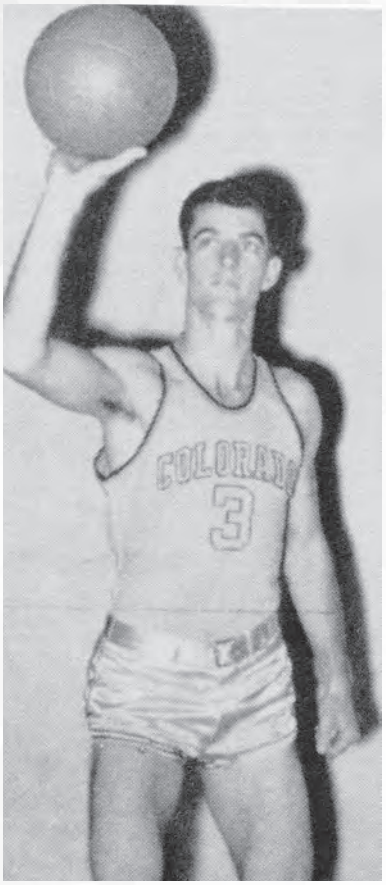

Jim Willcoxon

Known for his defense, Jim Willcoxon continued Coach Frosty Cox's tradition of talented cagers. Willcoxon helped anchor the 1937-38 and 1938-39 Big Seven Championship teams with tough play on the defensive end. He also led the Buffs to national prominence with strong showings on East Coast road trips. His hard-nosed style of play earned him both All-Big Seven and All-America honors as a senior.

The leading scorer for the 1942 Big Seven Champion Buffs, Leason McCloud was Coach Frosty Cox's "go-to guy." Known for his silky-smooth shot, McCloud was also a great passer and rebounder. McCloud was key in CU's NCAA Western Tournament semifinal win over Kansas, pacing the Buffs with 19 points. His play caught the attention of national media and he joined fellow Buff Bob Doll on the Look, Pic and Time magazines' All-America squads and was a unanimous All-Big Seven selection.

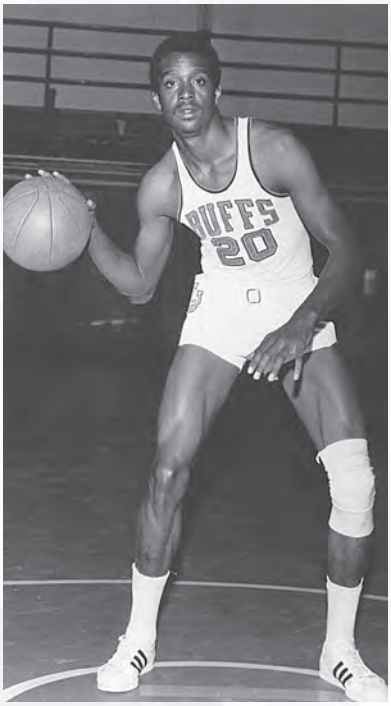

Burdette Haldorson

Burdette Haldorson was virtually unstoppable in 1955. Prior to the season, Coach H.B. Lee said, "We'll be just as good as Haldorson. We need the big man to play well for us." And play well he did, leading CU to a conference championship and a third-place finish in the National Collegiate Tournament. The big man led the Big Seven in scoring at 23.9 points per game and set what still stands as a CU record with an amazing 346 boards on the year. For his efforts, the Amateur Athletic Union tabbed Haldorson a first-team All-American. Haldorson's talents were nationally recognized, as the standout was selected to the 1956 and 1960 U.S. Olympic teams. Upon graduation, Haldorson turned down a $7,000 contract with the NBA's St. Louis franchise. He did continue playing, however, and led amateur powerhouse Phillips 66 to a National Industrial Basketball League title. Haldorson joined Cliff Meely as the only two Buffs to have their jerseys retired in 1994, and was named to the CU Hall of Fame in 1999.

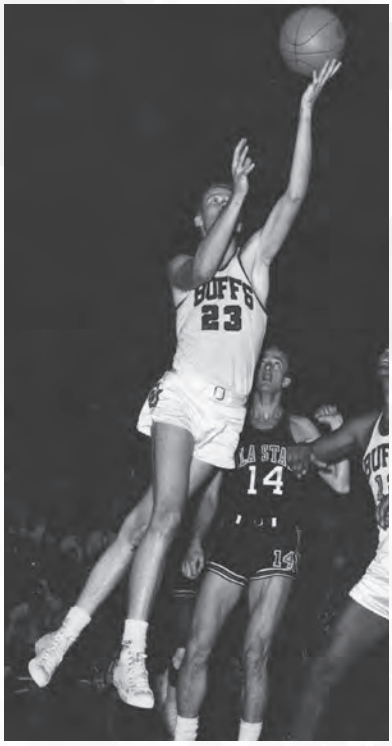

Cliff Meely

In 1971, Cliff Meely was a scoring machine. He tallied a then-CU record 729 points and set a Big Eight record with 427 points in conference. Coach Sox Walseth said of Meely, "He is the most complete player I have ever coached." Known for his quickness and agility, Meely could play any position on the floor. He was named to several All-America teams as a junior and senior and played in numerous all-star games after graduation. Meely went on to play in over 300 games in the NBA for the Houston Rockets and the Los Angeles Lakers.

Ranking No.12 on CU's all-time scoring charts, Ken Charlton battled through a history of knee problems to lead Colorado to two Big Eight titles and in 1963, Charlton was named an All-American by the United States Basketball Writers Association and Look magazine. Along with his penchant for scoring, Charlton was also a force inside, ranking in the top 10 on the CU rebounding charts with 671 career caroms (No. 11 at CU). He also succeeded in the classroom and was named an Academic All-American in 1963 as well. Buff Coach Sox Walseth said of Charlton's play, "On a leg and a half, he's better than anyone else in the Big Eight." Charlton was elected to the CU Hall of Fame in 2010.

Chauncey Billups

One of CU's top perimeter threats in hoops history, Chauncey Billups graced the CU campus for two seasons before departing for the NBA. As a sophomore in 1997, Billups was named a first-team All-American by Basketball News, becoming the eighth All-American in Colorado history. Known for his playmaking skills and ability to penetrate, Billups also led the Buffs to their first NCAA Tournament in over two decades, where CU topped perennial-power Indiana in the opening round. Billups went on to be the third pick in the NBA draft by the Boston Celtics. In 2004, Billups helped lead the Detroit Pistons to the NBA title, in addition was named The NBA Finals Most Valuable Player.

Atlanta Hawks, 1995 • San Antonio Spurs, 1996-97

Ranking third all-time on Colorado's all-time leading scorer, Donnie Boyce completed his collegiate career in 1994-95 with 1,995 career points. However, Boyce's career ended prematurely when he broke his leg during the first half of CU's 1995 Big Eight Tournament game against Oklahoma. During his career in Boulder, Boyce was named All-Conference three times, twice on the league's first team. Boyce also held school records for games started (107), field goals attempted (1,648), free throws made (480) and free throws attempted (721). In four consecutive seasons (1991-95), Boyce led the Buffaloes in scoring, and led the Big Eight in scoring (league games only) as a junior (26.8 ppg). A gifted player on all levels, Boyce will be remembered as one of the greatest players in CU and Big Eight history.

Chris Copeland

Chris Copeland

New York Knicks, 2012-13 • Indiana Pacers, 2013-14

Chris Copeland had an interesting path in order to fulfill his dream of playing in the NBA after graduating from CU in 2006. Copeland originally signed with the NBA D-League's Fort Worth Flyers for the 2007 season. He then moved on to play overseas for teams in Spain, the Netherlands, Germany, and Belgium. Finally, though, Copeland got his shot with an NBA team in 2012 when he signed with his hometown New York Knick, where he averaged 8.7 points on 47.9% shooting (including an impressive 42.1% from three-point range) and 2.1 rebounds per game. At CU, Copeland was a four-year letter, winner helping the Buffs to a pair of NIT Tournaments (2004, 2005) as well an NCAA Tournament appearance (2003). During his junior and senior seasons he was second on the team in scoring, trailing only Richard Roby. In his senior season he led the team in blocked shots with 32 on the season.

Jim Creighton

Atlanta Hawks, 1975-76

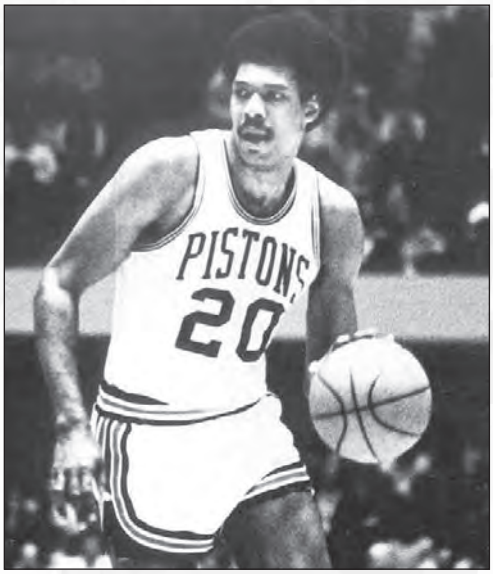

After playing in the shadows of Cliff Meely for two years, Jim Creighton came into his own during his junior and senior seasons. He quickly became a stalwart performer for the Buffs. Not big for a center (6-7, 190), Creighton played much bigger with his great jumping ability. Following an excellent senior season, he was named to the NCAA's District V All-Star squad. Creighton enjoyed a one-year stint with the Atlanta Hawks. Used primarily for his defensive ability, he played in 32 games, averaging one point and 1.4 boards per game.

Jim Davis

St. Louis/Atlanta Hawks, 1967-72 • Houston Rockets, 1972 • Detroit Pistons, 1972-75

Jim Davis guided Colorado to two Big Eight championships during a brilliant three-year career. During that time, Davis emerged as one of the school's all-time top rebounders (863 boards) and scorers (1,110 points). In addition to being a fine rebounder and scorer, Davis was also known for his defensive skills. As a professional ball player, Davis played for three different clubs, St. Louis/Atlanta, Houston and Detroit. His most successful seasons were spent with St. Louis/Atlanta as he averaged 7.9 points per game and totaled 1,484 career boards.

Spencer Dinwiddie

Detroit Pistons, 2014-15

One of the most outspoken, clutch players in CU basketball history, Spencer Dinwiddie helped the Buffaloes to three-straight NCAA Tournament appearances and a Pac-12 Tournament Championship during his outstanding two-and-a half-years in Boulder. With a career scoring average of 13.0 points per game, Dinwiddie was the 30th player in school history to reach the 1,000-point plateau (1,115 points). He started every game (86) as a Buff and also averaged 3.4 rebounds, 2.6 assists, 1.1 steals per game. He ranks in a number of all-time top-10 statistical categories, including No. 3 in free throw percentage (.830), No. 4 in 3-point field goal percentage (.386), No. 5 in FT made (420), and No. 7 in FT attempts (506). He once made 33-straight free throws (Feb. 7-21, 2013; 5 games), which is the fourth longest streak in school history. During his junior season cut short by an ACL injury, Dinwiddie's biggest scoring game of the campaign came against in-state rival Colorado State, where he lit up the Rams for 28 points and a 67-62 win at Colorado State (Dec. 3, 2013). During his sophomore year, he victimized the Rams once again in Boulder, scoring a career-high 29 points with a personal-best five treys. On Feb. 10, 2013, he set school record by scoring the most points by a Buff without missing a shot at Oregon State (6-of-6 FG; 4-of-4 3 pt.; 8-of-8 FT). Dinwiddie was selected by the Detroit Pistons in the second round of the 2014 NBA Draft (38th overall).

Robert Doll

St. Louis Bombers, 1946-48 • Boston Celtics, 1948-50

One of the key players for Coach Forrest "Frosty" Cox's 1941-42 Big Seven championship squad, Robert "Ichabod" Doll was known for his aggressive defense as he was named a unanimous first-team All-Conference player following his senior season. That same year, he also garnered All-America honors in Look, Pic and Time magazines. In 1940, Doll led the Buffaloes to bids in both the NCAA Tournament and NIT. He was named the NIT Most Valuable Player after averaging 15.5 points per game. Two years later, Doll was named a consensus second team All-American and led Colorado to its first Final Four. Doll played professionally for two years with the St. Louis Bombers 1946, then joined the Boston Celtics as a free agent. During his two-year stint with the Celtics. Doll averaged 8.4 points and 1.4 assists per game during his pro career.

Pat Frink

Cincinnati Royals, 1968-69

Known as an excellent shooter, Pat Frink finished his career at Colorado as the second leading scorer in Buff basketball history at that time (1,288 points). He accomplished that feat even though he missed the 1966 season due to a knee injury. Frink was also chosen as a member of the second-team academic All-America squad in 1968. After graduation, Frink went on to play professionally with the Cincinnati Royals for one season. While a member of the ABA team, he played in 48 games and averaged 2.6 points per game.

A two-time All-Big Eight selection, Gardner was also chosen as a scholastic All-American his senior season. His excellent touch around the basket and dangerous hook shot enabled him to be an outstanding inside scorer. Although he only played one year professionally, he did record some notable marks with the ABA's Denver Rockets. In 42 games, he averaged 4.7 points and 3.2 boards per game.

David Harrison

Indiana Pacers, 2004-08

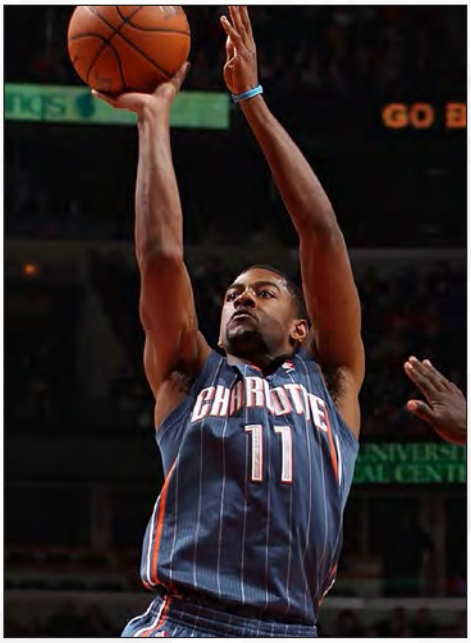

David Harrison had his best season with the Buffs during his junior year leading the Buffaloes in scoring (17.1 ppg.) and shooting an impressive 63.1 percentage from the field. The seven-foot, 250-pound presence led the Big 12 Conference in field goal percentage and more impressively was third nationally. What turned out to be his third and final season in Boulder (opted for the NBA draft), Harrison was drafted No. 29 of the first round by Indiana. In four seasons with the Pacers he averaged 5.0 points, 2.9 rebound a game, and shooting 53 percent from the field. Although his NBA career would not produce the numbers he performed in college, Harrison is currently the CU blocked shot record holder (225) and eclipsed the 1,000-point barrier (1,317 pts.). Harrison holds or shares every blocked shot record in school history and helped the Buffs to the 2002-03 NCAA Tournament and a 2003-04 NIT appearance.

Cory Higgins

Cory Higgins

Charlotte Bobcats, 2011-12

A solid four-year letterwinner who played a then-school record 132 games, Higgins is the only player in CU history with at least 2,000 points (2,001); 500 rebounds (547); 300 assists (320); and 150 steals (192) during his career. He shares the all-time scoring record with 2,001 points and at the time of his graduation was the holder of 17 school records. He's also the CU and Big 12 record holder with 45 consecutive free throws made (Dec. 10, 2008–Jan. 14, 2009) covering eight games as a sophomore. Higgins was a three-time All-Big 12 third team selection and a Wooden Award Preseason Top 50 Watch List nominee entering his senior year. His 2,001 career points ranked sixth all-time among Big 12 Conference scorers (in all games played) and during his junior and sophomore seasons, led the Big 12 (conference games-only) in steals with a 2.1 steals per game average.

Jay Humphries had an outstanding career at CU, as he was elected twice for both All-America and All-Conference honors. Humphries is the current all-time leader in both steals (309) and assists (586), evidence of both his great quickness and ball handling abilities. Humphries finished his career with the Utah Jazz, after spending four seasons with Phoenix and four with Milwaukee. He reached two milestones in 1992-93, tallying his 4,000th assist and 8,000th point. He averaged a career-high 15.3 points per game in 1989-90, and never averaged under 7.5 points per game. Cliff Meely scored over 2,500 points in his NBA career with the Houston Rockets and L.A. Lakers.

Houston Rockets, 1971-76 • Los Angeles Lakers, 1976

One of two players in Colorado basketball history to have his jersey number retired (20), Cliff Meely was named an All-American following the 1970-71 season. Meely was truly a graceful performer who could shoot from anywhere on the court. He finished his career at CU possessing eight Big Eight Conference marks and 16 school records, including at the time CU's all-time scoring record (1,940 points). He still owns the school mark averaging 24.3 points per game. Meely transferred to CU as a junior college All-American from Northeastern JC. While there, he scored 40 or more points on five separate occasions. Meely played in more than 300 professional games over six seasons with the NBA's Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers. André Roberson

No. 26 Overall (1st Round)
Minnesota Timberwolves, 2013
Traded to Oklahoma City, 2013-present

After three record-breaking seasons at CU, Roberson chose to forego his senior year and enter the 2013 NBA Draft. The decision proved to be a wise one as the 6-7 power forward was selected with the 26th overall pick in the draft. Roberson left Boulder as the only CU men's basketball player with 1,000 points (1,012), 1,000 rebounds (1,045), 150 blocks (150), 150 steals (164), and 100 assists (119). He was also the first CU player to lead the team three straight years in rebounding, steals, and blocked shots. His 1,045 rebounds were only 10 boards short of the school record set by Stephane Pelle; however Pelle did so over the course of four seasons (1999-2003), while Roberson only played three seasons. Roberson's 150 blocks ranks as No. 3 all-time at CU. In 105 career games, he tallied double-digit rebounds in 59 games, and scored in double-figures 52 times. Roberson also holds the freshman (297), sophomore (401), and junior (347) season rebounding records. Roberson joins Alec Burks as the second player in the last three years to be selected in the first round of the NBA Draft.

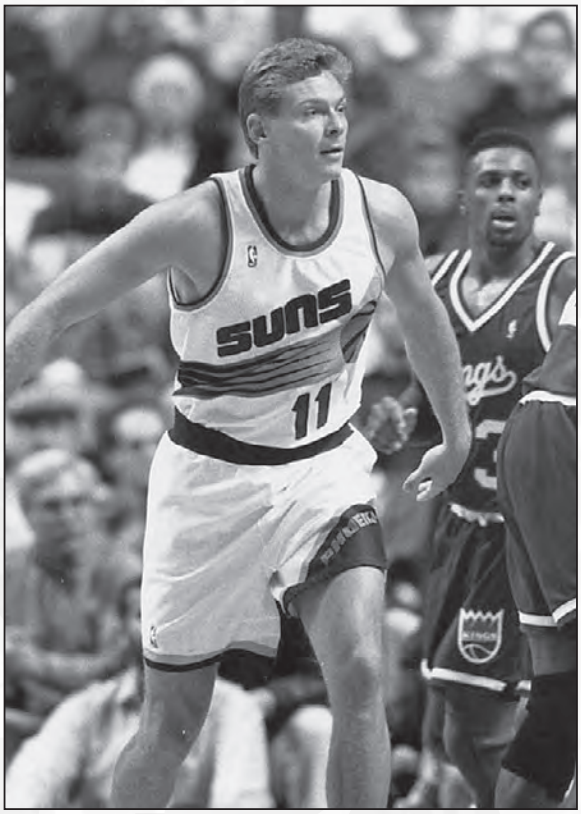

Alex Stivrins

He finished his collegiate career at CU with averages of 13.9 points and 10.4 rebounds per game. His first year in the NBA was spent with the Seattle SuperSonics, in 1985-86. Following that he played in both the CBA and the Italian League before returning to the NBA ranks in 1992-93. That season, he had stints with four different teams.

Scott Wedman provided the backbone for CU basketball in the early '70s. Head Coach Sox Walseth called Wedman "one of the best we've ever had here." With his great touch, he was smooth as silk with the ball, and was also a big factor on the boards. Wedman's outstanding play earned him All-Big Eight honors in both his junior and senior seasons. Wedman began his professional career with the NBA's Kansas City franchise, where he played for six seasons. While there, he averaged 17.4 points per game and 6.0 rebounds in 466 games. HALDORSON NAISMITH HALL OF FAME

Burdette "Burdie" Haldorson, one of the early stars in the history of the University of Colorado men's basketball program, was inducted along with his teammates from the 1960 United States Olympic team into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame. The 2010 class was inducted on August 13 in Springfield, Mass.

That 1960 team brought home the gold medal from Rome and also featured Jerry West (West Virginia), Oscar Robertson (Cincinnati), Jerry Lucas (Ohio State) and Walt Bellamy (Indiana). The 12-man squad cruised to an 8-0 record, the average winning margin a gaudy 42.4 points. The team beat Brazil, 90-63, to clinch the gold after disposing of the USSR (81-57) and host Italy (112-81) leading up to the gold medal contest.

The 1992 "Dream Team" also will be inducted, along with Karl Malone and Scottie Pippen, among others. The 1960 and 1992 squads are generally considered the top two men's basketball teams in U.S. Olympic history.

They will become the seventh and eighth teams that the Hall is inducting, the first Olympic ones, joining others that include the Harlem Globetrotters, the original Celtics, and the 1966 Texas Western team that shattered the race barrier when it beat Kentucky to win the NCAA title. Members of inducted teams go into the Hall as a full group, not as individuals.

"I don't really know that much about it yet, but it will be a real honor to go into the Hall with the group of players that was on that team," Haldorson said from his winter home in Scottsdale, Ariz. "There were 12 guys, and all but two of us went into the NBA. I was one of those two, and I had invitations to turn pro as well, but I was basically ending my career. Some of those guys were outright starts, and I really believe Jerry West and Oscar Robertson would be stars in the game today."

"I've run into Oscar and Jerry a few times, but we all really went our own directions, so most of us haven't really seen each other since we parted ways that summer," he added. "We've never had a reunion so we kind of lost track of each other, but I can't think of a better way to finally get us all together again."

Haldorson averaged 2.9 points and 4.3 rebounds per game on the '60 team, and also won a gold medal as a member of the '56 team, when he averaged 8.6 points per contest. With Haldorson as a team member, the United States went 16-0 in the two Olympic games.

Haldorson's uniform, No. 22, is one of just two retired basketball jerseys in CU history. He left quite an imprint in the school's basketball annals, and the 6-foot-7 Austin, Minn., native still holds four school rebounding records some five-plus decades after his CU playing days, including the most in a half (21), game (31) and season (346).

As a senior in 1954-55, he led the Buffs to the Big Seven Conference title by averaging 23.9 points per game, and was named a first-team All-American. CU eventually went on to finish third in the nation, losing in the Final Four to eventual champion San Francisco and the legendary Bill Russell.

He averaged 15.0 points and 9.5 rebounds for his CU career, and was the first of only eight players to this day to score at least 1,100 points and record 700 or more rebounds. He was inducted into CU's Athletic Hall of Fame in the school's second class in 1999; he previously had been inducted into the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame, the first with ties to CU's basketball programs, in 1977.

Haldorson went on to have a brilliant career in the National Industrial Basketball League as a member of the Phillips 66ers, the team entry for Phillips 66, who then hired him after his career. He then moved to Colorado Springs to form his own gas and oil distribution business. In October 2011, Haldorson was inducted into the 12th class of the Colorado Springs Hall of Fame at the Colorado Springs World Arena, and in March 2012, he was named to the Pac-12 Conference Men's Basketball Hall of Honor, recognizing former men's college basketball players and coaches who have made a significant impact to the tradition and heritage of the conference.

BUFFS HALL OF FAME

DON BRANBY

- Three-Sport Letterman (Football, Basketball, Baseball)
- Football First-Team All-American
- CU Record Holder (Fumble Recoveries)
- Longtime college and professional coach

Don Branby was one of the last three-sport lettermen in Colorado history, as he earned nine in all playing football, basketball and baseball. His top honor was being named an Associated Press All-American in football in 1952, when he set what are still CU records with seven fumble recoveries and nine takeaways. Published reports at the time said he had at least 20 tackles in a 21-21 tie with Oklahoma, the Sooners' lone blemish in their famous Big 7 Conference run. He was just the sixth CU player to be invited to play in a postseason all-star game when he appeared in the 1953 East-West Shrine Game. A seventh round draft pick by the New York Giants in the 1953 Draft (the 79th player selected overall), he went on After his playing days, he went into coaching in college at Montana State, and then in the Canadian Football League with the British Columbia Lions and the Ottawa Roughriders. In basketball, he scored 165 points in 45 career games in primarily a reserve role, though he led the Buffaloes in free throw percentage in 1951-52, making a then unheard of 39-of-48 tries (81.3%). In baseball, he played first base, third base and in the outfield; his 16 runs batted in were the third most on the team his senior year. He also spent four years in the Air Force, playing service football in which he also earned high accolades.

KEN CHARLTON

- 1963 All-American & Academic All-American
- Two-time All-Big 8 Selection
- Inducted into CU Hall of Fame in 1999

Ken Charlton was a member of back-to-back Big 8 Conference titles and two straight NCAA tournament appearances under the late-Sox Walseth. Often going out and scoring 20-plus points a day or two after having his knees drained of excess fluid, Charlton was CU's all-time leading scorer at the time of his graduation with 1,352 points in just three seasons. Walseth often referred to him as, "the finest offensive player I ever coached."

Twelfth on CU's all-time scoring chart, Charlton was named an All-American by the United States Basketball Writers Association and Look magazine. Along with his penchant for scoring, he was also a force inside, ranking in the top 10 on the CU rebounding charts with 671 career caroms (he's 12th today). He also succeeded in the classroom and was named a 1963 Academic All-American.

Charlton's 514 points scored during the 1961-62 season ranks 22nd today for most points tallied in a single season. He owns a pair of 35-point efforts at Kansas (Jan. 5, 1963), and at Missouri (Mar. 5, 1962) that still rank among the top-20 scoring games in school history. Walseth said of Charlton's play, "On a leg and a half, he's better than anyone else in the Big Eight."

FORREST "FROSTY" COX

The winningest men's basketball coach in CU history in terms of percentage until recently (Tad Boyle), Forrest B. "Frosty" Cox coached the Buffaloes to a 147-89 record (.623) in 13 seasons in Boulder (1935-42, 1944-50) ... He led Colorado to three NCAA tournament appearances (1940, 1942, 1946) and to a pair of NIT berths (1938, 1940), the latter considered the more significant postseason tourney at the time ... His 1940 won the NIT championship in New York City, defeating DePaul and Duquesne at Madison Square Garden (in 1938, the Buffs defeated BYU but lost to Temple in the title game) ... In 1942, CU defeated Kansas, 46-44, in the NCAA quarterfinals to advance to the Final Four, one of two appearances by CU to this day; the Buffs lost to eventual champion Stanford, 46-35 ... Colorado was considered by many to have the top basketball program west of the Mississippi during the first half of Cox's tenure … His four teams that made the postseason are still tied for the most by any coach in CU history (just matched by Boyle in 2013-14) ... During Cox's tenure, CU won four Mountain State Conference titles (1938, 1939, 1940, 1942) and the 14-game winning streak by his '41-42 squad is still the longest in CU annals ... He coached CU's first four All-Americans in basketball: Jack Harvey, Jim Willcoxon, Robert Doll and Leason "Pete" McCloud ... Five of his former players are in the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame: Harvey, Byron White, Harry Simmons, Art Unger and Russell "Sox" Walseth; he was inducted in the 2014 class ... He also was an assistant football coach, tutoring the backfield, and thus coached White his All-American season in 1937 … As a player at the University of Kansas, Cox was a first-team All-American and an All-Big 6 performer under the legendary Phog Allen ... He was named captain by his sophomore season and earned All-American honors as a senior in 1931, when he was awarded the Big Six honor medal (as CU's coach, he owned a 7-4 record against his alma mater) ... A member of KU's Athletic Hall of Fame ... He passed away on May 22, 1962 at the age of 54 ... Inducted into the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame (April, 2014).

JIM DAVIS

Three-year letterman under the legendary Sox Walseth, he earned first-team All-Big 8 honors from both the Associated Press and United Press international his junior (1962-63) and senior (1963-64) seasons … CU was 53-24 in his career, winning two Big 8 titles and earning two trips to the NCAA Tournament … He scored 1,110 career points (still 23rd on CU's all-time list), converting 411-of-841 field goal attempts for a 48.9 percentage, considered very good for the day … He averaged 14.4 points per game over his career, including 18.5 his senior season, when he also averaged 12.7 rebounds for a second straight season, leading the Big 8 both years … With a 13.8 scoring norm as a junior, that makes him one of the few players in school history to average a double-double for two seasons … He averaged 11.2 rebounds per game over his career (77 games) … At the time of his graduation, he was CU's all-time leading rebounder and third all-time scorer … He was a fourth round selection by Detroit in the 1964 NBA Draft, but the 27th player overall in a 9-team league at the time… Waived by the Pistons that September, he persevered and eventually signed as a free agent with the St. Louis Hawks in 1967; he went on to play for the Hawks, both in St. Louis and when they moved to Atlanta … He was traded to Houston for a month during the 1971 season and finished up his career after being traded to Detroit … He played eight seasons in all, scoring 3,997 points with his best year coming in 1969-70 when he averaged 13.6 points and 9.7 rebounds for Atlanta, helping the Hawks to a 48-34 record and first place in the NBA West Division … From Muncie, Ind., where he prepped at Central High, and currently resides in Windsor, Ontario.

BURDETTE HALDORSON

- 1955 All-American
- 1955 Final Four Participant
- 1956 (Gold Medal)
- 1960 (Gold Medal) U.S. Olympian
- Retired Number (No. 22)

Burdette Haldorson, No. 22 is one of just two retired basketball jerseys in CU history, left quite an imprint in the school's basketball annals. The 6-7, 210-pound Austin, Minn., native still holds four school rebounding records some five decades after his CU playing days, including the most in a half (21), game (31) and season (346). As a senior in 1954-55, he led the Buffs to the Big Seven title by averaging 23.9 points per game, and was also named as a first-team All-American. CU eventually went on to finish third in the nation, losing at the Final Four to eventual champion San Francisco and the legendary Bill Russell. Haldorson earned two gold medals in 1956 and 1960 as a member of the U.S. Olympic team, went on to have a brilliant career in the National Industrial Basketball League as a member of the Phillips 66ers, the team entry for Phillips 66, who then hired him after his career. He then moved to Colorado Springs to form his own gas and oil distribution business. In August 2010, Haldorson and his 1960 United States Olympic teammates were inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

JACK HARVEY

Basketball (1937-40)

He remains the only CU basketball player to be selected twice as a first-team All-American (1938-39, 1939-40), when he led the Buffs to two Mountain States Conference titles, and as a senior, an N.I.T. title and a trip to the NCAA Tournament. Harvey scored 27 points in CU's 52-37 win at Denver in 1940, at the time the most points scored by a Buff in a single game and virtually an unheard total west of the Mississippi at the time. Known for his tough defense, he was a key performer in limiting the opponent to just 31.2 points per game his junior season and only 37.0 his senior year.

BOB JEANGERARD

Three-year letterman (1952-1955) under head coach H.B. Lee … Two-time All-Big Seven Conference first-team selection … Member of two NCAA Tournament teams in 1953-54 and 1954-55 (Final Four) under coach H.B. Lee. … Averaged 12.4 points and 6.1 rebounds per game during his collegiate career … His senior year, he averaged 16 points and 6.8 rebounds per game, ranking second on the team in both categories … CU won a then-school-best 19 games and reached the national semifinals falling to eventual champion San Francisco … Named the NCAA Tournament Regional Most Outstanding Player … Also that season, member of the CU team that rallied from a 23-point first half road deficit to edge Kansas State. BILLY LEWIS

- First African-American Varsity Basketball Player at CU
- Three-Time Basketball Letterwinner
- Cleared 6-6 3/4 as a High Jumper
- Voted Commissioner of the ASUC by the Student Body

The first African-American varsity basketball player at Colorado (and the first to letter), enrolling at CU in September 1956; at that time, freshmen were ineligible to play and he thus made his debut in the 1957-58 season. As with his football counterparts, though treated well in Boulder, he often had to endure harsh racism on the road in pre-Civil Rights America and thus blazed the trail for all those who would follow him to CU. The 6-3 forward played in 67 career games, scoring 244 points and grabbing 197 rebounds in lettering three times. His best season on the court was his junior year, when he averaged 5.9 points per game with a career-high 21 against Nebraska.

In 1959, after the basketball season was complete, he decided to come back out for track in his specialty, the high jump; he cleared 6-6¾ and finished second in the CU Invitational (to Wyoming's Jerry Lane, who jumped an inch higher) which topped his previous personal best of 6-2 as a senior at Denver's Manual High School, where he was coached by CU great and Hall of Fame member Gil Cruter. Just as important if not more so were his contributions as a student leader, becoming the first African-American elected by the student body as commissioner of the ASUC (Associated Students of the University of Colorado); he led a delegation of students and testified on the resolutions against discrimination in housing and employment practices and headed the SFHD, Students For Human Dignity, two of many causes he championed that helped change CU in a positive way forever.

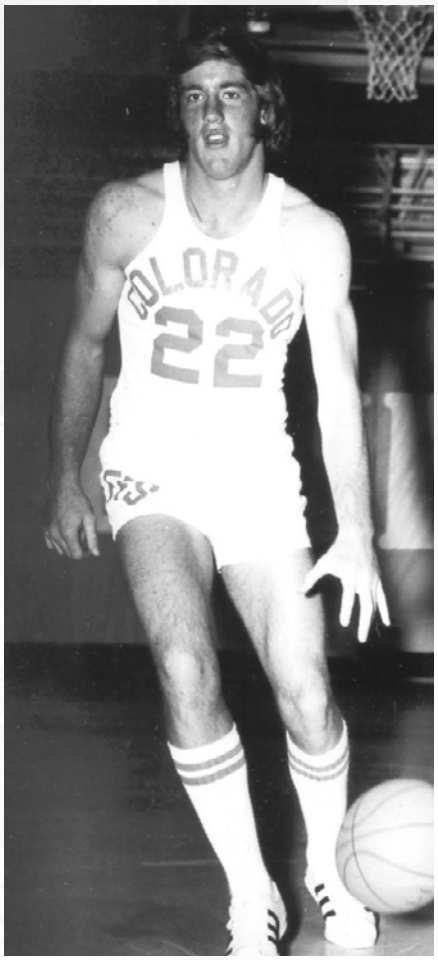

Upon his graduation from CU in 1960, he clerked for a Denver judge, and after marrying fellow CU grad JoKatherine Holliman (the first African American woman on CU's homecoming court), they relocated to Washington D.C. where he would work for Colorado senator Peter Dominic in 1963 and 1964 while earning his Juris Doctor of Law degree from Howard University. In '64, he was recruited by IBM and took a position as the first African-American corporate attorney at the company's headquarters in Armonk, N.Y., and returned to Colorado two years later (1966) to be the junior counsel for IBM in its Niwot offices. He almost made a successful bid to become a state representative in 1968 against Tom Bastien, but lost by just 100 votes; he then opened a private law practice in Denver with partner Morris Cole.

DAVE LOGAN

- 1975 First Team All-American (Sporting News)
- 1974 Playboy Preseason All-American
- Averaged 14.1 Points in 58 Basketball Games
- Drafted by Three Professional Leagues (NFL, NBA, MLB)

A first-team All-American as a senior in 1975 as selected by The Sporting News and a Playboy Preseason All-American prior to his junior season, the lone Buff to ever make the squad as a non-senior. Logan caught 68 passes for 1,078 yards in his CU career, numbers that both ranked second at the time of his graduation and remain in the top 20 all-time. He led the Buffs in receiving in both 1974 and 1975, after finishing second to the late J.V. Cain as a sophomore in 1973.

A two-sport star at CU (he also lettered in basketball, averaging 14.1 points in 58 career games), Logan is one of a handful to ever be drafted in three sports: he was a third round pick by Cleveland in the 1976 NFL Draft (65th overall); the Kansas City Kings nabbed him in the ninth round of the '76 NBA Draft; and the Cincinnati Reds had drafted him as an infielder and pitcher in the 19th round of baseball's June draft out of high school (longtime MLB outfielder Dave Winfield was also drafted in three). He played in 119 NFL games with Cleveland (1976-83) and Denver (1984) catching 263 passes for 4,250 yards and 24 touchdowns in his pro career. Logan settled back home in Colorado where he starred as a prep. He is a longtime participant in the radio sports talk scene in Denver, and was the radio play-by-play voice of the Denver Broncos after several years as the color analyst. He also worked several CU football games for KCNC-TV in the 1990s as the color commentator.

LEASON "PETE" McCLOUD

Basketball (1939-42)

A first-team All-American, the third in CU basketball history and just the sixth CU athlete in any sport at the time, he was the Buffs' leading scorer on the 1941-42 team that reached the Final Four (he scored 19 points in a 46-44 win over Kansas that enabled CU to advance in the tournament). He was also a member of the 1939-40 team that won the N.I.T. and was invited to the first NCAA tournament. A two-time All-Mountain States performer (junior, senior seasons), he led the league in scoring both as a junior (14.1 per game) and senior (16.5, big for its day).

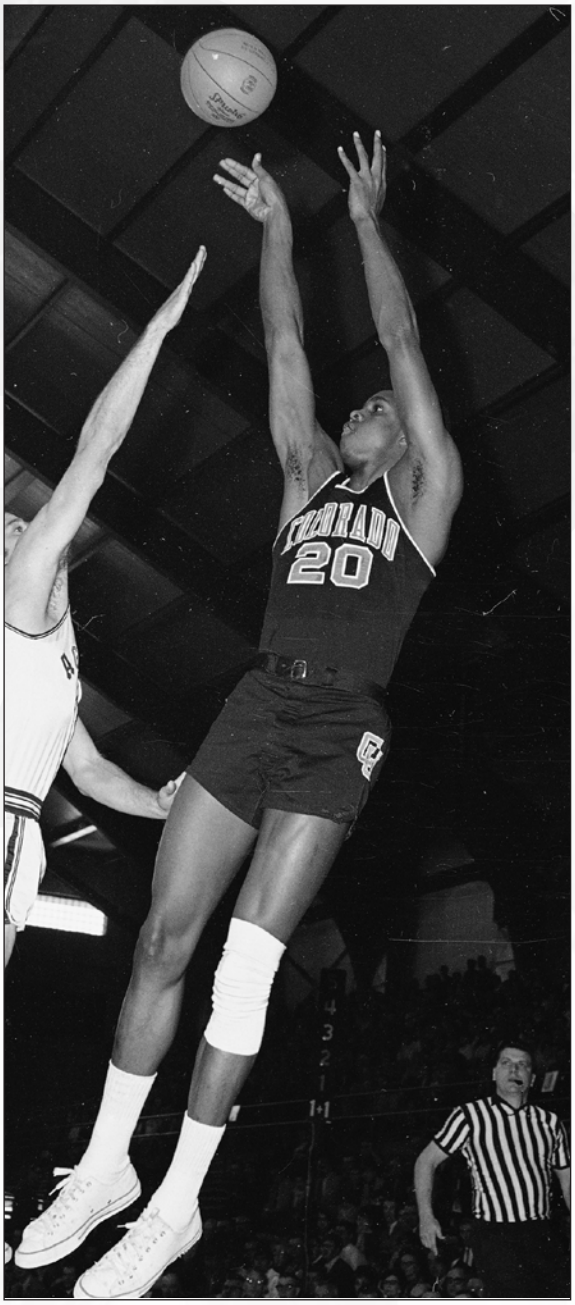

CLIFF MEELY

- First-Team All-American
- Three-Time All-Big Eight Performer
- Set 16 Colorado & 8 Big Eight Conference Records
- Six-year NBA Veteran
- Retired Number (No. 22)

In exiting CU following his senior year with all the scoring records and as the runner-up in all the rebounding marks, some three-plus decades later Cliff Meely still holds the mark for single game (47), season (729) scoring, and is third in career points (1,940) and second in rebounds (971). His name remains either at or near the top in over a dozen statistical categories, and he still owns the two top single season scoring averages in CU history: 28.0 as a senior in 1970-71 and 23.8 as a sophomore in 1968-69. The 12.1 rebounds per game average for his career remains one of the top numbers ever posted collegiately.

Meely led Colorado to the Big Eight title in 1968-69, as the Buffaloes were 21-7 with a 10-4 mark in league play. A three-time All-Big Eight team member, he earned first-team All-America honors as a senior, and set 16 school and eight conference records during his career. Additionally, Meely's 24.3 points per game scoring average is still a school record. Meely was a leader on the Buffs' last Big Eight Conference title team. Overall, the Buffs won 49 games during his time on the CU campus under late coach Russell "Sox" Walseth, the fourth most over any three-year span in CU history, with his jersey number (20) just one of two retired in CU annals. Meely went on to play six seasons in the National Basketball Association with the Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers.

In 1995-96, Meely was named to the Associated Press' all-time Big Eight Conference Basketball first team. Along with Meely, the-late Wayman Tisdale (Oklahoma), Danny Manning (Kansas) Jo Jo White (Kansas State), and Rolando Blackman (Kansas State) were named to the team. In addition the conference honor, Meely also earned the NCAA's Silver Anniversary Award presented to six former collegiate athletes who have gained recognition or done great work in their postgraduate careers.

RUSSELL "SOX" WALSETH

- Six letters at CU in basketball and baseball
- Winningest coach in CU MBB history
- Six-time conference Coach of the Year
- First to coach the men's and women's program at the same school

A player and long-time basketball coach at Colorado, Russell "Sox" Walseth was likely the first and one of just a few to have coached both the men's and women's program at the same NCAA school. His time at CU spanned 38 years, starting as an athlete in the 1940s when he lettered in both basketball and baseball. He then worked as the head freshman coach for five years (three under his coach, Frosty Cox, and two under H.B. Lee); after two years as head coach at South Dakota State, he replaced Lee for the 1956-57 season and would proceed to coach 20 Buffalo teams. The winningest coach in CU men's basketball history, posting a 261-245 record, the Buffs won three Big Eight titles under his direction, in 1961-62, 1962-63 and 1968-69. He was the Big Eight Conference coach of the year on five occasions, and his star players included Ken Charlton, Jim Davis, Cliff Meely and Scott Wedman. He then coached the women's team from 1980-83, then known as the "Lady Buffs," compiling an impressive 77-21 record. That mark included an incredible 43-0 record at home, and once again, he earned coach of the year accolades. The basketball floor at the Coors Events/Conference Center is named after him, and he is a member of the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame.

LARRY ZIMMER

Announcer (1971-present)

He is the first inductee into the Hall who is not a former athlete, coach or administrator; but he's been a part of more football and men's basketball games than perhaps anyone else in school history, calling 481 for football and 525 in basketball, or 1,006 total, through the 2011 season. He was awarded an Honorary "C" in 1992, and was honored as the 15th recipient of the Chris Schenkel Award by the National Football Foundation in 2009, which recognizes those who have enjoyed a long and distinguished career broadcasting college football at a single institution.

RUSSELL "SOX" WALSETH

Legendary CU Basketball Coach Was One Of School's Most Popular Figures

Russell "Sox" Walseth, the legendary University of Colorado basketball coach who was likely the first and one of only a few to have coached both the men's and women's basketball teams at the same NCAA school, passed away on January 28, 2004. He was 77.

A player, coach and administrator, his time at CU spanned 38 years, starting as an athlete in the 1940s when he lettered a combined six times in both basketball and baseball.

Taking over the reins of the men's program for the 1956-57 season, Walseth proceeded to coach the next 20 Buffalo teams. The winningest coach in CU men's basketball history with a 261-245 record, the Buffs won three Big Eight titles under his direction, in 1961-62, 1962-63 and 1968-69. He was the Big Eight Conference coach of the year on four occasions (once as the Big Seven Conference), and his most prominent players included Ken Charlton, Jim Davis, Cliff Meely, Scott Wedman and Dave Logan.

All three of his Big Eight champion teams represented the conference in the NCAA regional tournaments (in those days, only one school could advance from a conference). Eventual NCAA champion Cincinnati eliminated the Buffs in the first two appearances, while his third tourney team may have represented his best coaching job in his tenure as he piloted a sophomore-dominated team to the league title and an NCAA berth.

He retired from coaching for the first time in the spring of 1976 and remained on in an administrative position with the athletic department. But four years later (1980), and CU hit with budget woes, then athletic director Eddie Crowder asked him if he would come out of retirement to help the program to which he had devoted much of his adult life. Sox answered that call and would coach the CU women's team between 1980-83, then known as the "Lady Buffs," compiling an impressive 77-21 record. That mark included an incredible 43-0 record at home, and once again, he earned coach of the year accolades.

The basketball floor at the Coors Events/Conference Center is named after him. In 1998, he was inducted into the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame, and four years later in 2002, he was a member of the fourth class inducted into the University of Colorado Athletic Hall of Fame.

Sox (the origin of that nickname was always unknown to him, but he had it since childhood) was born April 6, 1926 in Aberdeen, S.D. He was an all-state performer in basketball at Pierre High School, where he graduated in 1944.

He spent two years in the Navy's V-5 and V-12 programs during which he began college, attending Carroll College in Helena, Mont. The Navy moved him to Colorado in the fall of 1945 and he was a regular on the basketball team in his first year at CU while still in the Navy program.

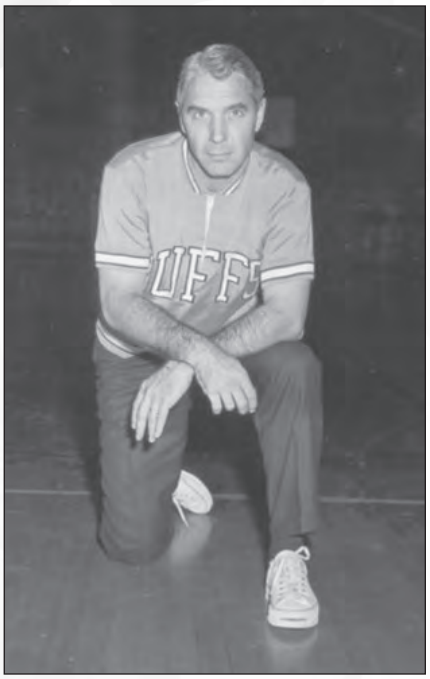

After his discharge, he stayed on at Colorado, playing guard with the reputation as a brilliant floor leader during the 1946-47 and 1947-48 seasons. He lettered three years as a shortstop for coach Frank Prentup on the baseball team, and would also try his hand in the minor leagues, spending two seasons with Victoria (B.C.), a member of the B League.

Perhaps his greatest game as a collegian occurred during his first year at Colorado when the Buffaloes made an early season tour that took them to New York's Madison Square Garden. Accounts at the time referred to his performance as, "Cool and crafty beyond his years, Walseth was unruffled at playing for the first time in the nation's top arena against one of the country's top teams, NYU." Though CU lost 66-52, Walseth led all scorers in the game with 20 points.

In Memoriam

(Former CU men's basketball players who have passed away the last couple of years)

PAT FRINK (1964-65, 1966-68)

Pat Frink, who left an indelible mark on the Buffalo program in the mid-1960s, died May 6, 2013 near his ranch in Tucson. He was 67. Frink was the first player to lead the Buffaloes in scoring in three different seasons, averaging 15.0 points during the 1964-65 campaign as a sophomore. After sitting out the next season with a knee injury suffered just weeks before the first game, he came back and led the team as a junior with an 18.3 mark and then again as a senior with 18.9. Only five players have led the Buffs three times since, Cliff Meely, Emmett Lewis and Shaun Vandiver, followed by the only pair to do it four times, Donnie Boyce and most recently Richard Roby. Frink was just the third sophomore at the time to ever lead Colorado in scoring, following Art Bunte (19.1 in 1952-53) and Wilky Gilmore (13.9 in 1959-60). He earned first-team All-Big 8 honors that year and second-team honors his junior and senior seasons. His junior year, Colorado finished 17-8, including 10-4 in league play including a huge 62-59 upset of No. 7 Kansas in Boulder. KU won the rematch, 66-59, in Lawrence in the next-to-last game of the season to clinch the conference crown, with CU tying for second with Nebraska. Frink's 1,288 career points still rank 16th all-time at CU, but were second only to Ken Charlton (1,352 from 1960-63) at the time of his graduation.

BOB JEANGERARD (1952-55)

Bob Jeangerard, one of the program's early stars, passed away on July 5, 2014 due to complications related to Alzheimer's disease. The longtime resident of San Carlos, Calif., was 81. In June, he was announced as one of nine Buffaloes as a member of the 2014 CU Athletic Hall of Fame class, which is set for induction this October. Jeangerard was a member of CU's last Final Four team, generally part of CU's 1-2 punch with Burdie Haldorson of the school's dominant early 50s teams under coach H.B. Lee. He was a two-time All-Big 7 Conference first-team selection, averaging 12.4 points and 6.1 rebounds per game during his collegiate career. As a senior, he averaged 16 points and 6.8 rebounds per game, ranking second on the team in both categories in helping CU win a then-record 19 games in reaching the national semifinals, falling to eventual champion San Francisco. He was the NCAA Tournament Regional Most Outstanding Player.

Considered by many to be a strong team leader, he earned three letters under Lee and was a two-time, first-team All-Big 7 Conference performer. As a senior, he was a member of the CU team that rallied from a 23-point first half road deficit to edge Kansas State; the rally from 23 points down remains to this day a school record. He was second on the team as a junior in scoring (12.8 points per game) and rebounding (6.1), and as a sophomore, his tip-in at the buzzer defeated Oklahoma, 56-55.

After graduation, he was selected as a member of the 1956 U.S. Olympic basketball team that competed in the Melbourne Olympics. The U.S. team dominated the games and brought home the gold medal after going undefeated (8-0), winning those games by an average of 53.5 points; the U.S. defeated the USSR twice, 85-55 in the quarterfinals and 89-55 in the gold medal game. The team was loaded, with Haldorson, his college teammate and close friend, and future NBA Hall of Famers, Bill Russell and K.C. Jones.

He was the team's second-leading scorer when all was said and done, scoring exactly 100 points for a 12.5 average, behind only Russell's 14.1. In shooting a sizzling 60 percent from the field, practically unheard of in that day and age, he scored a team-high 16 points in the gold medal game, with a best of 21 points in a win over the Philippines.

Once back from the Olympics, he served his country as a pilot for the U.S. Air Force and also was a prominent player on the old AAU circuit. In 1959, he was once again chosen to represent the U.S., playing on its team for the Pan American games. Teaming again with Haldorson and college basketball stars Oscar Robertson and Jerry West, the team again captured the gold medal.

After fulfilling his Air Force commitment, Jeangerard moved his family in 1960 to California where he joined his brothers, Ralph and Jack, along with a friend, Jay Wright, to open a tire shop in the San Francisco Bay Area. Gerard Tire grew throughout the area over the next two decades. The family relocated to San Carlos in 1962, and Jeangerard spent nights and weekends going to law school to become an attorney for the company while remaining one of the owner/managers of the Gerard Tire chain. He retired in 1982.

In retirement, he traveled the world and in-between travels, he played lots of tennis, was active in the community and philanthropy (the Jeangerard Foundation) and enjoyed spending quality time with friends and family.

H.B. LEE (1950-56)

Former Colorado head men's basketball coach H.B. "Bebe" Lee, who guided the Buffaloes to the 1955 NCAA Final Four, passed away peacefully at a hospice facility in Southport, N.C. He was 96.

Lee took over a Colorado program struggling to just get its feet wet in the Big Seven Conference and kick started a highly competitive run for Buffaloes basketball that spanned the better part of two decades. He spent six seasons at Colorado (1950-56) with a record of 63-74, but 51-38 over his final four campaigns which included two NCAA appearances (1954 & '55) and the team's first two Big Seven Conference titles.

"He was the ultimate gentleman, always a gentleman, on and off the court," said Burdie Haldorson, CU's All-American center on the 1955 squad. "He was very interested in all of us, on and off the court as well. He was a great man to play for. He got the team ready to play during the week and just directed things from the bench during the game, much like Mike Krzyzewski. That's why I like Duke so much, Mike coaches like Bebe did."

Lee stepped into an extremely difficult situation at Colorado, taking over a program that was just 14-22 in its first three years of the Big Seven Conference. His first three teams finished seventh twice and fourth once (in 1951-52), but he was beginning to set the stage for future success.

"He conducted coaching sitting down," said Jim Jochems, a three-year letterwinner that played for Lee in 1955-56. "He didn't walk along the court, he had a rolled up program like John Wooden had, and he really worked the refs, but did so with respect. He was poetry in motion; he was a step or two ahead of his peers, a wonderful strategist."

Lee led Colorado to a last-to-first place turn around in 1953-54, guiding the Buffaloes to a share of their first ever Big Seven basketball title. Colorado was picked to participate in its fourth NCAA Tournament and first in nearly a decade. The Buffaloes dropped both of their West Regional games in Stillwater, Okla.

In 1954-55, Colorado had its most successful season to date, finishing 19-6 and winning the Big Seven title outright at 11-1. The Buffaloes defeated Tulsa and Bradley in the West Regional in Manhattan, Kan., to advance to the 1955 Final Four in Kansas City. CU fell to eventual champion San Francisco in the semifinals and defeated Big Ten Conference champion Iowa in the consolation to finish No. 3 in the nation.

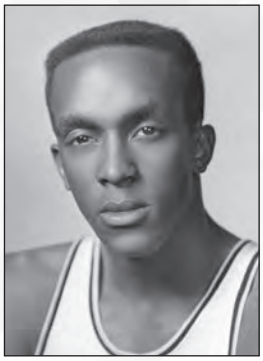

Shortly before the end of the 1955-56 season, Lee announced he would resign to take the athletic director position at Big Seven rival Kansas State. He finished out the season with the Buffaloes, leading them to an 11-10 record, 7-5 in the Big Seven, including a win over Phog Allen's Kansas Jayhawks in his final game as head coach.

"He was a terrific recruiter," Jochems said. "I overheard my parents talking after he left our house. My dad was in charge of 30 salesmen, and I heard him say, 'I wish I had one salesman as good as him' Just a very nice man and a wonderful coach. We hated to see him leave."

Lee was born Dec. 3, 1916 in Dallas, but grew up in California, graduating from Hollywood High School where he lettered in basketball and baseball. He went on to play basketball at Stanford where he helped the "Indians" as they were known at the time, win three-straight Pacific Coast Conference championships from 1936-38. President of the Stanford student body during his senior year, Lee received his degree in education in 1938. Lee stayed at Stanford for three years as an assistant before accepting the head job at Utah State in 1941.

After his Utah State team won its first game of the 1941 season, he was called into the Navy. Upon his return, he coached Utah State in 1946-47 before leaving the coaching field for three years during which he was engaged in private business in San Francisco and Salt Lake City. He returned to coaching in 1949, leading the Colorado A&M (now Colorado State) program for one season before heading to Colorado for the 1950-51 campaign.

Lee spent 12 years as athletic director at Kansas State before starting his own company, Video Theaters Inc, in 1968. He was later the Vice President of Hughes Sports Network and served a short stint as a consultant for the New Mexico Athletic Department. Lee lived in Albuquerque, along with his second wife, Jean, for 26 years before moving to Houston. After Jean died in 2009, Lee moved near his family in North Carolina.

BILLY LEWIS (1957-60)

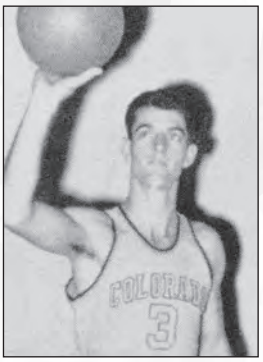

CU Athletic Hall of Fame member Billy Lewis, the school's first African-American varsity basketball player passed away at the age of 72. He died in his Atlanta home on June 14, 2011. Lewis was inducted in CU's Athletic Hall of Fame in October 2008, and gave a very emotional speech before 500 people, which included about a dozen of his relatives that attended from as far away as Atlanta, Baltimore and even Egypt. Just a few weeks ahead of America electing its first black president, he talked about how far the country had come from the days where he was a student-athlete and often forced to eat and sleep away from his teammates on road trips because some hotels would not allow blacks on their premises. Some excerpts of his acceptance speech, which onlookers easily could see him bursting with pride:

"In order to receive a full athletic scholarship at CU, or any other Division I school, one has to have above average skills and maintain those skills. They have to be able to compete before thousands of people and know that the pressure of the butterflies that all of us have experienced are character building. Those are the kinds of things that I experienced. My grandmother told me to never let anyone break my spirit. That and the chance to attend a multi-cultural school like (Denver's) Manual High School enabled me to attend a school like CU. It's a blessing for me to be successful and because of what I learned and what I was exposed to at CU, I was never afraid of anything.

"I hope in some small way I have contributed to the success of the university, as it has benefitted me in a myriad of ways."

His best season was his junior year, when he averaged 5.9 points per game with a career-high 21 against Nebraska. The 6-3 forward played in 67 career games, scoring 244 points and grabbing 197 rebounds in lettering three times. In 1959, after the basketball season was complete, he decided to come back out for track in his specialty, the high jump; he cleared 6-6¾ and finished second in the CU Invitational (to Wyoming's Jerry Lane, who jumped an inch higher) which topped his previous personal best of 6-2 as a senior in high school, where he was coached by CU great and Hall of Fame member Gil Cruter, who himself was one CU's first black track athletes in the early 1930s.

Just as important if not more so were his contributions as a student leader, becoming the first African-American elected by the student body as commissioner of the ASUC (Associated Students of the University of Colorado); he led a delegation of students and testified on the resolutions against discrimination in housing and employment practices and headed the SFHD, Students For Human Dignity, two of many causes he championed that helped change CU in a positive way forever. Upon his graduation from CU in 1960, he clerked for a Denver judge, and after marrying fellow CU grad JoKatherine Holliman (the first African American woman on CU's homecoming court).

"Pete" McCloud died Monday, June 17, 2013, at the Newton Medical Center. He was 94. Known for his silky-smooth shot, a great passer and rebounder, McCloud is one of CU men's basketball's eight all-Americans (1942). He played from 1939-42 under head coach Forrest "Frosty" Cox. The leading scorer for the 1941-42 Big Seven Champion Buffaloes team, McCloud was Coach Cox's "go to guy." McCloud's play caught the attention of national media and he joined fellow Buff Bob Doll on the Look, Pic and Time magazines' All-America squads, and was a unanimous All-Big Seven selection. Both men also grew up in Newton, Kan. On November 9, 2011, McCloud was named a University of Colorado Living Legend at the Court Sport Preview Celebration on the court of the George Boedecker Jr. Gym that included CU President Bruce Benson, Chancellor Phil DiStefano, former Athletic Director Mike Bohn, a number of regents, and special honorees Martin Trotsky and Bob Kirchner, a pair of early 1940s CU hoops standouts. CU also honored the 1938-1942 Colorado basketball teams. McCloud received a plaque with his name on it with a large "C" in the center, stating that he was a "living legend" in Colorado Basketball. This was resolved by the University of Colorado Board of Regents on Nov. 9, 2011. In 2012, he was also inducted as a Living Legend in the Kansas High School Hall of Fame.

CLIFF MEELY (1968-71)

Cliff Meely passed away Tuesday, May 28, 2013 at the Boulder Community Hospital due to complications from a blood infection. He was 65. One of the pure prolific scorers and rebounders in the history of CU basketball during his four-year career (1968-1971), Meely remains either at or near the top in over a dozen statistical categories some four-plus decades later. A fixture at men's and women's basketball games at the Coors Events Center regardless of the team's performance, Meely, generally in good health, developed septic shock from the infection and died unexpectedly. Known for his quickness and agility, Meely could play any position on the floor. Under late coach Russell "Sox" Walseth, Meely led Colorado to the Big Eight title in 1968-69, as the Buffaloes were 21-7 with a 10-4 mark in league play. A three-time All-Big Eight team member, Meely earned first-team All-America honors as a senior and set 16 school and eight conference records during his career. Additionally, Meely's 24.3 points per game career scoring average is still a school record and his 427 points scored in league play set a Big Eight Conference record in 1971. Legendary Syracuse head coach Jim Boeheim told CU play-by-play announcer Mark Johnson that Meely likely was among the top five most underrated college basketball players of all time. In 1995-96, Meely was named to the Associated Press' all-time Big Eight first team. In March of 2013, Meely was inducted in the Pac-12 Conference Men's Basketball Hall of Fame. Meely still holds the CU scoring mark for most points a single game (47) and owns five of the top eight scoring games in school history. His jersey number (20) is just one of two retired numbers in the CU annals.

LES METZGER (1946-48)

Andrew Leslie (Les) Metzger passed away peacefully on June 18, 2013. He attended Phoenix Jr. College where he was captain of the basketball team and was recruited by the University of Colorado in 1946 to play varsity basketball. He was team captain from 1946-48. He graduated from CU with a major in business and education. Les had an opportunity to play professional basketball, yet chose, instead to play in the National Amateur Athletic Union. His team played in the first World Basketball Tournament in Argentina, finishing second.

WILBERT WALTER (1951-55)

Dr. Wilbert (Wil) Walter, one of five seniors on the last University of Colorado basketball team that made it to the NCAA's Final Four, died in Mount Pleasant, S.C. He died on Wednesday, Feb. 3, 2010 at the age of 76.

"We called him the Cowboy because he was from Wyoming. Cowboy Walter," teammate Jim Jochems recalled. "He was a highly intellectual, the team brain, straight A's. We knew then he'd be one of the few in the day to go on and earn two or three more degrees. And then he taught for over three decades, which was pretty neat."

Walter was a three-year letterman under coach H.B. Lee, primarily a reserve performer who saw action in 38 games those seasons. His best season was his junior year in 1953-54, when he scored 33 points and had 19 rebounds, helping CU to a 10-2 record in Big 7 Conference play. He played in six games as a senior the following year, when the Buffaloes were conference champions and advanced to the Final Four in the NCAA tournament. There, CU lost to a Bill Russell-led San Francisco team, the eventual champion, but the Buffs defeated Iowa in the consolation game to finish third in the nation.

After earning his B.S. degree in Organic Chemistry in 1955, he remained in Boulder and worked as an assistant coach for CU's freshman and varsity basketball teams while earning another bachelor's degree in Pharmacy and his master's in Medicinal Chemistry by 1958. Only then did he finally leave the Rocky Mountain area, earning a Ph D. in 1961 from the University of Connecticut in Organic and Medicinal Chemistry.

Dr. Walter was a Professor of Pharmacology at the University of North Dakota (Fargo), the Medical University of Tennessee (Memphis), and the University of Mississippi. He joined the faculty of the Medical University of South Carolina in 1968, and became Professor and Chairman of the Department of Biology and Pharmacology at MUSC in 1971, and continued in that capacity until his retirement in 1993, when he was named Professor Emeritus. He also served on the Isle of Palms City Council for four years, and was a past Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Zoning Committee.

RON WRIGLEY (1972-75)

Ron "Wrigs" Wrigley passed away on Sunday, Sept. 27, 2009 after a three-year battle with cancer. He was 55. Wrigley played for CU on the varsity basketball team for three seasons from 1972-1975 where he was a standout post-player under legendary head coach Sox Walseth. Although he only averaged 1.7 points and 1.1 rebounds in 22 games as a sophomore, Wrigley played a contributing role during his junior and senior seasons, playing in all 26 games both years. He averaged 5.3 points and 4.8 rebounds per game as a junior in 1973-74.

It was his senior season where he shined, finishing third in team scoring averaging 11.3 points per game and leading the Buffaloes in rebounding with a 7.2 clip. In his last collegiate game, Wrigley recorded a 21-point and 17-rebound performance in CU's 106-97 victory over Missouri on March 8, 1975.

During his freshman season, Wrigley averaged 12.7 points per game. An outstanding baseball player as well, Wrigley, also lettered for CU in 1974. Prior to enrolling at CU, Wrigley earned basketball and baseball letters at St. Augustine High in San Diego, Calif.

He was also awarded All-City honors in both sports. Wrigley was once selected by the San Diego Padres in the baseball draft, however opted to attend college first.

"Ron was much-loved by the entire CU community and was successful in every sense of the word," said longtime friend and college roommate Ed Shoen, who lettered at CU in football from 1972 through 1974.

C-Unit is a legion of Buff fans. It consists of some superheroes and a few band members, but all students with voices raspy from screaming. Together they create an atmosphere so keen to the heart of the Buffaloes; one would be mistaken not to know of the C-Unit.

The C-Unit begins every game, sometimes almost two hours, ahead of any other fan. These fans stand outside before doors open, rain or shine, to ensure they get prime seating. Some students bring their homework, some play games while others just meticulously count down the minutes until tip off.

Every season head coach Tad Boyle, now entering his fifth year on the Boulder campus, attendance figures have increased. Last year, the total number of fans to see games at the Coors Events Center surpassed the 170,000 plateau (173,429) for the first time (topping 155,884 from 2012-13), as well as the number in overall attendance in non-conference home games to 84,133.

For the first time in men's program history, CU sold out its season ticket allotment (7,160) in the preseason prior to the 2013-14 season began.

Incredibly, also for the first time, average attendance for conference games only has averaged over 9,100 fans every under season under Boyle, the highest being in 2012-13 with an average of 10,486 fans.

During the 2012-13 season, the C-Unit and the Buffalo fan base catapulted the Coors Events Center continued into a new chapter of attendance figures. A number of attendance records fell including seven home sellouts and 12 of 15 home games exceeded 10,000 fans.

Four records emerged for season average (10,392); Pac-12 Conference total (94,371); conference average (10,486); and non-conference average (10,252).

Over the last four years at Coors Events Center, the Boyle coaching staff with the help of the C-Unit faithful has made the games in Boulder a dominant home court advantage. The Buffaloes have won 60 of 69 games since the 2010-11 campaign with an impressive .870 winning percentage. The 60 victories rank No. 1 over a four-year home span.

In addition, the four years under Boyle, the Buffaloes have enjoyed 19 sellouts generating a 14-5 record (.737).

Last year, the C-Unit and the Coors Events Center reached the pinnacle of national exposure as ESPN's College GameDay took center stage on the CU campus. On February 22, 2014 ESPN's College GameDay Covered by State Farm made its first visit to the CU campus for a basketball game (GameDay has been to Boulder three times for football, the most recent in September 1996 for the CU-Michigan game).

The widely popular telecast was in Boulder to showcase CU and the No. 4 ranked Arizona men's basketball game. GameDay's first hour began at 8 a.m. on ESPNU, with the program continuing at 9 a.m. on ESPN. A one-hour segment at 6 p.m. on ESPN preceded the Buffaloes-Wildcats tipoff later that night.

Rece Davis served as host for College GameDay with analysts Digger Phelps and Jason Williams collaborating to preview the day's top games and storylines in college hoops.

CU was selected to host GameDay from two "flex pick" options, with ESPN's other choice being the UCLA at Stanford contest, which aired ESPN2 at 7 p.m. (MT). Boyle called CU getting the nod over Stanford "huge for the program (and) great for the University of Colorado. It's great for Boulder, it's great for our state. All the eyes in college basketball that day will be focused on Boulder, Colorado."

Boyle also called the selection "a testament to our players, a testament to our fans, a testament to our coaches and how far this program has come. It's something we're really proud of. Now, it's one thing to have (GameDay) here, we've got to play well when they're here, and have a full house, energy . . . it's imperative we play well between now and then to make sure our fans have something to get excited about."

It is without a doubt the energetic and enthusiastic fans that contributed to the interest in CU Basketball.

According to the end of the year 2013-14 NCAA attendance numbers, CU ranked No. 44 in the nation (average of 9,635) and was third overall in the Pac-12 Conference. CU's tally also helped the conference finish eighth overall of the nationwide 33 conferences (7,546), in addition set a Pac-12 high (1,637,406).

In the 2012-13 NCAA findings, CU finished No. 3 nationally in the largest increase for average attendance from the previous year (+2,589) and No. 37 nationally overall among Division I attendance leaders (10,392). CU was one of 40 schools in D-I to eclipse the 10,000 plateau. The Buffaloes were second overall among Pac-12 schools.

During the 2011-12 season, The Chronicle of Higher Education determined CU went from 4,637 fans in 2009 to 7,804 in 2012 for a 68 percent increase. The 68 percent makes CU the biggest gainers in attendance and a No. 1 ranking. Among the top 10 schools listed, CU is the only Pac-12 school that improved in attendance, while five Pac-12 schools decreased in attendance.

The C-Unit was also recognized as a finalist for the Naismith Student Section of the Year Award that began during the 2011-12 season. Over the last three years, the C-Unit has made quite impression on the national stage. The C-Unit tallied a Top-8 finalist tally in 2011-12 and in 2013-14; and in 2012-13 was a Top-16 semifinalist.

The loyalty of the C-Unit was rewarded when the athletic department announced they were taking 50 of the most loyal fans to the 2012 Pac-12 tournament. The entire event was called "Stampede to Staples," a journey that led to witnessing a moment in history– the very first Pac-12 Championship, which was ours to take home.

The idea started with the agreement that 50 fans would cheer on both the men's and women's basketball teams as they were both competing in Los Angeles. The "OG 50", standing for "original gang of 50" as they so fondly call themselves, were flown on a charter plane to California and the first stop was In-N-Out Burger. Needless to say, the restaurant was baffled by the amount of jubilant people that showed up, all in black and gold Colorado gear.

From that point on, the OG 50 was shuffled between the Galen Center at USC and the Staples Center, often times running through doors and entering with slow claps. People everywhere would stop and recognize the arrival of C-Unit. The C-Unit members would chant things like "We Don't Need No Altitude," a chant adapted to the current situation and altered from the Coors Events Center favorite "You Can't Win At Altitude."

Finally, the last few minutes of the Pac-12 Championship game at the Staples Center in Los Angeles boiled down between the No. 6 seed Buffaloes facing fourth seed Arizona.

Five critical minutes remained and the game was dead even. The sixth man, the cheering section, the energy that sustained the team throughout the entire season, was needed more than ever. It was down to one minute and C-Unit started to chant "I Believe That We Will Win" and when the buzzer sounded indicating no time remained; the crowd erupted.

The Buffs became just the Buffs became just the 10th team in the nation to win at least four games in four days to capture the tournament title (a CU first since winning the Big 8 in 1968-69), defeating the Wildcats, 53-51.

The loyal 50 fans were jumping up and down, grabbing onto each other, so proud of what they stood for and so proud to be representing Colorado, the new champions. Four days and four victories later, the men's basketball team was crowned the champions of the newly formed conference and the C-Unit members were there to witness every step of the way.

The journey didn't stop there for C-Unit. Then-athletic director Mike Bohn announced that instead of 50 fans, he would be taking 200 to the NCAA Tournament in New Mexico. Together the Buff fans travelled by bus to Albuquerque, N.M. In the second round, the Buffs defeated No. 6 seed UNLV, 68-64.

After the travelling and the madness of March, the team and students came back to Boulder with an exhilarating story to tell. With the buzz generated around the C-Unit brought national attention to the student cheering section. C-Unit celebrated their success with a pizza party at The Sink. Tad Boyle and Mike Bohn were a few guests of honor that showed up to thank the students for their relentless loyalty. Bohn thanked the students with a DVD copy of the Pac-12 Championship game for each of the OG 50. The 2011-2012 season was historical and momentous, one the fans and players alike will never forget.

SEASON NOTES

• The Buffs were the Big Seven co-champions, earning their first major [Big Seven] league title.

• CU received a NCAA Tournament Western Regional berth on a draw from a hat.

• Started the season with a seven-game losing streak, the first time a Buff team would begin a season with that many consecutive losses.

• On Feb. 2, CU established itself as a serious championship contender by defeating defending conference champion Kansas, 70-62, to move into a first-place tie.

• An eight-game conference win streak was highlighted by road wins at Iowa State, at Nebraska and at Oklahoma.

• In the game at Ames, CU trailed at the half by 12 points and by two points with seconds to play. Wilbert Walter made a free throw, then Jim Ranglos tipped-in Walter's second free throw at the buzzer.

• Burdette Haldorson led the Big Seven in conference scoring at 21.3 ppg.• During CU's eight-game winning steal, Haldorson averaged 21.9 per game, including 33 points at Oklahoma.

Jim Ranglos

SEASON NOTES

- Jim Ranglos was the lone Buffalo to earn All-Big Seven honors after a season in which he finished ninth in league scoring (14.8 points per game).
- On Feb. 11, CU beat Kansas State for the Buffs 19th straight home victory.
- In the final game for both coaches, CU's H.B. "Bebe" Lee and the Buffs, defeated Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen's Kansas squad, 75-67, to bring an end to two illustrious coaching careers.
- Lee resigned as head coach to become the athletic director at Kansas State College. He coached CU for six years with 63 victories, which ranks eighth entering the 2013-2014 season. His teams generated a pair of eight-game winning streaks in 1953-54 and 1954-55.

SEASON NOTES

- The CU head-coaching job was taken over by 30-year-old Russell "Sox" Walseth, who replaced H.B. Lee.
- In his first season, Walseth was named Big Seven Coach of the Year.
- On Dec. 3, the Buffs stunned highly regarded Oregon State, 67-58, in Sox Walseth's coaching debut. Jim Jochems scored 18 points, Bob Helzer and Dave Mowbray each added 14. Jochems would be plagued by a knee injury the rest of the season, played in only 10 games.
- After upsetting Missouri, the Buffs set a Big Seven Christmas Tournament record shooting 42-of-49 from the free throw line in a 90-87 victory over Michigan State. This marked the first time a CU team reached the finals of the tournament. CU lost the title game to Kansas, who was led by Wilt Chamberlain's 45 points.
- CU guard Dave Mowbray was selected to the All-Big Seven All-Tournament second team. Mowbray led the Buffs in scoring with 273 points, an average of 11.9 points per game.
- After pre-season predictions labeled CU for not much success (five top scorers from a year ago did not return), the Buffs finished 14-9 and tied for fourth in the conference. Only six other CU teams: 1937-38 (15), 1938-39 (14), 1939-40 (17), 1941-42 (16), 1949-50 (14), 1954-55 (19)—had won more than 14 games.

SEASON NOTES

- On Dec. 7, the Buffs shot 57.7 percent from the field to beat Montana and former CU coach Frosty Cox, 77-60.
- On Jan. 20, CU upset conference leader Iowa State to earn Colorado's first victory in Big Eight Conference play.
- On March 8, CU's Gerry Schroeder tipped in a shot at the final buzzer to beat Nebraska, 54-52, for a thrilling finish to the basketball season.
- Schroeder was the lone CU player to average over 10 points a game (13.2 ppg.). His 304 points was the most scored ever by a CU guard.
- On Feb. 10 against Kansas, the Buffaloes "held" Wilt Chamberlain to his lowest point total in his high school, college, and professional career of six points. Chamberlain deliberately held onto the ball choosing to pass the ball to his teammates opposed to shooting.
- Gerry Schroeder (8-of-14) and Larry Pitts (7-of-12) combined for all of CU's 15 made field goals (the rest of the team went 0-for-14) in CU's 59-45 victory at Missouri (Mar. 3). The only two players to score all of CU's points from the field, is believed to be a school record for fewest players to score a basket.

SEASON NOTES

- Wilky Gilmore earned UPI All-Big Eight first team honors. He led CU in scoring (13.9 ppg.) and rebounding (10.6 rpg.). It's just the second time a Buff player averaged a double-double for a season (Burdette Haldorson (21.0 ppg, 13.8 rpg., 1954-55).
- On Feb. 6, CU, without two starters, managed to down Kansas State, 65-50, to snap the Wildcats 19-game conference winning streak.
- On Feb. 27, the Buffs lost to Iowa State, 83-80, in five overtimes, which was the longest game ever played in the Big Eight.
- On March 5, Wilky Gilmore ended the Buffs season on a winning note by tipping in a missed Russ Lind shot with two seconds remaining to give CU a 41-39 victory over Oklahoma State.
- Gilmore scored the most points (334) and rebounds (254) by a first-year player.
- Gilmore (13.9 ppg.), Russ Lind (11.8) and Stan Williams (10.0) ranked the top-15 in Big Eight scoring. Gilmore was seventh, Lind was ninth, Williams 14th.
- The 1959-60 team also marked the first time four players eclipsed the 200-point plateau in a single season.
- CU also played four overtime games (going 2-2),it's the most overtime games in any season entering the 2013-2014 campaign.

%-In a special ruling by the Big Eight Conference faculty representatives in September, Colorado was forced to forfeit seven victories during the 1960-61 season, six in conference play and the Buffs' lone victory in the pre-season tournament the previous December. The ruling came as a result of CU's Wilky Gilmore's playing in an organized summer league during 1960. At that time, such play was prohibited by conference rules, since rescinded. The ruling revised Colorado's record from 15-10 to 8-17, and the conference finish from a fourthplace tie to last.

- On Dec. 16, the Buffs set a new fieldhouse single game high in points with a 93-70 win over Arizona State. The previous high was 92 against Missouri during the 1962-63 season.
- CU set two new team scoring records during the 1963-64 season-1,812 total points (old mark 1,779 previous year) and 1,013 points in Big Eight play (old mark 947 previous year).
- Center Jim Davis finished his career as the Buffs' all-time rebound leader (836 boards). He left CU as the third highest scorer with 1,110 points (Ken Charlton: 1,352 and Burdette Haldorson: 1,125).
- Jim Davis led the conference in rebounding (184, 13.1 rpg.) for the second consecutive year and was selected to the All-Big Eight Conference AP & UPI first team.
- Sox Walseth was named the Big Eight Conference Coach of the Year, his second coaching honor (1956-57, Big Seven).
- Jim Davis was fourth (19.3 ppg.) in conference-only scoring, while Bob Joyce (12.6) and Mike Frink (12.2) were ninth, and tenth, respectively.
- Davis is the only CU player to have a pair of 300-plus rebounding seasons in career (1962-63: 329; 1963-64: 318).
- Davis would average a double-double (18.5 ppg., 12.7 rpg.) for the second straight season. It's the fifth time a CU player has accomplished that feat.

SEASON NOTES

- Injuries plagued the 1965-66 season: Pat Frink did not play due to an injury that he suffered at practice in early November; Lynn Baker injured his knee in the season opener against Texas Tech and was forced to sit out the remainder of the season.
- Chuck Gardner earned All-Big Eight first team honors (AP & UPI). He led the conference in scoring, finished second in rebounding and field goal percentage and finished fourth in free throw percentage. This 1-2-2-4 finish was the best the Big Eight had on record.
- Gardner became the three player in school history to score over 500 points in a season. His 506 total ranks third all-time.
- On March 5, CU defeated ninth ranked Nebraska 95-88 to knock the Cornhuskers out of a Big Eight Championship tie. CU forward Chuck Gardner drove Nebraska's middle defense crazy scoring 42 points to set a new school scoring record.
- Gardner led the Big Eight (conference-only games) in scoring (20.3 ppg.).

Matt Bullard

SEASON NOTES

- Matt Bullard was named to UPI's All-Freshman team, as he became only the second player ever to lead CU in scoring as a freshman. He was named an AP & UPI conference honorable mention.
- Bullard's 12.7 ppg. average was the second best ever by a frosh, topped only by Emmett Lewis (14.9 his rookie season back in 1975-76). Bullard also shot school record 60.4 FG%, that ranked second in the conference. Bullard is the fourth CU frosh to average 10+ or points a game.
- On Dec. 11, CU's 78-65 victory over Colorado State marked the 800th win in the program's history.
- On March 1, a 94-86 loss to Missouri gave Colorado the dubious distinction of being the only team in Big Eight history to go winless in league play.
- This was only the second 20-loss season in CU history, as the Buffs also ended the year with a seven-game home losing streak and a nine-game road losing skid.
- Mike Reid was named to the Big Eight All-Academic first team.
- The 1985-86 team had at least three seniors on the roster for the fifth straight year.
- Tom Apke coached the Buffs for four years from 1981-86 (59-81, .421).
- On April 2, Tom Miller was named CU's 14th head basketball coach.

SEASON NOTES

- Donnie Boyce led the team in points (14.9 ppg.), was second in assists (3.1 apg.), third in rebounds (4.8 rpg.); and was selected to the Big Eight All-Freshman team.
- Boyce became the third freshman to lead the team in scoring and first since Emmett Lewis (1975-76) and Matt Bullard (1985-86). Boyce would go on to accomplish this feat all four years of his collegiate career, becoming the first of two players to do (Richard Roby: 2004-08).
- CU earned the nickname of "Wednesday Warriors" after pulling off three upset defeats of top-ranked teams on successive Wednesdays. During the first three Wednesdays of February, the Buffs surprised No. 22 Oklahoma, No. 2 Oklahoma State, and No. 9 Missouri.
- Poncho Hodges finished No. 16 nationally in blocked shots (73). Today that ranks third most in a single season. When he graduated, Hodges finished third overall with 131, today he ranks fourth.
- Randy Robinson led the Buffs from the field with a 54.9 FG% tying for 10th at CU.
- Boyce scored 21 points in first game with CU making it the second-best debut since Emmett Lewis (31 pts.) in 1975.
- CU played their way to an 11-4 home record and a .733 winning percentage.

SEASON NOTES

- Chauncey Billups became the fourth CU freshmen to lead the Buffs in scoring with a school record 17.9 ppg. He would score 31 points in his second career game, the most points by any CU freshman. He's the sixth CU frosh to average 10 or more points at the end of the season.
- Midway through the season, after suffering an 82-80 overtime loss to Southern Utah, head coach Joe Harrington resigned and Ricardo Patton was named interim head coach.
- On Jan. 29, 1996, Ricardo Patton won his first game as CU's head coach, as his Buffs beat Missouri 106-94. The game was televised on ESPN's "Big Monday," and the win was CU's first on ESPN since they upset No. 2 Oklahoma State in 1992.
- Billups earned Big Eight Freshman of the Year and the coaches second team. He scored the most points by freshman (465) and the only CU frosh in history to break the 30-point in a single game (he did four times).
- On Dec. 2, Billups recorded the first ever triple-double by a Buff, and the sixth in Big Eight Conference history. He scored 24 points, added 11 rebounds, 11 assists in this historic performance in home win over George Mason.
- CU suffered the worst season-opening loss in school history falling to UC Santa Barbara 71-47, a 24-point deficit.
- On Feb. 7, CU turned in one of its best performances of the year in a 64-63 overtime win at Kansas State. The win marked the first one-point victory since beating Purdue in 1988, and the first overtime road win in Big Eight play since beating Missouri 81-79 in January of 1973.
- On March 5, Patton was named head coach on a permanent basis, making him CU's 16th head coach in 93 seasons.

- The Big Eight Conference adopted Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, and Baylor and became the Big 12 Conference.
- Chauncey Billups was a first team Basketball Times All-American, a Big 12 first team section and AP second team All-American. He's the eighth CU All-American (ninth overall honor).
- On Dec. 5, Chauncey Billups surpassed the career 500-point barrier. With his 17-point performance against Texas Arlington, Billups matched Shaun Vandiver as the fastest CU player to reach the 500-point plateau after only 28 games as a Buff.
- On Jan. 11, CU upset No. 20 Texas Tech in Lubbock, 80-78 breaking what was the nation's longest current home-court winning streak (35 games). It was also CU's first road win against a nationally ranked team since 1973. The win improved the Buffs' conference record to 3-0 for the first time since the 1968-69 season.
- With a win over Wofford in February, CU recorded 20 wins for only the second time in program history.
- For the sixth time in its history, CU won 12 games at home (1 loss).
- The Buffaloes were selected to play in the NCAA tournament for the first time since the 1968-69 season.
- In the first game of the NCAA tournament against Indiana, Chauncey Billups scored 24 points and became just the 19th player in CU history to record 1,000 points in his career. The win over Indiana was the 22nd of the season, a then-school record.
- At season's end, Chauncey Billups closed the book on his storied collegiate career and declared for the NBA draft. He was selected third overall by the Boston Celtics.

Kenny Price

SEASON NOTES

- Kenny Price made nine three-pointers in a Big 12 second round game would set a single game record, breaking his mark of eight from the year before. With his nine three's, Price would claim the most treys ever by a Buff – 97, a record still to this day.
- By year's end, many CU players had established themselves as some of the elite in the Big 12. Jaquay Walls was named to the All-Big 12 All-Underrated Team as well as earning All-Big 12 Honorable Mention status. Kenny Price was named to the All-Big 12 third team, while ranking third in the conference in points per game.
- Nick Mohr became the seventh CU freshman to average double-digits points (10.6 ppg.) in his first year. He played only 10 games because of a torn ACL.
- With a win over Iowa State (March 4), the Buffs broke a nine-game conference tournament losing streak.
- In March, CU was selected to play in the National Invitational Tournament. It marked the second time in three years under head coach Ricardo Patton that the Buffs qualified for post-season play.

SEASON NOTES

- In the opening game of the season, sophomore Jose Winston tied his career-high with eight steals, the second-highest single-game total in CU history.
- On Dec. 30 in the Rainbow Classic, the Buffs defeated Gonzaga 81-77; marking the first victory over a 1999 NCAA tournament team.
- On Jan. 19, CU beat No. 17 Oklahoma 88-80, breaking an 11-game losing streak to the Sooners.
- With a victory in late January over Kansas State, head coach Ricardo Patton moved into sole possession of fourth on the all-time coaching wins list at CU with 68.
- In what many CU fans believe to be the best game at the Coors Events Center, CU came from behind to defeat Iowa State in overtime 102-90. Jaquay Walls scored an NCAA-record 15 points in the overtime on his way to an astounding 42-point performance. Today, it ranks fifth in school history.
- A low point in the Buffs' season came in the Big 12 quarterfinal game against heavily favored Texas. CU was held to just 18 percent shooting from the field, and a record low 12 field goals on their way to a 78-35 loss.
- The Buffs were once again invited to play in the National Invitational Tournament. They lost to Southern Illinois in the first round, 94-92. The invitation marked the third time in four years that the Buffs had played in a postseason tournament.

SEASON NOTES

- The Buffs' 20 wins marked the third time in program history, and the second time under head coach Ricardo Patton, that a CU team has reached that milestone. Colorado finished the 1968-'69 season with 21 wins and the '96-'97 season with 22 wins.
- 2002-03 was the year for quite a few program firsts. For the first time in school history, CU went undefeated at home in Big 12 play (8-0); with a victory over Nebraska on March 8, CU secured their 14th home win, the most wins at home in any year.
- It was the first season in which CU defeated four ranked teams in the same year. CU defeated No. 6 Kansas 60-59, No. 3 Texas 93-80, No. 22 Missouri 89-68, and No. 20/18 Oklahoma State 68-56.
- On Nov. 24, against Stetson, David Harrison set the single-game record for blocked shots at 10. Harrison would break his own record with 11 blocked shots in Colorado's final home game against Nebraska. For the season, Harrison recorded 107 blocks, shattering the previous record of 73 set by Poncho Hodges in the 1991-92 season.
- CU lured their highest home attendance average in 20 years, 8,995 fans.
- David Harrison recorded CU's first triple-double in Big 12 play, and second triple-double in program history with his 31 points, 17 rebounds, and 10 blocked shots against Stetson on November 24. Harrison would add another triple-double against Nebraska with 20 points, 10 rebounds, and 11 blocked shots, making him the only player in CU and Big 12 history to record two tripled-doubles in a career.
- For the first time in school history, CU had three players selected as the Phillips 66/Big 12 Players of the Week: Blair Wilson (Feb. 24), Stephane Pelle (Jan. 27), and David Harrison (Nov. 25).
- Michel Morandais earned Al-Big 12 second team honors, while Stephane Pelle made the conference third team.
- Head coach Ricardo Patton led the team to a .500 record or better for the fifth straight year, and for the fourth time in seven years as head coach, he led the team to more than 18 victories.

David Harrison

SEASON NOTES

- CU earned its third NIT berth during Coach Patton's eight years as head coach. Despite David Harrison's 26 points and 12 rebounds, the Buffs fell in the first round to Oregon, 77-72 behind the strength of a 40-point performance by Oregon's and All-American Luke Johnson.
- Harrison and Michel Morandais would be named to the Big 12 Conference first and second teams, respectively.
- CU won 18 games for the fifth time under Patton.
- The Buffs won 10 conference games; the most since recording 11 conference wins in 1996-97, and earned the fourth seed at the Big 12 Tournament in Dallas.
- Morandais became the 21st player in school history to eclipse 1,000 career points. He would finish his career ranked seventh on CU's all-time scoring charts with 1,428 points. • Blair Wilson reached the 1,000-point barrier on Dec. 31 against Richmond. He would leave Boulder ranked 14th on the Buffs' all-time scoring list with 1,253 points. • David Harrison scored his 1,000th point during the 2003-04 campaign amassing 1,317 career points for 11th on CU's all-time list.
- Harrison opted to declare for the NBA draft after his junior season, forfeiting his final year of eligibility.
- Harrison broke the CU record for career blocks with three against Utah. Harrison bettered Ted Allen's eight-year mark of 161. Harrison would go on to block 225 shots in only three years and would subsequently hold every blocked shot record category.
- Wilson broke CU's record for career 3-pointers made with six against Iowa State. In that game, Wilson set or tied three more school records: he made a school record six 3-pointers without a miss; he tied the school mark for treys in one half (6); he also tied the school record for 3-pointers in one half of a conference game.
- Wilson tied his personal best with seven 3-pointers at home against Kansas State. Ironically, it's the second time in his career he has netted seven treys against the Wildcats (Jan. 1, 2002). He also became one of three players to make seven 3-pointers in a game, twice.

- The Buffaloes shattered the school record for 3-pointers made in a season, bettering a mark of 218 set in 1998-99. CU made 223 and fell one attempt short of the record for three-point attempts in a season (633 in 1998-99). The Buffs made 129 treys against Big 12 opponents, besting the previous school record for 3-pointers made during conference play (114 in 2003-04). CU's 380 three-point attempts during conference play topped a previous mark (297 in 2001-02).
- CU and Oklahoma State combined for 30 3-pointers in Boulder on Jan. 30. The Buffs made a school record 17, while the Cowboys added 13. The two-team total is believed to be a Big 12 Conference record.

SEASON NOTES

- The Buffaloes youth of freshmen and sophomores attributed 72.3 percent of the team scoring, the highest percentage of any Buffs team since the Big 12 Conference began in 1996-97.
- CU fell short by single-digits 11 times, an average of 4.6 points; and in conference play on eight occasions by a 5.3 point margin. Four of those single-digit setbacks came against NCAA Tournament opponents, Texas (in overtime), at Kansas, at Oklahoma and Texas A&M.
- In two seasons, there have been 20 single-digit losses (15 in Big 12 play).
- All-Big 12 Conference third team selection Cory Higgins turned in a successful sophomore campaign that saw him become one of only 13 players nationally to lead or finish second on his team in five major statistical categories (points, rebounds, assists, steals, blocked shots). He also ranked nationally in a trio of categories (steals, FT%, scoring).
- Higgins scored 538 points finishing 13th all-time in school history for most points in a single-season. It ranks third all-time among CU sophomores and seventh all-time among guards for a season.
- Dwight Thorne II made great strides putting together his best season-to-date recording a 12 ppg. He made 48 percent of his shots and led CU from the three-point arc with 45.
- Levi Knutson was an All-Big 12 Academic first team selection. During the spring 2009 semester, the men's basketball team achieved their highest grade point average on record a 2.926. The 2.926 GPA shatters the spring 2001 semester of 2.744.

Jim Davis is one of five players in school history to grab at least 860 career rebounds. Of the five players, only three, including himself only played three years (Meely, Vandiver).

In his three years at CU, Andre Roberson was second nationally in rebounding during the 2012-13 season, and third nationally in 2011-12. He led the Pac-12 Conference on the glass (all games and conference-only) in each of those two seasons.

CONSECUTIVE FGS MADE: Then-sophomore Andre Roberson shot 66.7 percent during the Pac-12 Tournament (20-of-30). Roberson made 11 straight field goal attempts dating back to the game-winning put-back against Oregon in the quarterfinals. His streak ties for the third longest, and just one off the school record of 12 held by teammates House Guest and Shaun Vandiver one year apart. Roberson's 11-straight are the most on the road or at a neutral site. His 6-of-6 performance from the field against Cal, which included two 3-pointers, was a career-best percentage.
12—Shaun Vandiver vs. Illinois State in Boulder, Dec. 4, 1989.
12—Rodell "House" Guest vs. Central Connecticut State (5) & Eastern Michigan (7) in Boulder, Dec. 7-8, 1990.

11—Jim Creighton vs. Iowa State in Boulder, Feb. 14, 1972.

Rodell Guest made 12 consecutive field goals tying for the most ever at CU.

David Harrison tops the list as CU's single-season and career leader in FG%.
