Coach Mark Simpson (10th year) Quotes

"Our top players are Matt Potter and John Lindbergh. Matt is a fifth year senior who I expect to have a solid spring for us. John is an accomplished player who is definitely going to be an asset for us this spring and the years to come.

"Once again, the conference will be tough. Oklahoma and Oklahoma State are again ranked in the top 10 nationally, and past those two, it's really wide open as to who is the third best team in the conference. Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas, along with us, have all played well at times. The spring will obviously determine a lot as to who jells by Big Eight time. We're still a young team, as our top five consists of one senior and four sophomores right now."

Season Outlook

The 1987 University of Colorado golf team, though still very young, could be the best team CU has produced since the Steve Jones-Rick Cramer-Terry Kahl days earlier this decade. The Buffs have good leadership in senior Matt Potter, along with one of the top newcomers in the nation in sophomore John Lindbergh, who won the national junior college title as a frosh at Florida JC. "I'm anticipating significant improvement over a year ago," head coach Mark Simpson said. "With the maturity of Matt and the addition of John, I feel we have two very strong players that can show the way for the rest of the team. It's important that two or three of the younger guys step forward to play at the level we need to be successful." The Buffs enjoyed a fairly successful fall, and if CU can perform on a slightly higher level this spring, it's not out of the question that Simpson's 10th Colorado team could make some noise in the Big Eight or even earn a berth into the NCAA's.
