HEAD COACH RICHARD ROKOS

- ❄️ Seven NCAA Championships
- ❄️ 12 NCAA West Regional Championships
- ❄️ 194 All-Americans
- ❄️ 34 Individual National Champions

Richard Rokos and Colorado Skiing. In 22 seasons, the combination has been synonymous with success. When he was promoted to head coach on July 3, 1990, the process to return a program that was eight years removed from an NCAA title back to national prominence took its first step. Twenty-two seasons, six national team titles, 32 individual champions and 185 All-Americans later, it is a program that has turned steps into strides.

Rokos, 62, is the 11th and longest tenured head coach in CU ski history, has guided Colorado to six national championships, winning NCAA crowns in 1991, 1995, 1998, 1999, 2006 and 2011. In addition, his Buffaloes have won individual titles (32 total) in 14 different years. That first team title came in his first season as head coach, a unique accomplishment in any sport, and served as a bookend for the school as it came on the heels of CU's first in football.

Only five coaches in CU history have coached their teams longer than Rokos has been at the reins of the ski team; all five coached at least 24 seasons and Rokos is the ninth to coach a team for two decades. With all of his teams qualifying for the NCAA Championships, his 22 trips to nationals are the second most by any coach in school history.

He has also coached the Buffs to 11 Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Ski Association (RMISA) titles, the last coming in 2011, events that also serve as the NCAA West Regional, as well as eight runner-up finishes.

His skiers, alpine and Nordic, have posted 258 top 10 finishes at the NCAA Championships; that total includes 111 first team All-Americans, with 34 earning two-time single-year All-American mention, and 68 second-team All-Americans.

Under Rokos, the Buffaloes have won 55 of 135 meets they have skied in, including the six NCAA crowns and the 11 RMISA Championships/NCAA West Regionals (1991, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1998, 1999, 2002, 2006, 2008, 2010 and 2011). On 42 other occasions, CU has finished as the runner-up.

Though he has been notified on seven different occasions that he was the selection for the RMISA coach of the year, the last time for 2011, Rokos declines the honor for personal reasons, mainly that he doesn't believe in the philosophy and that the student-athletes deserve the credit.

One of Rokos' greatest accomplishments since taking over the program has been turning what was once essentially an individual sport, pulling divergent skiers—men and women, Nordic and Alpine, into a team event at CU. Prior to his arrival, the two units rarely saw each other prior to the national championships, as they trained and raced separately. But it was his philosophy, to be an educator as well as a coach, to understand the physical and psychological significance of a student-athlete and to introduce harmony and mutual support that has made it a more unified program. Credit Rokos himself for the strong camaraderie because there is very little that he asks of his skiers that he doesn't do himself. That includes 6 a.m. ice hockey games, off-season dryland training, mountain bike rides from Boulder to Winter Park and back, hiking Pikes Peak, playing soccer and rollerblading through Boulder.

Rokos, who also coordinates all alpine aspects of the program, was already very familiar with the CU ski program upon his hiring, as he was promoted from alpine coordinator to the post. He served one season (1989-90) in that role under his predecessor as head coach, Tim LaVallee, and was the head coach of Colorado's Alpine "B" Team for the two years prior to joining the varsity staff (1987-89). With Rokos tutoring the alpine skiers, the 1990 team finished third in both the West Regional and the NCAA championships, with one individual national champion in the latter.

Rokos brought to CU a great amount of racing and coaching experience. He competed in his native home of Czechoslovakia and internationally for 19 years before beginning his coaching career with the Czechoslovakian Junior National Team in 1977. The year prior to joining the junior national team, Rokos graduated from the University of Masaryk with a masters' degree in physical education, his emphasis in his diploma work was the use of ski slopes with artificial surfaces for slalom and giant slalom practice. In 1969 he earned his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the College of Machiner. He has additional course work in Prague (Level II International Coaching License), Colorado State (athletic training) and the University of Colorado (special education).

Leaving the Czech national team in 1980, Rokos went on to coach at several ski schools in Austria before finally coming to the United States to coach at the Grampian Mountain Ski School in Michigan the following year. He then spent four years (1984-87) working with the U.S. Pro Ski Tour before settling down in Boulder.

Rokos was the head alpine coach of the 2011 United States team that participated in the World University Games teams in Erzurum, Turkey. It was the seventh time he coached the team, having previously done so in 1995 (Jaca, Spain), 1997 (Mugu, Korea), 1999 (Zakopane, Poland), 2003 and 2007 (Tarvisio, Italy) and 2005 (Innsbruck, Austria). Combined, his athletes have brought home four gold medals, one by CU skier Katie Hartman in the Super-G in 2011, along with four silver and several bronze including one by a former Buffalo, Erika Hogan, in 2003. He was also the head coach of the entire U.S. Team in the 1997 event in Korea.

In 2006, he earned a Top of the Rocky Award as the region's top college coach as selected by the writers and critics of the Rocky Mountain News. The honor made mention of CU being the first-ever shorthanded team to win an NCAA title, recording the biggest second-day comeback in the meet, and Rokos specifically being mentioned by President George W. Bush when the Buffs were one of 12 teams invited to the White House. Rokos was saluted by the president, who called him a “proud American” in reference to his defecting to the States for freedom, which he also privately had mentioned upon meeting him, “There’s nothing like freedom.”

He was also selected as the 2006 Coach of the Year in the state of Colorado by the Sportswomen of Colorado Hall of Fame.

Rokos was born May 25, 1950 in Brno, Czechoslovakia. He and his wife, the former Helena Konecny, and then-18-month-old daughter Linda, left a communist-bound native homeland in 1980 for Austria where they spent a year preparing their visas, and defected from Czechoslovakia to the United States (Detroit) a year later before calling Colorado their permanent home beginning in 1982. He and Helena are the parents of two grown children Linda, now an alpine instructor at Eldora and Thomas, and one grandchild, Stella (14), who is also an avid skier.

ASSISTANT COACHES

Bruce Cranmer

Head Nordic Coach

Bruce Cranmer, a familiar name among skiing historians in Colorado, is in his 14th season at the head Nordic coach for the Buffaloes.

Cranmer skied collegiately for CU, helping the Buffs to two national championships in 1972 and '73 under coach Bill Marolt. He later went on to compete for the U.S. Ski Team from 1980-88 when he was a member of the 1985 World Championship team.

Longtime Coloradoans certainly know the name, as his grandfather, George, started the Winter Park Ski Resort in Winter Park, Colo., which has blossomed into one of the finer skier areas in the world.

Cranmer brought an outstanding coaching resume with him to Boulder and he has expanded it even further once he got there, as he was the head cross country coach at Vermont, helping the Catamounts to four NCAA Championships between 1989-2000. Vermont was also the national runner-up three different times under Cranmer and head coach Chip LaCasse.

In his tenure at CU, the Buffs have won three NCAA Championships, 2006, 2011 and 2013, and have finished in the top three at the national meet eight other times in his 13 years. He has coached 10 skiers to 12 individual NCAA Championships, including Rune Oedegaard and Joanne Reid 2013. He also has coached two athletes to individual NCAA Championship sweeps, first in 2006 when current assistant coach Jana Weinberger (then Rehema) won both the classical and freestyle championships and then in 2008, Maria Grevsgaard won both championships.

In the past nine years, CU has racked up 11 of those 12 individual championships and the Buffs have had at least one individual champion on the Nordic side in five of the last six seasons.

Others who have won individual NCAA Championships are Mari Storeng (2002, women's freestyle), Kit Richmond (2006, men's classical), Vegard Kjoelhamar (2009, men's freestyle), Matt Gelso (2010, men's classical), Reid Pletcher (2011, men's classical) and Eliska Hajkova (2011, women's classical).

The Buffs have also won the mythical Nordic national championship six times under Cranmer's tutelage, scoring the most Nordic points at the NCAA Championships in 2004, '06, '08, '10, '11 and '13, the only six times the Buffs have topped the Nordic points list since the NCAA went to a combined skiing championship in 1983.

CU's men's Nordic skiers have earned the most points at the NCAA Championship five times under Cranmer (2004, '06, '08, '10, '11), the only five times since 1983 the Buffs have topped that point total, as well. On the women's side, Cranmer's teams have earned more points than other women's Nordic squads five times under Cranmer (out of seven times in CU history), including in 2002, '06, '08, '11 and '13.

Cranmer's squads have eight times won races at the NCAA Championships, starting in 2002 when the women won both the classical and freestyle races. In 2004, '06 and '08 when the Buffs won the Nordic overall title, CU won three of the four races. In 2009, CU won the men's classical race, in 2010, CU won the men's classical and women's freestyle races and in 2011, CU won the men's classical and women's freestyle races. CU has won the men's classical race four of the past six seasons at NAAs. In 2013, the CU women won both the classical and freestyle races.

Grevsgaard set a new CU record when she won 24 races between 2006-09, eight more than any other skier in CU history, Nordic or alpine. Out of the 20 skiers that have won five or more races in a season, Cranmer has coached seven of them, including Grevsgaard's totals of 11 in 2008, matching the CU record, seven in 2007 and five in 2009, and Rehema's five in 2006, Gelso's five in 2010, Oedegaard's five in 2012 and most recently Reid's nine in 2013.

In Cranmer's first season in 2001, Storeng became just the seventh skier in CU history to earn two podium appearances in their first NCAA Championship as she was the runner up in the classical race and took third in the freestyle race.

A total of 21 of his athletes have earned 49 first-team All-America honors and in all, and he has had at least one first-team All-America performance each year and eight times CU has had four or more Nordic athletes earn first-team All-America honors, including a CU record five, accomplished in 2010. CU's four athletes earning first-team honors in 2011 earned a combined seven honors, the most in CU history, one more than the 2004 and '10 teams.

Including second-team All-America honors, Cranmer has coached 24 athletes to 80 such honors in his time at Colorado. In his time at CU, the Buffs have had 19 skiers win a total of 93 races, including 14 skiers winning 85 races since 2006. The Buffs have twice swept all four Nordic races under his tenure, in 2008 at the RMISA Championships when Grevsgaard and Kit Richmond both swept the races, and in 2009 at the Alaska Invitational when Grevsgaard won both races while Gelso and Kjoelhamar each one a men's race.

In his time at Vermont, the Catamounts boasted 12 individual Nordic NCAA Championships including a pair of four-time winners in Thorodd Bakken and Laura Wilson and a pair of Olympians in Joe Galanes and Kerrin Petty. Former DU Nordic coaches Knut and Trond Nystad were also All-Americans under Cranmer's tutelage while at Vermont.

Cranmer also coached for two U.S. Olympic Teams, the 1994 squad in Lillehammer, Norway, and the 1998 team in Nagano, Japan. Outside of skiing, Cranmer spent time as a Quality Control Engineer on the Trans-Alaska Pipeline and as an Outward Bound instructor in Bertchesgaden, Germany.

Born September 15, 1950, in Denver, Cranmer graduated from Aspen High School. He won NBC's Survival of the Fittest in 1985 and won the overall Great American Ski Chase in 1986. He is also a Class 5 whitewater kayaker. He is married to the former Patricia Drislane.

2012 (Freshman)—In a change of events that went from the Buffs likely having to rely on McLean heavily, the Buffs saw three seniors return with an extra season of eligibility so she was afforded the ability to add depth to an extremely deep women's alpine team. She finished nine of 12 races with five top 10 finishes. After two solid ninth place results at the University of Colorado Spencer Nelson Memorial Invitational, she burst onto the scene at the Denver Invitational with a second place finish in the giant slalom race. She also showed improvement on the slalom side and in what turned out to be her final event of the season at New Mexico, she finished 12th and 13th in the two slalom races there. She was then sidelined with a concussion for the RMISA Championships and despite being the No. 3 women's alpine qualifier out of the RMISA, she was also forced to sit out the NCAA Championships as the Buffs went on to win the NCAA Championship. She earned first-team All-RMISA honors for the second straight season and was also named the recipient of CU's Spencer Nelson Memorial Award, given for overcoming adversity.

*both RMISA Qualifiers were giant slalom races and both races at New Mexico were slalom races.

2013 (Freshman)—Wales immediately established herself as one of the top collegiate skiers in the nation, turning in one of the top freshman seasons in CU history. She finished 11 of 14 races in her initial campaign with eight top 10, five top 5 and four podium appearances. In five giant slalom races that she finished, she took second four times, the only time she wasn't the runner up was at the RMISA Championships, where because of the rules of that race, she started near the back of the field and still worked her way up to a fourth place finish. In slalom action, she opened the season with a 10th place finish at the Colorado Invitational and after taking 13th at the DU Invitational, she turned in impressive seventh and eighth place finishes at Utah and New Mexico, respectively. She finished 11th at the RMISA Championships in the slalom race. She was clutch at the NCAA Championships, helping the Buffs to the team title, taking second in the giant slalom race with the second-fastest second run after sitting in sixth place after the first run. She earned a podium appearance in her first ever NCAA race and was honored with first-team All-America honors as a result. Her 18th place finish in the slalom race at the NCAA Championships enabled the Buffs to keep contact with Vermont on the second-to-last day of the championships and set up the biggest final day comeback in championships history as the Buffs took home the title. She started her season off strong straight out of the gate with second place finishes in her first two races, giant slalom races at Eldora, one a RMISA Qualifier and one part of the Colorado Invitational. After not finishing either GS race at the Denver Invitational (one being another RMISA Qualifier), she had her best meet of the season at Utah with a second place GS and seventh place slalom performance, both season bests. On top of being a first-team All-American, she earned first-team All-RMISA honors and was given CU's Outstanding Alpine Woman Award at the conclusion of the season. She was the RMISA Skier of the Week against Utah and earned mention on the Division I National All-Academic Ski Team for attaining above a 3.5 GPA in the classroom.

season. He had four top 10 performances, all in giant slalom action, with two of those top five finishes and one podium with a third place finish in a giant slalom qualifier ahead of the RMISA Championships. He finished fourth in the giant slalom at the University of Colorado Spencer Nelson Memorial Invitational, a day after he opened the season with an ninth place finish in a qualifier race both at Eldora. He also had a ninth place GS finish at the Denver Invitational in Winter Park. A top student-athlete, won the Elite 89 Award for having the highest GPA amongst all competitors at the NCAA Championships and the CU Scholar-Athlete Award for having the highest GPA amongst all sophomore student-athletes at CU. He was named to the Division I 2013 (Junior)—Haug completed 13 of the 14 races on the season and for the third time represented the Buffs at the NCAA Championship, helping the team to the 2013 title. He showed flashes of what made him the RMISA MPV his freshman season and turned in an especially clutch performance at the RMISA Championships, cementing his spot on the contingent that represented the Buffs in Vermont at the NCAA Championships. Entering the RMISA Championships, he had one top 10 finish in each giant slalom and slalom action, and needed a second solid result to move up the RMISA NCAA Qualification list. He did just that, leading the Buffs in both races with a fifth place GS result and seventh place slalom finish. At the NCAA Championships, he finished tied for 12th in the GS race and was 16th in the slalom race when the Buffs used a team-first mentality, meaning it was more important for him to finish than it was to go all out and shoot for the podium. One of the top academic student-athletes on the CU-Boulder campus, he was named to the Division I National All-Academic Team, CU's 4.0 Club and was a second-team CoSIDA Academic All-American after earning first-team mention on the All-District 7 team.

2012 (Sophomore)—Haug continued on his successful freshman season with another impressive performance on the slopes as a sophomore. He completed 12 of the 14 races on the season and represented the Buffs at the NCAA Championships for the second straight

National All-Academic Ski Team and was a third-team mention for the CoSIDA Academic All-American At-Large squad. He also made mention on CU's 4.0 Club and was named second-team All-RMISA.

2011 (Freshman)—Haug completed a highly successful freshman campaign being named the RMISA MVP for men's alpine, an award he earned largely because of his consistency throughout the season. He completed all 14 races, the only CU alpine skier to accomplish that feat on both the men's and women's side. He finished in the top 20 in all but one race and the top 10 in 10 of the 14 races. Prior to the start of the RMISA Championships, his only finish outside the top 10 was an 11th place in the slalom race at the Utah Invitational, the first slalom race of the season. He took ninth the day before in the GS race there. He had the opportunity to represent Norway at the World University Games but passed and took advantage by winning the first race of his career, a slalom race at the New Mexico Invitational. He was fifth in the other slalom race there and earned CU Athlete of the Week honors. His best all-around performance likely was at the Denver Invitational, with those skiers competing at WUG back, he took home two podium performances, finishing third in both the slalom and giant slalom races and earning RMISA Skier of the Week honors. In the end, he earned second-team All-RMISA honors and while his finishes weren't as impressive at the NCAA Championships where the goals were based on team finish and not individual, his two finishes there were instrumental in CU winning the NCAA Championship. In the classroom, he earned a 4.0 GPA in CU's highly ranked business school, and was named to the Division I National All-Academic team.

Club—Haug skied for the Norwegian Junior European Cup Team from 2006-08 and switched over to Edge Alpine the last three years before enrolling in college at Colorado. During that time, he competed in over 250 races, finished nearly 200 of them and compiled eight race victories, including four at the Norwegian National Junior Championships. He won the Norwegian National Junior Championship in the giant slalom in both 2006 and 2009 and both the Super G and Super Combined in 2008. He compiled 21 podium appearances, 36 top 5 and 70 top 10 performances.

High School—Haug graduated from Donaki Gymnasium in Raud, Norway in July 2008. He skied on the alpine ski team there for coach Per Erik Voguild.

In the Classroom—Haug is enrolled in the business school at Colorado. He has a cumulative 3.98 grade point average at CU (one A-) and was named CU's Scholar Athlete Award winner for having the highest GPA amongst all sophomore student athletes, the Elite 89 Award for having the highest GPA amongst all student-athletes competing at the NCAA Championships and has twice been named to the Division I National All-Academic Ski Team. He also has made mention on the CoSIDA Academic All-American At-Large Team as a sophomore and junior.

Personal—Andreas Willumsen Haug was born March 20, 1989, in Blommenholm, Norway and his parents are Morten Haug and Nina Williamsen. He would like to pursue professional skiing after his career at Colorado and after that a career in business.

1 Letter; 2012 as a freshman

Career at Colorado—Zika will have a second chance at his sophomore campaign after sitting out last year recovering from a knee injury. He likely will not be 100 percent by the beginning of this ski season but should be by season's end. Two years ago he finished 13 of 14 races with 11 top 10, six top five, four podiums and two race victories, including the giant slalom race at the NCAA Championships.

2013 (Sophomore)—Sat out of competition recovering from a knee injury, ultimately taking a redshirt.

2012 (Freshman)—Completed a stellar freshman season by being crowned the NCAA Individual Champion in the giant slalom, after winning both runs of the race and finishing over a second ahead of the competition, the largest margin of victory in the NCAA GS race in 30 years. He came into CU with sufficient points in the giant slalom races to earn high starting placements from the beginning, but had to work his way up the slalom chart, and did so. In GS races, he finished in the top six in all six races in which he finished with two wins, two second places, a fifth and a sixth place. In slalom races, he slowly worked his way up, finishing the year with a fourth place finish at the RMISA Championships and 10th place at the NCAA Championships, both in Montana. He quickly worked his way up the slalom start list, in the first race of the season he started in 31st and finished 14th, then in the second race he again started in 31st and finished ninth. Similarly in giant slalom races, he started 17th and finished fifth in the first race of the season, started 14th and finished second in the second

2014 COLORADO BUFFALOES

Charlie Von Thaden

5-8 * 140 * Nordic * Steamboat Springs, Colo. (Lowell Whiteman/SSWSC)

1 Letter, 2013 as a freshman

Career at Colorado—Entering his second season on the team, Von Thaden adds depth to the men's Nordic squad and is nothing if not consistent, finishing between 15th and 22nd in nine of his 10 collegiate races to date.

2013 (Freshman)—Von Thaden participated in all 10 races on the season leading up to the NCAA Championships, coming up with three top 15 and four top 20 finishes in his first season of collegiate skiing. The No. 22 seemed to be his lucky number, as he finished 22nd in half of the 10 races. He also had three 15th place finishes, in the freestyle races at the Colorado Invitational, Utah Invitational and RMISA Championships. Four of his five 22nd place finishes came in the five classical races he participated in, in each of the last four race and two of his three 15th place finishes came in the final two races of the year, meaning he had identical results in the Utah Invitational and the RMISA Championships.

High School—Von Thaden attended Lowell Whiteman School in Steamboat Springs, Colo. Aside from skiing, he also lettered in soccer for one season as a midfielder.

In the Classroom—Von Thaden plans to major in Physics at Colorado and is also interested in Chemistry.

CU IN THE NCAA'S

The NCAA first sponsored a men's national championship in skiing in 1954, though national title meets (National Intercollegiate Championships) were held as early as 1946, the same year CU's program began. Women's programs came into being in the late 1970s, with then CU head coach and eventual AD Bill Marolt at the forefront of making it a reality. CU has competed in each of the last 41 NCAA Championships and in 52 of 55 overall. One of those three occasions where CU didn't qualify (1964), several team members had competed in the Winter Olympics, and in 1967, CU sent only a few skiers to Maine for financial reasons. The old AIAW sponsored women's titles between 1977-82; in 1983, the NCAA absorbed the AIAW but combined the men's and women's competition, as was the case in rifle and fencing. Here's an in-depth look at the NCAA Championship history of the Buffaloes.

NCAA SCORING FORMAT

The 2014 ski season will see yet another scoring change, moving to a weighted 40-point base (see bottom of page for details). Each team can qualify a maximum of 12 skiers and since 2007, every skier at the NCAA Championships counts toward the team score, a dramatic difference from regular season events. From 1997-2006, teams with a full 12-skier team would have to throw out its lowest three scores and teams qualifying 11 skiers would throw out one score. In 1997, the NCAA reduced the skiers in each field from 50 to 39 and the maximum from each school from 16 to 12. Colorado (2006) and Denver (2008) are the only schools to have won the title with fewer than 12 skiers.

The Buddy Werner Memorial Scholarship Award

The one name synonymous with competitive skiing in America is Buddy Werner, the gritty competitor from Steamboat Springs, Colo. Werner was America's first international skiing star who began his career at the University of Colorado in 1959. In 1961, he won the NCAA slalom and placed second in the downhill. Two years later, he reversed the order by claiming the downhill title and taking second in the slalom. Werner was a three-time all-American while at CU, was elected to the Skiing Hall of Fame and the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame. He was killed in an avalanche in St. Moritz, Switzerland, April 12, 1964. Werner established a standard for American skiers which still stands as an inspiration today. Because of the example Werner set for young athletes, a scholarship commemorating Buddy was established in 1973 to benefit a deserving team member.

The Laura Sharpe Flood Award

Each year the University of Colorado skier who best exemplifies the spirit, enthusiasm and dedication, both on the mountain and in the classroom, of Laura Flood will receive the Laura Sharpe Flood Award. Flood tragically lost her life April 3, 1989, after losing control on an early morning training run at Eldora Ski Resort. In her lone NCAA Championship appearance in 1988, Flood finished 12th in the giant slalom and 20th in the slalom. Former coach Tim LaVallee said, "She was a good skier, perhaps not a great one, but her biggest asset was her dedication and commitment."

COLORADO ALL-AMERICANS

The list of Colorado's all-time All-America skiers; research is sketchy prior to 1969, but coaches generally selected the teams themselves either at the NCAA Championships or shortly after the season was completed. One team, consisting of eight members, was selected until the mid-1960s, when both a first and second team was selected. When the NCAA merged men's skiing with the AIAW women's programs into one combined, coed sport in 1983, the formula became the first through fifth finishers earned first-team honors with the sixth through 10th performers earning second-team honors. Those members of winning relay teams also earned first-team recognition. The comprehensive list of CU All-Americans, with event listed in which the honor was earned (AIAW honors for women from 1977 through 1982):
