INDIVIDUAL PLAYER NOTES

1 STEPHONE ROBINSON, WR/RET

- ➔ Robinson provides excellent speed and elusiveness to the offense and the return game. He started his CU career at cornerback before making the transition to offense in 2005.
- ➔ He does not get the credit he deserves as a punt return man—his average appears low, but Robinson has made a habit of fielding kicks in traffic, often netting 0 or 1 yard on the “return.” However, in the field position battle, those efforts have often prevented the Buffs from starting drives 10 to 15 yards further back had the kicks been allowed to bounce instead of his fielding them on the run.

2 HUGH CHARLES, TB

- ➔ He is pound-for-pound the strongest player on the team. Though he is only 5-8, 190 lbs., he can bench 415 lbs. and squat 605 lbs. He also possesses blinding speed with a 4.34 40 time.
- ➔ Also a member of the indoor and outdoor track teams, in his limited time on both, he has posted the second best figures in the long jump both indoors and outdoors at CU. Only Kingsley Adams (mid-1970s) recorded better jumps.
- ➔ He earned his solo pilot’s license in a Cessna 172 as a sophomore in high school and Fox Sports did a feature on him last fall as he took a reporter and cameraman up flying with him (our BuffVision department has footage). He also enjoys skiing, fishing and wakeboarding in his spare time.
- ➔ He is good friends with teammate DE Walter Boye-Doe. The two went to Keller High School together in Texas before Charles decided to join him at CU.
- ➔ Charles was hard on himself after fumbling late in the game against Georgia: “We made mistakes, and I take the blame for the last fumble. That last fumble changed the game.”
- ➔ He finally broke out against Arizona State with 109 rushing yards on 20 carries. Said Charles: “The past few weeks we’ve had a rotation going and that helps keep me fresh. But when you get in a good rhythm, good things happen. Every good team has their on workhorse back, and that’s what I strive to be for this team.”
- ➔ He played sparingly against Colorado State, rushing just two times for 10 yards. Said Hawkins: “We were trying to get him in there and we need to continue to push the envelope with him to get him where he was last year.”

4 PATRICK WILLIAMS, WR

- ➔ Williams possesses a rare combination of speed and athletic ability, giving the Buffs a legitimate deep threat to stretch opposing defenses. Injuries sabotaged his true freshman season. He spent much of the fall with both hands in casts after a pair of freak circumstances led to broken bones in each. One hand was injured after becoming tangled in a defender’s face mask. Last season, Williams remained relatively healthy and caught at least one pass in all 13 games, but the growing pains of his first full season in major college football were obvious. The high school quarterback of an option offense was learning the ropes at wide receiver in the Big 12 Conference on the fly.
- ➔ He was CU’s primary target in the passing game against Colorado State, making five of the eight catches for Colorado for 37 yards.
- ➔ On the first offensive play for the Buffs against Montana State, Williams hauled in a 42-yard reception from James Cox. It was the largest gain on the first play of the season in school history.

5 J.J. BILLINGSLEY, SS

- ➔ Billingsley has been a leader and a mainstay in the secondary since his freshman season.
- ➔ Billingsley had arthroscopic surgery on his knee following the Missouri game. He jokes that he has “old man knees.”
- ➔ He was one of two players (Wheatley) to play in every defensive snap against Colorado State.
- ➔ He played a team-high 70 plays against Montana State, making eight tackles.

BILLINGSLEY CONTINUED

- ➔ A fifth-year senior, he has overcome ankle and knee injuries early in his career, as well as some academic struggles, to make it to his senior year.
- ➔ S Michael Lewis (1998-2001), with 336 career tackles, owns the most stops in school history by a defensive back; Billingsley entered his senior season with 255, thus needed just 82 to take over the top spot.
- ➔ He’s a crowd favorite thanks to his initials — at Folsom Field home games, fans say “J.—J.” out loud along with the public address announcer (Alan Cass). Cass made the “alphabet kids” popular in the late 80s: O.C. Oliver and yes, J.J. Flannigan. J.J. stands for Jon, Jr.
- ➔ Against Arizona State, he made a leaping interception near the goal line of Sun Devil quarterback Rudy Carpenter at the end of the first half. With a sure Arizona State touchdown if the ball got past him, he leaped up into the air, snagged the ball and landed on his back. The play preserved an 11-point halftime deficit.

6 GARDNER MCKAY, CB

- ➔ Although he has a small frame (5’11, 160 pounds), coaches have raved about his coverage skills. He has bulked up this fall in order to be a factor in defending the running game.
- ➔ An injured ankle has sidelined McKay for much of the season and has prevented him from cracking the lineup. He is listed as second on the depth chart at right cornerback, but starter Terrence Wheatley has played all but one defensive snap this season.
- ➔ Found his way to CU thanks to being a high school teammate of Darian Hagan Jr., the son of the CU running backs coach Darian Hagan.

7 BERNARD JACKSON, QB

- ➔ Despite throwing an interception in triple-overtime against Baylor, his coaches insist he has done a great job of throwing the ball away this season instead of trying to force throws. He said his last throw against Baylor was a “bad throw” and that he would have been able to connect with TE Tyson DeVree for a winning score if he had thrown it a moment earlier.
- ➔ The day after CU’s heartbreaking loss at Georgia, Hawkins said none of his teams have improved at the rate at which this team has, and he attributes the progress to Jackson emerging as a playmaker and a team leader since being installed as the starter three weeks ago. Said Hawkins: “He did some nice things. He is kind of starting to get to that next level where you’re not just out there functioning.”
- ➔ Although he was disappointed with the outcome against Georgia, Jackson is brimming with confidence. He said the way they were able to move the ball on the road against the Bulldogs has convinced the team it can play with any opponent.
- ➔ Jackson struggled against Arizona State, but continued to make strides offensively. Said Hawkins: “I like Bernard in there and I like what he’s doing. We’ve got a true freshman—he’s a true freshman. Bernard can control it. He’s got legs and he made more plays this week than he did last week. The [play] package was bigger this week, and he probably had a few more errors than he did last week.”
- ➔ He assumed the starting position against Colorado State. He impressed coaches with his grasp of the playbook and willingness to get better. Said offensive coordinator Mark Helfrich the day after the CSU game: “He is committing himself to improvement and that’s what you want to see. “He was in here [Sunday] morning before half of the coaches.”
- ➔ Making a surprise start at quarterback, the first of his collegiate career, Jackson marched the Buffs on a nine-play, 65-yard drive, capped by a three-yard touchdown run on the game’s first series.
- ➔ He went in under center for one play against Montana State, a five-yard designed run in the second quarter.
- ➔ During his career at CU, he has bounced around from quarterback to wide receiver to running back and now back to quarterback.

9 BLAKE MACKEY, WR

- ➔ Last season he was expected to be a huge part of the buffs' offense before tearing his ACL in fall camp and missing the entire season. He is 100 percent healthy, but has been unable to contribute much this season.
- ➔ Against Colorado State, he saw his first action since the 2004 Houston Bowl.
- ➔ Hawkins: "He's been a little up and down and I've been talking to him. He has flashes of brilliance and other moments of hesitancy."

10 JAMES COX, QB

- ➔ Cox missed the game against Georgia following the death of his father, Terry.
- ➔ He battled for and won the starting quarterback job after an impressive fall camp for the season opener, but was benched in favor of the more mobile Bernard Jackson after the game.
- ➔ Cox came in for two plays against Colorado State in passing situations. He completing one of the two passes for one yard.
- ➔ The Buffs' offensive struggles against Montana State weren't solely on him. The offensive line was missing guard Daniel Sanders, and the receivers dropped a few balls and had other mistakes. Redshirt freshman tight end Riar Geer dropped a touchdown pass in the end zone and wide receivers Patrick Williams and Alvin Barnett both dropped passes that would have led to big gains.
- ➔ His rise to the top came as a surprise to many, since he was almost written off as the starting quarterback after missing almost all of spring drills when he suffered a hairline fracture in his throwing hand and an injured knuckle on his index finger in the first week. Every publication narrowed the battle down to juniors Brian White and Bernard Jackson.
- ➔ Cox had two career starts under his belt prior to his senior year: he started in place of Joel Klatt in 2004 against Iowa State to give his team a spark on offense. He also started the 2005 Champ Sports Bowl in place of Klatt.
- ➔ In 2004, he had a similarly close battle for a spot when he held off strong pushes from Erik Greenberg and Brian White to win the backup job behind Klatt.

10 TERRY WASHINGTON, CB

- ➔ He is one of the fastest players on the team with great instincts and sure-tackling ability. He was singled out by Hawkins in front of the team during fall camp because he broke his hand during the Buffs' second scrimmage of the fall and continued playing through the pain without telling trainers. He is playing with a cast on his hand.
- ➔ He made his first career start against Georgia, playing in 29 snaps from scrimmage and recording three solo tackles.
- ➔ In 20 plays against Montana State, Washington made two third down stops and one fourth down stop. On a crucial fourth and goal on the one-yard line for the Bobcats, quarterback Cory Carpenter completed a pass to running back Evin Groves whose foot crossed the goal line; but Washington made a big hit and prevented the ball from breaking the plane.

13 JOE SANDERS, OLB

- ➔ Sanders is a key reserve in a linebacker corps which is once again one of the strengths of the Buffalo defense.
- ➔ His biggest play to date was against Washington State in 2004 in his first defensive action ever when former linebacker Brian Iwuh went down with a high ankle sprain. In the middle of the fourth quarter with CU clinging to a 10-6 lead, he picked off an Alex Brink pass and returned the interception for a 51-yard touchdown. He finished the game with a solid three tackles, including one for loss. He was nominated for ESPN's Game Changing Performance Award.
- ➔ Former CU basketball center and current Indiana Pacer David Harrison helped persuade Sanders to become a Buff. Harrison, who also hails from Nashville and attended a nearby high school, has known Sanders since 1998.

14 MATT DiLALLO, P

- ➔ He's only a Redshirt freshman, so he should turn into a solid punter. He was tutored by one of the best last season in John Torp, who finished as the runner-up for the Ray Guy Award.
- ➔ DiLallo is also a left-footed kicker, just like his predecessor Torp.
- ➔ As the only punter for the Buffs against Colorado State, he booted a 73-yard punt in the second quarter, the longest ever by a freshman (true or redshirt) and tied for the 12th longest in school history.
- ➔ He was one of three punters to punt against Montana State—along with mason Crosby and Isaac Garden. He had two punts for a 40.5-yard average with one inside-the-20.

15 RYAN WALTERS, FS

- ➔ He has had to battle injuries so far this season. He was the starter until injuring his hamstring in fall camp and missing a number of practices. After yielding a start to Ben Burney for the home opener, he regained his position before injuring his neck against Missouri.
- ➔ Played in all but one defensive snap against Georgia.
- ➔ He made his first collegiate start against Colorado State.
- ➔ He started to develop as an excellent young player last season as a redshirt freshman. During the spring of 2005, he was the recipient of the Dick Anderson Award for the most improved player on defense. He saw action in 12 games, including the Champ Sports Bowl.
- ➔ He was recruited as a quarterback before switching to safety. His father, marc, played quarterback for CU between 1986-89, remarkably coming back at one point from a career-threatening knee injury; he owns a school record as he established the best single game passing rating (any amount of attempts) when he recorded a 353.3 at Kansas State in 1989.

16 MASON CROSBY, PK

- ➔ Hawkins on Crosby: "He is so lethal, it seems like we rarely try a field goal under 50 yards in practice. Most of his kicks are still climbing when they reach the uprights."
- ➔ Widely regarded as the nation's best placekicker, Crosby was named a team captain before the start of the season. Crosby has gained a considerable amount of national attention from Sports Illustrated, The Sporting News and The New York Times among others over the summer. He welcomes the publicity—not for him, but for the school.
- ➔ Head coach Dan Hawkins has repeatedly insisted that he would let Crosby attempt a 70-yard field goal for the college record (the record is 67 yards). He often makes kicks from 75 yards out during practice.
- ➔ Crosby missed a 36-yard field goal against Baylor, a kick that is usually automatic for the kicker. Said Hawkins: "The ball he missed today was probably the first bad ball he hit. In practice or in a game...ever."
- ➔ Matching up against Georgia's Brandon Coutu, another highly regarded kicker, Crosby bested his counterpart, connecting on 2-of-3 field goals (the one miss was blocked). Coutu missed his only attempt from 53 yards out.
- ➔ His 61-yard field goal against Colorado State in the third quarter, wiped out by a late timeout allowed to CSU, would have been a school record. After the timeout, he tried again and missed wide left.
- ➔ Crosby became the all-time leading scorer among kickers at Colorado with his 24-yard field goal in the first quarter against Montana State. He missed a chance at breaking his school record 60-yard field goal late in the game when he missed a 63-yard attempt that would have cut the lead to six points and led to an on-side kick.
- ➔ Last season, Crosby and former punter John Torp had a special ritual after Crosby boots which he considers big field goal. Crosby would run over to the sideline after the kick to have Torp quickly shine his shoe with a towel. The duo first did it after Crosby's 55-yard bomb against CSU in 2004. Torp was ready and waiting for the shine after Crosby nailed his 49-yarder against North Texas, but Crosby "waved him off," noting that "the kick just wasn't big enough." "Deserving" kicks have to be over 50 yards. It remains to be seen whether Crosby will continue the tradition with another teammate this season.
- ➔ Against CSU in 2005, he nailed all three of his field goals (32, 48, 47). His second boot tied the game at 21-21 with 2:32 remaining in the game. His final kick from 47 yards out came with four seconds left on the clock and won the game for the Buffs. His memorable performance came on his 21st birthday.
- ➔ Against Kansas State last season, he came out a hero as well. After the Buffs recovered a fumble at the KSU 26-yard line with 55 seconds left, quarterback Joel Klatt took a knee twice for a loss of seven yards to take time off the clock. Coaches didn't even think twice about taking the lost yardage to make the field goal a 50-yarder. Crosby easily made the kick with six seconds remaining.
- ➔ In 2004, he was one of 20 semifinalists for the Lou Groza Award. One of the best kickers in the nation, he earned first-team all-Big 12 honors by both the Associated Press and conference coaches, and racked up several All-American honors.

- ➔ In what may have been the best performance by a CU kicker ever, Crosby was perfect on all four of his field goal attempts against Iowa State in 2004 en route to launching kicks of 28, 60, 54 and 33 yards, respectively. His 60-yard shot in the second quarter was the longest field goal in CU history, as he broke the old school record of 58 set by Jerry Hamilton in 1981.
- ➔ In 2003, he set a CU record for most points scored by a freshman with 52 (the old record of 48 was shared by two players).
- ➔ He became the first true freshman to earn placekicking duties at CU since Eric Hannah did in 1987, and also was the first to kick in a season opener since Tom Field in 1979. No other true freshmen have kicked placements in the last 50 years at Colorado.

CROSBY CONTINUED

- ➔ In high school, he booted the third-longest field goal in Texas state history, tying the record with a 59-yarder his senior year.
- ➔ He spent several years growing up in Fort Collins, and managed to come to a few CU games when he was younger.
- ➔ It is in his ritual to often go to the driving range a few days before each game and pound out 40-60 golf balls.

17 ALVIN BARNETT, WR

- ➔ Barnett is a solid receiver with good quickness. Last season, after transferring from NE Oklahoma A&M, Barnett struggled to adapt to the fast pace of Division 1 football. But he has shown coaches that he can be a very effective receiver in the Big 12.

21 SCOTTY McKNIGHT, WR

- ➔ He joined the team as an invited walk-on for August drills.
- ➔ Has not seen any action this season, but traveled with the team to Georgia.
- ➔ His father, Scott, played football at UC-Davis where he was a teammate of CU coach Dan Hawkins. He originally committed to Boise State.

21 VANCE WASHINGTON, CB

- ➔ He is also somewhat of a medical marvel, as he is back practicing with the team after tearing his ACL in the spring and undergoing reconstructive surgery. Coaches and trainers have had to hold him back, as he would have returned even earlier if the choice was up to him.
- ➔ In 2004, coaches experimented with Washington at wide receiver.

22 LORENZO SIMS JR., CB

- ➔ He is a strong cover man and CU's most physical cornerback. He has played safety at times for the Buffs but will mostly man the left cornerback spot for the year.
- ➔ He is known as "Spiderman" for how well he covers receivers. In high school, his mom bought him a "Spiderman" t-shirt and he wears it underneath his pads for every game.
- ➔ One of three players (Brad Jones and Billingsley) to play in every defensive snap against Georgia.
- ➔ He played in every defensive snap against Arizona State along with fellow cornerback Terrence Wheatley.
- ➔ In 2004, he shot out of the gates and become one of CU's top all-around players. He was very consistent on defense, and earned all-Big 12 second-team accolades from the league coaches for his efforts, as well as Associated Press honorable mention notice. He was also one of 10 Victory Club honorees for CU, for he recorded a winning performance in at least eight games this season.
- ➔ His cousin (Ricky Manning) was a defensive back at UCLA, while another (DeShawn Stevenson) plays guard for the Washington Wizards; second cousin (Bruce Bowen) is a forward for the San Antonio Spurs.

25 LIONEL HARRIS, SS

- ➔ A gifted athlete, Harris should see plenty of playing time and add to the Buffs' tremendous depth in the secondary.
- ➔ He made his first career start for injured S J.J. Billingsley against Baylor.
- ➔ He was an accomplished bull rider from seventh to 10th grade, as he earned one win and a runner-up finish in organized competitions.

26 TERRENCE WHEATLEY, CB

- ➔ Finally back at 100 percent after overcoming three different wrist surgeries, Wheatley is the secondary's best athlete—his 4.29 40 time to prove it. He missed all of the 2005 season, but fortunately he had a redshirt year available so he did not lose a year of eligibility.
- ➔ Wheatley has played in all but one defensive snap for the Buffs this season.
- ➔ He has three interceptions in the past two games for the Buffs, a total that could easily total five or six as he just missed a few opportunities, including having one reversed by replay against Missouri.
- ➔ Against Texas in 2004, he scored CU's only touchdown of the day. On UT's second drive of the game, Young threw a pass that was picked off by Wheatley, who promptly streaked down the sideline with his first career theft for a 37-yard touchdown. For his big-play efforts, he was named CU's Defensive Player of the Week.
- ➔ He still holds the Plano East High School record in the 100 meters (10.3 seconds), as well as the school marks in the triple jump and long jump. His father (Randolph) ran track at Arizona State.

27 BYRON ELLIS, TB

- ➔ He plays with a different style than Hugh Charles, as he runs with more of a bruising style and likes to shoot the ball up the middle. He should see plenty of action this fall as coaches will use him to give the offense a different dimension than Charles.
- ➔ He scored his first career touchdown (in 134th career touch) against Baylor.
- ➔ He is majoring in integrative physiology at CU and would like to go to medical school after he graduates. He told the Los Angeles Times during his senior year of high school: "I want to be the tops in life in everything I do. I compete with the nerds; I compete on the football field."

29 CHA'PELLE BROWN, CB/PR

- ➔ He is a true freshman who has already seen extensive playing time as the primary nickel corner. He has a small fame, as he stands 5-7 and 165 pounds, but he is a gifted playmaker. He came up with several interceptions and big plays in fall camp to earn the trust of his coaches. He is third on the depth chart at left cornerback and will be the backup punt returner behind Stephone Robinson.
- ➔ He led the team with 10 total tackles against Missouri and added an acrobatic interception. It marked the first time since 2004 that a freshman led the team in tackles in a game (then-freshman LB Jordon Dizon tied for the team lead twice that year and led the team with 13 against Washington State).
- ➔ He played in 35 snaps against Colorado State, the second-most of any cornerback on the team (Wheatley was in on all 59 plays).
- ➔ Played in 19 snaps against Montana State in his first collegiate action, making three tackles.

30 PAUL CREIGHTON, TE

- ➔ He has battled a hip injury this fall making it difficult to crack the tight end rotation.
- ➔ In 2005, Creighton was a combo fullback/tight end. He saw most of his playing time on special teams and in the Buffs' power short-yardage formation. Playing behind two players who were drafted into the NFL (Joe Klopfenstein and Quinn Sypniewski) he saw little action at tight end.

32 MAURICE CANTRELL, FB

33 WALTER BOYE-DOE, DE

□ Last name is pronounced "boy-doe."

- ➔ He experienced a scary moment during the second fall scrimmage. He went up to deflect a pass at the line of scrimmage when he was undercut by an offensive lineman and landed on his head. He was transported to the hospital directly from the field where fears of a neck injury were put to rest. His injury turned out to be more concussion-related and he has since resumed normal practices.
- ➔ He came to CU as a linebacker before switching positions after the 2004 season.
- ➔ He is good friends with teammate RB Hugh Charles. The two attended Keller High School in Texas together before Boye-Doe preceded Charles to CU.
- ➔ He was born in Koforidua, Ghana (Africa), but moved to the Dallas area when he was four as his father took a job in the states. His parents are also Ghana natives.
- ➔ His older brother, Howard played linebacker at Wisconsin and completed his career last fall (2005).

37 MELL HOLLIDAY, TB

- ➔ He has a bruising style of running that has impressed his coaches.
- ➔ Holliday rushed for his first career touchdown against Baylor, a 32-yard scamper in the first quarter that put the Buffs up 7-0.
- ➔ He was CU's go-to running back against Montana State. Rushing for 51 yards on 12 carries, he has already become a fan favorite because he is so hard to bring down.
- ➔ He was absent over the summer for off-season workouts while working as a welder in Nebraska to earn money for his children. He has spent the last three summers working for the welding-supply company in Omaha, Neb., his hometown. To keep in shape, he worked out at a local YMCA. Dan Hawkins has nicknamed Holliday "The Welder." "I'm a blue-collar guy. I love "The Welder."
- ➔ Holliday has overcome an unforeseen transfer issue that rendered him ineligible last fall after he had begun to impress in preseason camp. He had transferred from Nebraska but had not played for them in 2004. Undaunted, he stayed on pace in spring practice and showed well for the new coaching staff.

39 KEVIN EBERHART, PK

- ➔ Although he backs up Mason Crosby at placekicker, he could start for just about any Division-I school. He has good range, although it may not seem that way thanks to fans being spoiled by Crosby. In 2003, he actually saw game action before Crosby did in his career, handling the opening kickoff duties against Colorado State in the opener. Crosby's first duty came on a P.A.T.
- ➔ He was named the PAT/Field Goal starting kicker at Florida State in 2003, but missed both of his field goals tries, including his first career field goal attempt of 22 yards. Crosby has been the team's primary kicker ever since.

40 BRAD JONES, OLB

- ➔ A highly-touted sophomore, Jones takes the reins from former linebacker Brian Iwuh at the Sam linebacker spot. Last season he played in all 13 games. Iwuh (half) joked last season he was glad he was a senior because Jones kept getting better and better as his backup.
- ➔ As an excellent pass defender because of his size (6-4, 225 lbs.), he matches up well against tight ends. Because of this he plays in a lot more snaps than Jordon Dizon and Thaddeaus Washington.
- ➔ He played in every defensive snap against Georgia.

42 BENJAMIN BURNEY, FS

- ➔ He started against Montana State and Baylor, replacing injured S Ryan Walters.
- ➔ His father, Jacob, has been the defensive line coach for the Denver Broncos since 2002.

43 SAMSON JAGORAS, FB

- ➔ He transferred from Western New Mexico, switching positions from linebacker to fullback and sitting out a year due to NCAA transfer rules. He is a favorite of coaches because of his tenacity and love for the game.
- ➔ Said Hawkins: “He is a tough, blue collar guy who does whatever he can to help the team. He is a classic fullback. Take it for the team, block for the superstar. That’s the life of the fullback and he’s embraced that. And you have to have a good one in our offense.”

44 JORDON DIZON, ILB

- Last name is pronounced “die-zonn.”
 - ➔ This is Dizon’s third year as a starter for the Buffs at linebacker.
 - ➔ A Butkus award candidate, Dizon was surprised when told about his name being on the watch list. He responded with a modest, but not under-confident ‘Why? There are a lot of players out there like me; I’m just a hard worker. To become finalists (along with fellow candidate Thaddeus Washington) would be an incredible thing for both of us, and especially for Coach Cabral.’
 - ➔ After another huge game against Arizona State (12 tackles, two third down stops and a forced fumble at the goal line), Dizon remained upbeat despite the loss: “After we come out from a loss, Coach Hawkins and his words are so contagious. He comes out and picks us up. My heart is full of love for him and for this game. It doesn’t feel like I lost tonight. I want to come out and prepare for the next game. It’s like what [Hawkins] said, ‘you learn the most from when you lose.’ Every game we are getting better.”
 - ➔ Dizon had a career day against Colorado State, combining for 15 tackles, two sacks and three third down stops.
 - ➔ He was all over the field against Montana state, making eight tackles, a half sack, three third down stops and a pass broken up. He was so exhausted after the game that he had to be treated with IVs in the tunnel entering the locker room.
 - ➔ He started the 2005 as the starting Will (inside) linebacker. After playing at 205 pounds his freshman year, he has bulked up to a more linebacker-like 225.
 - ➔ In 2004, he was the starter at the “Will” inside linebacker spot, as he became the first true freshman ILB to start a season opener in CU history against Colorado State. He was also just the sixth true freshman to start an opener in school lore and the first since 1991.
 - ➔ He took the college football world by storm, as he broke the CU single season record for tackles by a freshman in the Kansas State game. J.J. Billingsley held the previous best with 67 in 2002.
 - ➔ Dizon finished the regular season third for the Buffs in tackles with 82 (51 solo); he is the first CU freshman ever to finish higher than seventh on the team in tackles.
 - ➔ For his astounding play, he was named the Big 12 Defensive Newcomer and Defensive Freshman of the Year by the league coaches and Associated Press, while he was also an honorable mention all-conference selection by both groups. To add even more praise, The Sporting News tabbed him a second-team Freshman All-American and first-team Freshman All-Big 12 performer. Dizon also was given CU’s Lee Willard Award at the season-ending banquet for being the team’s most outstanding freshman.
 - ➔ He was recruited as an “athlete,” as the coaches figured to try him at a number of positions. He started his freshman camp at safety, but after five practices the coaches moved him to inside linebacker to see him in that role. It didn’t take long for him to make an impression at linebacker, as he zoomed up the depth chart in practically unprecedented speed, ascending all the way to the top after just six practices.
 - ➔ Recruited by Brian Cabral out of Hawaii – a state that the 18th-year assistant has found many talents in. You can often see Dizon trudging to classes through slush and snow and 20-degree weather in flip-flops.
 - ➔ He certainly knows how to wrap an opponent up, as he perfected the art chasing wild boars on hunting trips when he was younger. His mother, an undercover narcotics police officer in Hawaii, never allowed him to use a gun. Instead he tracked the animals with help from dogs, pinned them to the ground and killed them with a knife. But according to Dizon, he is not into that anymore. “Those days are over,” he joked. “My knees are too bad for that. My eyesight is going. I’m getting too old for that kind of stuff.”
 - ➔ He has spent the last eight months immersing himself in a new game: golf. He played for the first time in January and shot well over 100. He played more and more and just before fall camp started he shot a 79. “I played almost every single day. It was amazing. I went broke by the end of the summer, but I did what I had to do. It's just the greatest game. If golf and football are on TV, I'm watching golf. I love golf."

46 DAN GOETTSCH, TE

- ➔ A devoted walk-on, Goettsch is a solid contributor for the Buffs.
- ➔ He has his pilot's license and has designs of being a charter pilot after graduation (maybe this time next year he will be flying the Buffs to road games!).
- ➔ He made his first career start against Colorado State but did not record a catch.
- ➔ Caught a 46-yard pass from quarterback James Cox in the first quarter against Montana State, but the play was nullified by a holding call at the line of scrimmage.

47 ALONZO BARRETT, DE

- ➔ He is listed at No. 2 on the depth chart at right defensive end behind sophomore Maurice Lucas. He adds tremendous depth to the end position and should see plenty of playing time this fall.
- ➔ His older brother, Jamal, was an offensive tackle at Texas A&M; the two lined up against each other in the when the teams met at Folsom Field last season.
- ➔ He has been a CU fan since his youth, with one of his favorite players being Heisman Trophy winner Rashaan Salaam. It was natural, for his aunt (father's sister) is married to Salaam's uncle (father's brother).

48 CODY CRAWFORD, WR

- ➔ He sees plenty of action on offense and on the punt block team. He blocked one punt in the spring game, one in the Buffs' first fall scrimmage and nearly got his hands on one in the second fall scrimmage.
- ➔ Coaches love his work ethic. He was singled out by Dan Hawkins because he fractured a rib early in camp and played through it so he could earn playing time and a chance to travel with the team. Often he would make a great catch and fall to the ground or get hit and come to the sideline grimacing and barely being able to breathe because of his rib injury. But then when he was up it would be like nothing was wrong and he would go out and make plays.
- ➔ He made his first career start against Georgia.

49 THADDAEUS WASHINGTON, ILB

- ➔ A Butkus Award candidate for the second straight season, Washington is one of the elite linebackers in the conference and in the nation. He emerged last season as a team leader and it has carried over exponentially this season. He is a quiet and soft-spoken person off the field, but is a fiery motivator in the locker room and on the gridiron.
- ➔ He has started all but the last two games at the "Mike" linebacker spot for CU since the Oklahoma State game in 2004, his sophomore season. Because Missouri and Baylor have a pass-happy spread offense, CU has started with a nickel back in both games.
- ➔ He has greatly improved his pass coverage skills, but he is still taken out in nickel situations because of the unique athleticism that fellow linebackers Jordan Dizon and Brad Jones possess.
- ➔ He hails from the same high school (John Ehret in Marrero, La.) that produced former CU quarterback Kordell Stewart. His cousin, Marlon Favorite, is a sophomore defensive tackle at Louisiana State.
- ➔ He worked this past summer with mason Crosby as an intern in Cu's marketing and promotions office. Many season ticket holders got phone calls with his voice on the other end asking them to renew their tickets.

51 ALEX LIGON, DE

- ➔ He has bulked up 25 pounds since last fall and provides depth and defensive end as well as the tackle spot. He missed all of spring drills after suffering a torn pectoral muscle in winter conditioning.

- ➔ In 2005, he was the starter in the “rush” defensive end spot. He had a scary start to fall camp, as he collided with cornerback Lorenzo Sims during a morning practice and lay motionless on the field for several minutes before being transported to the hospital in an ambulance. All tests came up negative, however, and he was able to resume practice the next week. The incident was very similar to what happened to fellow defensive end Walter Boye-Doe this fall.

LIGON CONTINUED

- ➔ He is a big movie “Buff” with his favorite films being the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles series. Former defensive lineman James Garee, a senior last season, used to call Ligon “Teenage Mutant Ninja Defensive End.”
- ➔ In 2004, he played in all 13 games and started 10 of them. He was tied for second on the team in tackles for loss (11) as well as in sacks (4½), and because of that was named an honorable mention all-Big 12 honoree by the Associated Press.
- ➔ Against Washington State he recorded a team-high three sacks for 26 yards, seven total tackles (six solo), one other stuff for loss and a forced fumble. He became the first Buff to garner Big 12 Defensive Player of the Week honors since former safety Medford Moorer did so in 2002 against Texas Tech. The last time one CU player (Drew Wahlroos) had notched three sacks alone was against Missouri in 2000.
- ➔ His father (Alfred) played free safety at UNLV in 1982-83 and signed with the Kansas City Chiefs as a free agent, but injuries cut short his attempt to make the team.

53 ABRAHAM WRIGHT, DE

- ➔ A dominant speed rusher, Wright already well on his way to a double digit season in sacks with eight.
- ➔ He had one sack and four quarterback pressures against Arizona State, amazingly playing in every defensive snap for the Buffs. On one play, he blew past ASU tackle Brandon Rodd, getting into the backfield after the snap before Rodd could even react. He leaped into the air and leveled ASU quarterback Rudy Carpenter before he could even finish dropping back.
- ➔ He was in the Colorado State backfield all day, making five tackles and three sacks against the Rams. It was the first three-sack game by a Buffalo since DE Alex Ligon had three against Washington State in 2004.
- ➔ Picking up where he left off in 2005, Wright had five tackles, a quarterback sack, two quarterback hurries and a pass broken up against Montana State.
- ➔ In 2005, he tied for the team lead with five sacks. He also had five passes broken up. He can get so high in the air that often he jumps up and has screen passes hit him in the chest. Coaches have had him work with the jugs machine so he can start to catch some of those balls.
- ➔ As a sophomore in 2004, he finished the regular season second in QB pressures with six and tied with Ligon in sacks (4½).
- ➔ He played junior college ball at Northeast Oklahoma A&M before transferring to CU in the spring of 2004. He came in right away and impressed the coaches with his speed and initial quickness off the line.
- ➔ At NEO, he lined up at defensive end and linebacker. In 2003, he was named to the Top 100 JUCO list, coming in at No. 62 overall and being the No. 5 defensive end.
- ➔ He has taken several courses in sign language at CU. He has hosted deaf children and given them tours on campus and he has an interest in working with the deaf after his football career.

54 MARCUS BURTON, ILB

- ➔ As a true freshman in 2005, he saw action in all 13 games. The Sporting News tabbed him as a first-team freshman All-Big 12 performer. In his first extensive action of the season, he played in 29 snaps against Oklahoma State, finishing with four solo tackles including a sack. He also had one of the most spectacular plays of the game, as well as by a freshman in CU history: with 43 seconds remaining, he scooped up a deflected pass and returned it 99 yards for a touchdown, not only preserving a 34-0 shutout but also recording the second longest play (and score) of any kind by a true freshman in Colorado history.

57 BRYCE MACMARTIN, C

- ➔ Takes over as CU’s starting center at least through the Texas Tech game until Mark Fenton returns from a cracked fibula.

58 MARK FENTON, C

- ➔ After finishing the 2005 season as one of six finalists for the Rimington Award for the nation's best center, he is again a top contender for the award and was a near-unanimous preseason All-Big 12 selection.
- ➔ In 2005, Fenton was the only offensive lineman to start every game, as he played in a team-high 799 snaps from scrimmage.
- ➔ In 2004, he wrapped up the starting center position with a solid performance in fall camp. He made his first career start against CSU in the opener and he played the most out of every lineman this season, only missing one snap.
- ➔ He first caught the eye of the coaches as a center during the team's Alamo Bowl practices in 2002. He practiced at center for the first extended period of time (he was recruited as a defensive lineman), and former head coach Gary Barnett noted at the time, "I think we may have found our future center."
- ➔ He cracked his fibula in the Georgia game. It was originally feared that he would miss nearly the whole season, but Fenton expects to only miss a few weeks. Since the fibula is not a weight-bearing bone, it should just become an issue of how much pain he can tolerate. He is using a bone-growth stimulator to expedite the healing process.

63 JACK TIPTON, OT

- ➔ He missed all of spring practice while rehabilitating from a knee surgery last December.

66 BRIAN DANIELS, OG

- ➔ In his fourth year as a starter at offensive guard, Daniels is a team captain and the vocal leader of the offense. Offensive line coach Chris Strausser, who was already impressed that Daniels had started for three years in the Big 12, said he never takes a day off.
- ➔ In the 2005 season opener against Colorado State, he left in the first half after being hit in the side. After being taken to the hospital and diagnosed with a broken rib and a bruised kidney and watched the game on TV. Not able to take it anymore, he went back to the stadium and tried to play. Fans with keen eyes could have seen the hospital bracelet still around his wrist. He only went three plays, but the pain didn't stop him. The restricted breathing did. Said Daniels: "I guess one hour wasn't enough time to wait after a broken bone."
- ➔ In 2004, he built on his outstanding freshman campaign and was tabbed as an honorable mention all-Big 12 selection by both the conference coaches and Associated Press. He was also only one of 10 players to be named to CU's prestigious Victory Club, as he was the only offensive lineman who graded out to a winning performance in at least eight games.
- ➔ He started 11 games as a true freshman, setting the record for the most offensive line starts made by a freshman in school history. He also earned first-team Freshman All-America honors from collegefootballnews.com. He was only the seventh true frosh to start on the offensive line since 1973.
- ➔ As a high school senior, he was the No. 1 ranked power lifter in the state.
- ➔ One reason for his quick feet is the fact that he has been ice-skating on Evergreen Lake (in his hometown) "ever since I could walk."
- ➔ His younger brother, Shawn, has committed to play for Colorado in 2006.

75 DANIEL SANDERS, OG

- ➔ He started against Arizona State and Colorado State, after not playing against Montana State due to lingering effects from a slight hamstring pull.
- ➔ He saw extensive playing time as a redshirt freshman in 2005, appearing in 10 games and making four starts. He missed two games in the middle of the season (Texas, Kansas) with a partially torn hamstring. He also missed the Champ Sports Bowl after suffering a severe knee sprain in bowl practices. The Sporting News selected him to its Freshman All-Big 12 Team.

76 EDWIN HARRISON, OT

- ➔ He battled a shoulder injury early in fall camp, causing him to miss some practices.
- ➔ As a sophomore in 2004, he spring drills and most of fall camp after off-season shoulder surgery. He went on to play in 11 games, starting seven. He did not allow a quarterback sack and was called for just one penalty on the year.
- ➔ As a freshman in 2004, he played in 10 games and The Sporting news selected him to its Freshman All-Big 12 Team.
- ➔ His grandfather (Calvin Jones) won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding interior lineman as a senior at Iowa in 1955; Jones was the first two-time consensus All-American in Iowa history, and his No. 62 was retired by the Hawkeyes.
- ➔ Hobbies include traveling, with the Bahamas as his favorite place he has ever visited, and skiing. He received the Eagle Scout Badge in 2001 for helping build a library for "The Project Royal," which helps single moms and kids.

77 TYLER POLUMBUS, OT

- ➔ The massive Polumbus (6-8, 285 pounds) will be responsible for protecting the quarterback's blindside. He benefited from going against speedy defensive end Abraham Wright throughout fall camp. He missed all of spring drills after having surgery in January to relieve a chronic shoulder condition.
- ➔ Two members of his family played sports at CU: Father (Tad) lettered in football, basketball and golf (1965-66), and an uncle (Gary Polumbus) lettered three years in golf and twice made it to the NCAA Championships. His father had 14 career receptions at CU...out of 15 passes thrown to him.

83 DUSTY SPRAGUE, WR

- ➔ Battling a hamstring injury throughout fall camp, he is finally healthy. He possesses great size (6-4, 195 pounds) and is an extremely sure-handed target who is not afraid to go over the middle.
- ➔ As a sophomore in 2005, he played in all 13 games, making 11 starts. He led the Buffs in receptions in the regular season with 43, good for 468 yards and a touchdown. He was the first sophomore to lead CU in receiving since Michael Westbrook in 1992.
- ➔ As a freshman in 2004, he turned into one of Joel Klatt's favorite targets before suffering a broken collarbone midway through the season. The Sporting News named him to its Freshman All-Big 12 team.
- ➔ His family is no stranger to college football, as two older brothers (Aaron and Russell) both played receiver at Colorado State.
- ➔ He caught what looked to be a touchdown in the first quarter against Georgia, but the fourth down play was stricken due to a false start penalty.

84 TYSON DeVREE, TE

- ➔ He saw his first game action as a member of the Buffs against Colorado State and caught his first pass, a six-yarder for a first down against Arizona State.
- ➔ He suffered a rib injury late in fall camp and had to miss some practice and the home opener against Montana State. The misplaced rib caused an air pocket to form in his lungs and he had to stand on the sidelines at practice breathing from an oxygen canister because doctors feared that his lungs could collapse. He has since returned to practice after doctors used a catheter to remove the air pocket.
- ➔ After transferring from Western Michigan, he had to sit out the 2005 season. He impressed coaches and teammates on a consistent basis with his talent on the scout team.
- ➔ At Western Michigan, he was a 2004 second-team all-Mid American Conference selection and a John Mackey Award watch list candidate.
- ➔ In 2003, at Western Michigan, he was named a second-team All-American by The Sporting News.

85 NICK HOLZ, WR/HLD

- ➔ A career walk-on and PK Mason Crosby's best ally as a holder, Holz made his first career start at wide receiver against Baylor.
- ➔ His nickname is "Pony."

86 GEORGE HYPOLITE, DT

- ➔ A first-year starter at defensive tackle in 2006, following an impressive year as a true freshman. He has added another 15 pounds to his frame to solidify his presence in the middle.
- ➔ He had an outstanding fall camp as a freshman in 2005 that moved him to second on the depth chart at nose tackle behind incumbent senior Vaka Manupuna. That was a key time for him, as he really is a converted fullback and is still learning all the nuances of being a big-time DT.
- ➔ He had another great game against Baylor with seven tackles, three of them for a loss.
- ➔ Played his best game to date against Georgia. He had his first two career sacks against the Bulldogs, with one causing a fumble on UGA's first second half possession that led to a CU field goal.

87 RIAR GEER, TE

- ➔ Caught his first career touchdown in the first overtime against Baylor.
- ➔ He came almost out of nowhere against Georgia to lead the Buffs in receiving with seven catches for 71 yards. He was the primary reason the Buffs were able to keep the Bulldogs off-balance for most of the day after coaches decided the best way to attack the Georgia defense was on the perimeter and in the flats. Said QB Bernard Jackson: "Obviously, today he was the man. I just get the ball to him and let him make plays."

90 ISAAC GARDEN, PK/P

- ➔ He consistently boots the football further than DiLallo in practices, but he doesn't have as fast of a release.
- ➔ He is also a left-footed punter just like his predecessor John Torp and DiLallo, so CU may have cornered the market on lefties.

91 MAURICE LUCAS, DE

- ➔ A physical specimen (6-4, 240 pounds), Lucas already has the build to be an elite Big 12 defensive end. Position coach Romeo Bandison has said Lucas needs to be more consistent and needs to be able to move on after a mistake without thinking about it.
- ➔ He was originally ticketed to redshirt the 2005 season, but was activated in the sixth game of the season and made his collegiate debut against the eventual National Champion Texas Longhorns—in Austin. He ended up playing in eight games, starting the last six.

94 BRANDON NICOLAS, DT

- ➔ In 2005, he sat out the entire season after transferring to Colorado from Notre Dame. Also used the time to have surgery to mend chronic shoulder problems.
- ➔ He came from legendary football power Mater Dei High School in Santa Ana, Calif., and was recruited to Notre Dame by former coach Tyrone Willingham. He did not play as a freshman in 2004, but Willingham told him his chances of playing as a sophomore were promising. After Charlie Weiss was hired to replace Willingham, Nicolas felt uncomfortable with the system. He decided to transfer to Colorado over UCLA in large part because he thought it would be fun to play for former CU head coach Gary Barnett. After the coaching change at Colorado and with Nicolas finding himself with his third coaching staff in three years, he is finally comfortable.

- ➔ “Tradition is strong at Notre Dame,” Nicolas said. “But there’s a lot of tradition here too. This is a big-time program. Classes are hard. There’s not that much of a difference, really.”

96 MARCUS JONES, DT

- ➔ With his size (6-4, 300 pounds), he provides valuable depth in the interior and can occupy multiple blockers.

97 TAJ KAYNOR, DT

- ➔ It was almost Kaynor who was activated from his redshirt season in 2005 to play defensive end; instead coaches went with Maurice Lucas because he was more physically developed for the position.
- ➔ Kaynor has since bulked up to from 250 to 285 pounds to play the interior line. He did so by eating between 7,000 and 8,000 calories per day in the spring.

98 MICHAEL SIPILI, ILB

- ➔ Sipili impressed coaches in fall camp and is one of the few true freshmen who has played early and often. He has seen some spot action from scrimmage as well as duty on special teams.

SAVE FOR FUTURE USE

7 DOMINIQUE BROOKS, S

□ THIS SEASON

- ➔ Brooks was one of the favorites to earn a starting spot this fall at safety before suffering a high-ankle sprain during a scrimmage Aug. 20. Initial indications were that he would miss at least four weeks, but he has vowed to return sooner.
- ➔ Missed opener against CSU due to a high-ankle sprain.

- ➔ He established himself as one of the big hitters on the field, as he was fourth in total stops (72) and tied for second in solo tackles (54).
- ➔ He had a season-high 11 tackles (eight solo) against Texas A&M as he played in all 85 snaps and led the Buffs in stops during their gut-wrenching overtime loss.
- ➔ In the Big 12 Championship against Oklahoma he had six solo stuffs, two pass deflections, one third down stop and one forced fumble against the Sooners' vaunted attack. He forced the fumble on receiver Mark Clayton half way through the third quarter, which was recovered by Lorenzo Sims at the 25 as OU was driving deep in CU territory.

- ➔ As a true freshman he saw action in 10 contests in 2003, including three starts as the dime back. He finished the season with 24 tackles (20 solo), one sack, two tackles for a loss, eight third down stops and five passes broken up.
- ➔ He owned the distinction of having the most third/fourth down stops in a single game with his four stops against Missouri – the most by a CU player in six years.

55 JASON ACKERMANN, ILB

□ THIS SEASON

➔ He continues to rehabilitate from knee surgery that forced him to miss all of spring and fall drills. When he is able to return, he should be a valuable contributor on special teams as he works his way back into the linebacker mix.

➔ Listed second at the “Will” inside linebacker post, he had an outstanding fall camp, for at one point he ascended to first on the depth chart. At the start of camp, inside linebackers coach Brain Cabral noted that he was searching for competition and depth his position. After just a few practices his wish came true when Ackermann and a host of others stepped up to the challenge.

➔ He stepped his game up and become more familiar with the defense since arriving in Boulder. He believed the new 4-3 defensive scheme catered “more to the linebackers” and he certainly took advantage of that.

➔ He saw action in all 11 games on special teams, and one at linebacker against Baylor; he had three tackles in that contest and a fourth down stop on a misplayed punt.

➔ He redshirted the year and practiced at inside linebacker. Originally scheduled to enroll in January, he joined the team during the first week of fall camp due to attrition in the linebacker corps.
